*I live in two worlds
Now integrated . . . now separate Within me lies the power to conceive the will to accomplish
But there exists a world outside myself,
I walk slowly and look around me . . .
And begin to comprehend the vastness of the Universe*

*Each individual . . .
a separate entity . . . a separate world . . .
And yet, no man can exist alone
With each friend I grow,
I become something of him and leave him something of myself*

And yet, I know that ultimately each man must choose the values he will live by.

*And what is knowledge
Words on a page to be memorized and measured at intervals with a letter Or is knowledge more intangible the courage to question the determination to understand*

Who am I

This question no man can answer for me

From the myriad of ideas confronting me

*I must examine . . . question . . .
and finally choose.
Only then will "I" emerge.*

The University awakens . . . FALL

STUDENT LIFE is more than books and classrooms. Entertainment, activities, and leisure are a valuable part of a student's experience. Fall term focused on entertainment as professionals and students alike deluged the campus with a variety of events. Laughter rang out as OSU enjoyed the humor of the Smothers Brothers. The popular Wayfarers made a campus appearance with such numbers as "Shenandoah," and "Malaguena Salerosa."

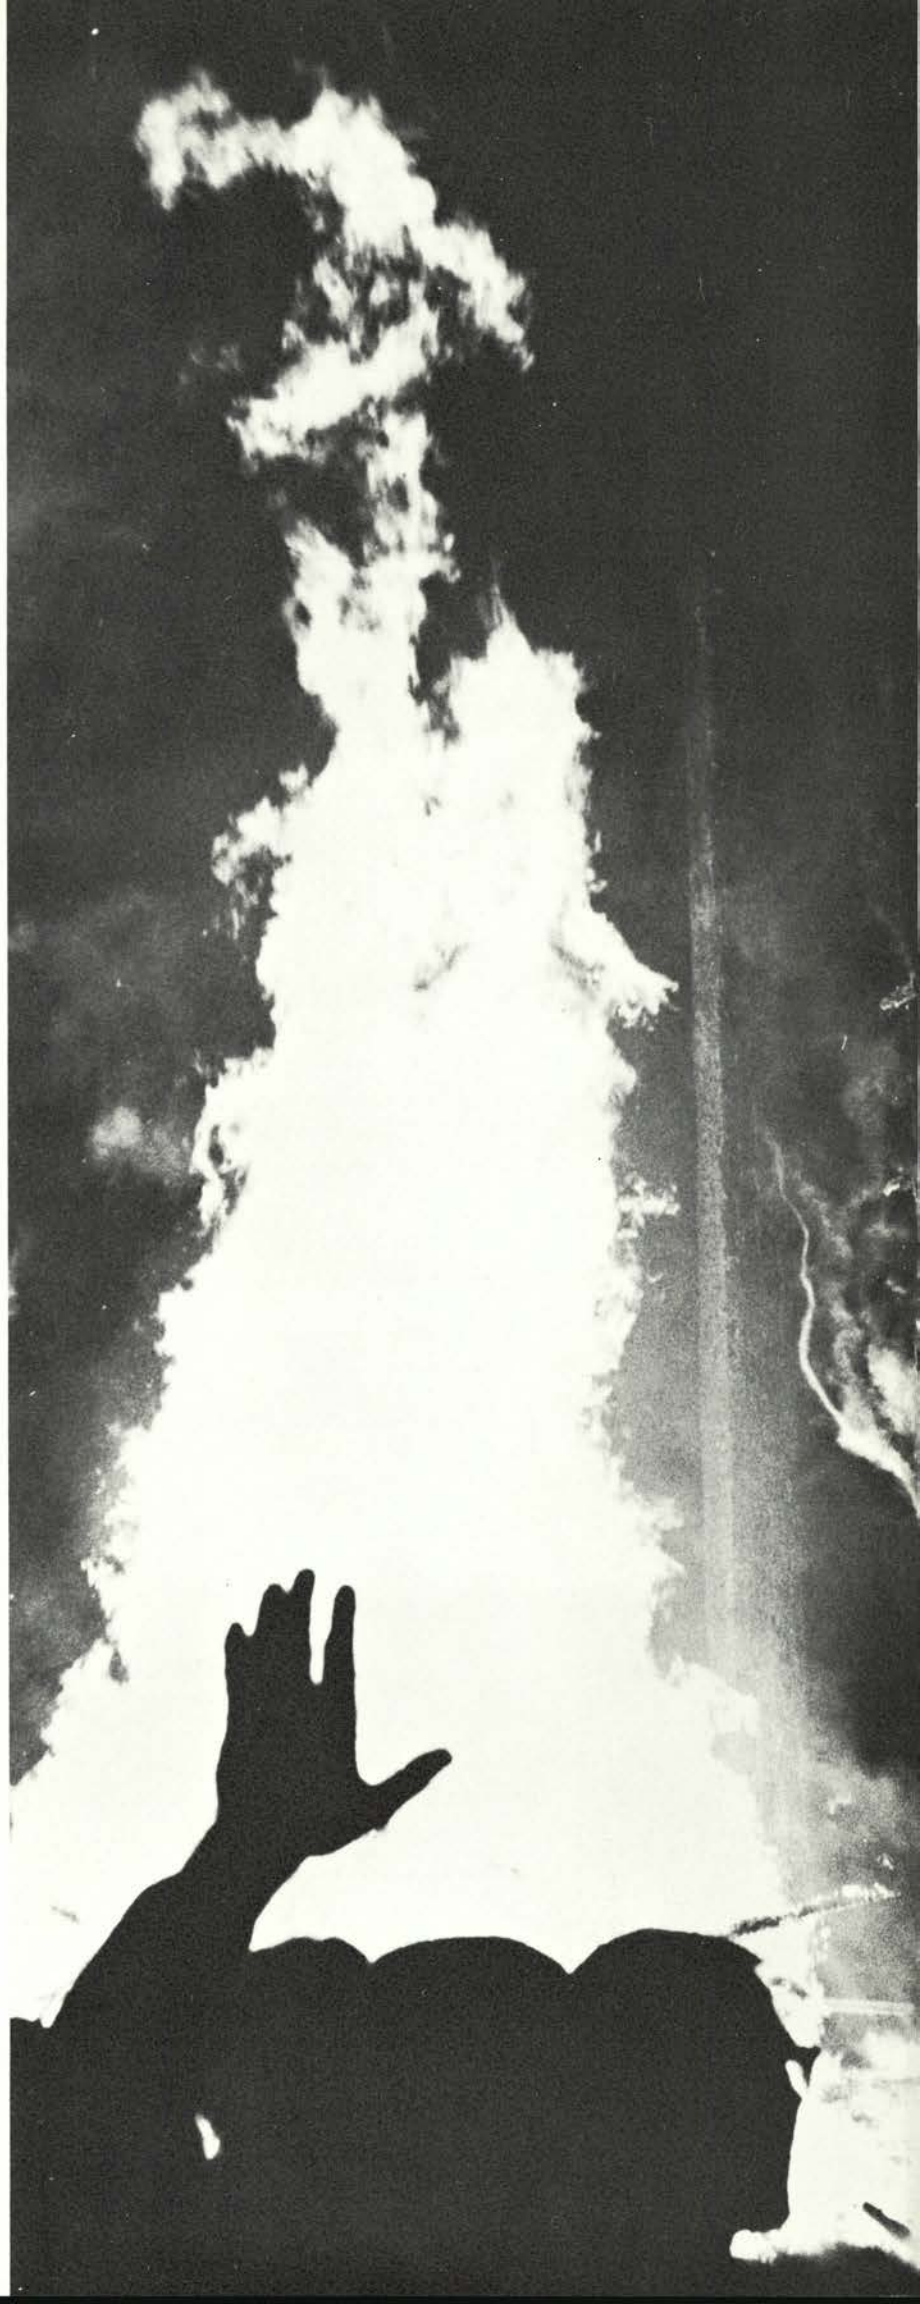

The MU was utilized as never before and became the hub for a variety of events. The Ballroom was crowded as talented students performed in weekly Friday Varieties. USO joined in the nationwide music trend sponsoring and participating in Sunday evening Hootenannies. Teas, dances, meetings and the traditional cup of coffee in the Commons or "O" Club round out the many dimensions of the MU.

HOMECOMING

a time of tradition . . . a queen is crowned . . . housesigns erected . . . Months of planning culminate in a weekend whirl of activity. The annual bonfire, noise parade, and game make up the framework of the festivities as alums return to assess changes and meet old friends. The weekend was capped by the performance of Henry Mancini. Applause thundered through the Coliseum, a testimony to Mancini's dry, quick wit and brilliant orchestra.

THE UNIVERSITY PACE quickens with the approach of the holiday season. Colored lights twinkle and glow from dorm windows. The MU takes on a festive air as decorations appear and the class tree contest gets underway. The quad is aglow as students carrying candles congregate for the traditional all-campus sing. Elves, santas, even Frosty the Snowman populate the MU for a day when students treat community children to a Christmas party with all the trimmings. As always the event proved successful, fun for the children, rewarding for the students.

A feeling of tension sets in as final week approaches. For a time Christmas seems far away as students concentrate on studies. But in the quad a tall, stately cedar personifies the spirit of Christmas as its lights shine through the night with a warm, steady glow.

The Rose Bowl was more than a game. It was students hurrying through final week . . . driving through snow, mud, and floods. It was packing a swim suit with visions of warm, sunny beaches and finding 45° weather. It was expectancy, waiting for the first glimpse of the Rose Parade. It was tension, and yelling yourself hoarse. It was the disappointment of losing. It was sightseeing in Tijuana. It was the knowledge although we lost the game, everyone who went gained an unforgettable experience.

WINTER TERM,

although often considered hum-drum and routine, offers a number of all-campus events. The Mortar Board Ball, sponsored by this women's honorary, is unique in that women find their dates and foot the bill. Beaver Open House, a project of Opportunity OSU, offers OSU hospitality to high school seniors for a day. A sort of mass public relations program, this event gives prospective students an opportunity to look over the University while the University does the same.

Among the entertainers on campus winter term was the Ford Caravan of Music, with the Christy Minstrels and the Serendipity Singers. Although enjoyable, their off-beat humor spoiled them for some . . . made them for others. Peter, Paul, and Mary appearing for the Junior Prom were sensational as always and added to an already outstanding Prom.

A term of weekend beach trips,
the lowered curve,
no Senior finals . . .

Although the Oregon spring is often a monsoon season, spring fever runs high oblivious to the thermometer.

SPRING TERM is a state of mind.

MOMS' WEEKEND is a traditional spring term event. Mothers are invited to spend a weekend with their son or daughter, meet his friends, and view college life. A wide variety of unusual and entertaining activities greet the Moms. Teas, style shows, and modern dance exhibitions are all a part of the weekend. The turtle race sponsored by the Betas is perhaps the most unusual event. The weekend is capped by the IFC Sing. A competitive event between selected living groups; the Sing represents weeks of dedicated practice by the participants. Moms' Weekend offers students and Moms an opportunity to enjoy each other and the University.

GRADUATION is often thought of nostalgically as an end. A handshake and a piece of paper . . . the termination of four years of achievement, the symbol of adulthood and responsibility . . .

In a sense this is so, but in a different sense one takes the college experiences with him throughout his life. Graduation is not an end or a beginning, but one phase in a life time process of transition.

SPORTS

Southern California tied Oregon State for the AAWU Championship. USC beat Number 1 Notre Dame and OSU was selected to meet Michigan in the Rose Bowl. Resentment met the Beavers in Los Angeles and the Rose Bowl began. In the first quarter, Paul Brothers led a drive that resulted in a TD pass to Doug McDougal and a surprising 7-0 OSU lead.

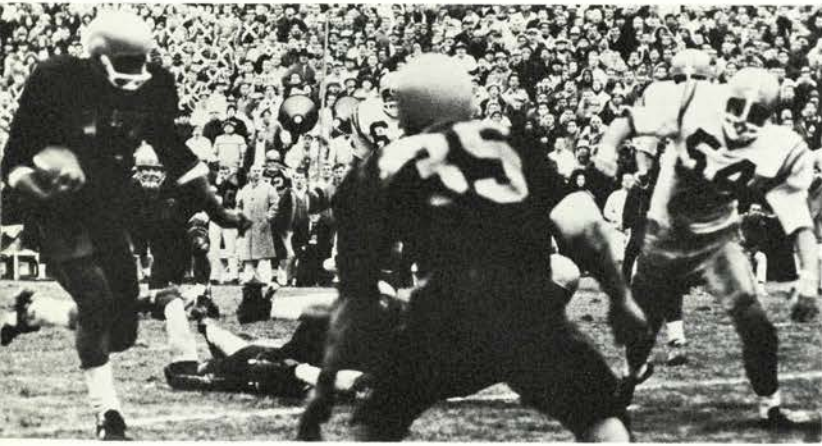

Sporting Mad Dog decaled helmets, the defense absorbed the Michigan attack for 1½ quarters. Following two 3rd down OSU punts, the defense made two tackling errors and Michigan escaped with two long TD's and a half time lead. The second half saw a complete Oregon State letdown. Michigan moved on the defense at will and stopped the offense cold. The final score could have been much worse. Rumors arose that Prothro was a prime candidate for the vacated UCLA job. Two weeks after the Rose Bowl, there were no more rumors—Prothro was named UCLA coach.

Oregon win sends Beavers to Rose Bowl

For weeks Parker Stadium had been sold out. A new attendance record of over 30,000 was destined to jam into the bowl. It was Civil War time.

This annual battle between OSU and Oregon was perhaps the most crucial game in the history of the series. On the outcome rode a possible Rose Bowl bid. Oregon State, tied for the conference lead, and Oregon, in second place by the slim margin of a tie game, both had to win to have a chance at the AAWU Championship.

The Beavers took early control. In the first quarter, OSU had a first and goal on the Oregon 3. On the next play however, a bobbled handoff from Brothers to Washington gave Oregon control. Late in the second quarter, Oregon's great quarterback Bob Berry hit his receiver on the Beaver 4. The Ducks moved in for the score. Al East blocked the extra point and the Ducks took their 6-0 lead into the dressing room at half-time.

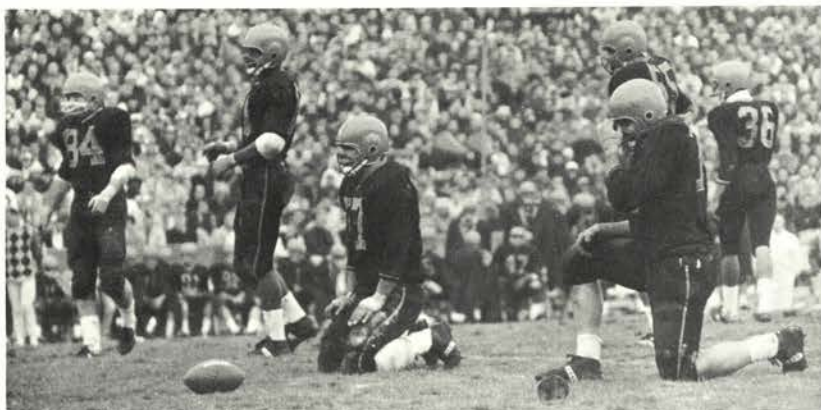

The second half saw an even tighter defensive battle. Linebackers O'Billovich and Ruhl stormed all over Berry throwing him for huge losses. Late in the fourth quarter the Beavers started their last drive. Two crucial fourth down rushes by Brothers got the Beavers close. It was then that head-man Prothro called the play of the game and the season. Team captain Booker Washington took the ball on a draw play and rambled 17 yards to the 1. Two more thrusts and Washington was over for the score. This game-tying 6 points by the Beaver Captain was his first touchdown in college play. He picked an excellent time to do it. Mr. Automatic, Steve Clark, added his most important point of the season with a thread thin 54 seconds remaining. Before those seconds ran out the Beavers had some anxious moments. At the gun Berry had Oregon camped on the OSU 27-yard line. Those 27 yards meant a civil war victory and a Rose Bowl bid.

Defense best on coast

A good deal of the credit for Oregon State's successful season has to go to the defense. During the early part of the season, the offense had trouble generating more than 10 points. Consequently the defense was forced into a situation where they had to hold OSU opponents to a touchdown or less. Not until the 6th game against Syracuse was a Beaver opponent able to score more than 7 points. The defensive unit developed a pride in themselves that was contagious. The coaches caught it, the Oregon State students caught it and the newspapers caught it. Partially because of their slashing, stunting, gang tackling style of play and mostly because of Linebacker Jack O'Billovich they became known as the Mad Dog defense. Against Oregon, they received standing ovations from the crowd at every exchange of the ball. At the season's end, only 3 teams had scored more than one TD against them and they were the top defensive team on the coast.

The reason for OSU defensive success shows beautifully in the sequence pictures at the left. The anxiousness for combat, initial charge, pursuit, and a haughtiness and pride in execution all combined to form the West's best defense.

"Mad Dog" O'Billovich, Ruhl, Espalin spark defense

Jack O'Billovich and team captain Dick Ruhl formed one of the best set of linebackers in the nation. O'Billovich was the most publicized, gaining 1st team All-Coast and NEA All-American mention. Early in the season, the sportswriters monocured him "Mad Dog" after his ferocious, full-steam-ahead defense. The tag spilled over onto the defense he played with. His best game was against Oregon. He showed true All-American form as he swarmed over Oregon's Berry all afternoon. Ruhl was destined to play in the publicity shadow of O'Billovich. However, his on the field shadow was every bit as large. Against Washington he clinched the game on a 4th quarter interception.

Dan Espalin has been Oregon State's safety man for 3 years. He set a single season interception mark as a sophomore and finished his 3 years with an OSU carrier record. He was also the deep man on punts. He won the game against Idaho with a 42 yard punt return for a TD.

At the season's end he was voted the most valuable player on the team despite having missed several games because of an injury.

Dick Ruhl (far above) intercepts the key pass against Washington. Jack "Mad Dog" O'Billovich shows that even the best can let one get away as Oregon's Bob Berry slips from his grasp. Berry lost 3 yards on the play.

Kicking: a good offense

To play position football, you back your opponent against his own goal line, play tough defense, wait for a mistake and capitalize on it for the score. Oregon State's kicking game was one of the best in the nation. With it OSU played position football.

Len Frketich, Dan Espalin, and Steve Clark kept the pressure on their opponents by forcing them to start offensive thrusts deep in their own territory. When the mistake did come, one of these three often had a hand in capitalizing on it.

Frketich led the team in punting with a 40.9 average. His long and high spirals gave his teammates time for punt coverage. OSU's opponents averaged only 9.3 yards on punt returns. A man with a 28-yard punting average would appear to be a poor kicker. Dan Espalin was an exception. He specialized in the squib kick. Whenever OSU bogged down between their opponents' 35 and 50-yard lines, Espalin would drop back and sail the ball to the ten or deeper. Against Washington, he placed the ball within the 5-yard line 3 times. Steve Clark led the team in scoring and played less than a minute in doing so. Steve handled the kickoffs, field goals, and extra points. His toe meant the difference in four games. His field goals against Washington and Idaho produced 2 and 3 point victory spreads. His greatest moment came with 54 seconds to play against Oregon. His all-important extra point put the Beavers in the Rose Bowl.

Sophomore Brothers dominates offense

Sophomore quarterback Paul Brothers dominated the offensive show, as he became the second greatest offensive machine in OSU history. He passed for 1037 yards and 7 touchdowns. He also led the rushers with 451 yards and 5 more touchdowns.

Behind the protection of All-Coast tackle Rich Koeper, Brothers opened up the offensive attack with passes to Olvin Moreland, Bob Grim and Len Frketich. Moreland hauled in 35 passes for 428 yards. Cliff Watkins rushed for 340 yards while team captain Booker Washington added 302. Charlie Shaw completed the Beaver ground arsenal, banging out a 4.3 rushing average.

Captain Washington, as well as being a fine runner, was one of the finest blocking backs at OSU in recent years. The successful execution of his blocking assignment (right clearing the way for Brothers) helped the offense move throughout the season.

Oregon State's offense began slow, picked up the pace and then fell off again. With half of the season completed the most productive Beaver Saturday was 14 points. Fortunately, the defense was tight and OSU went into the Syracuse game 4-1. During the next three weeks, the Beavers pushed across 79 points in their greatest offensive show of the season. Syracuse brought its 8th ranked team to Portland and met a rude reception. Syracuse game films had shown a gaping chink in their defensive armor. Their defensive halfback flowed with OSU's man in motion. Brothers sent his tailback in motion to the left and swung Watkins into the vacated area on the right. He hit Cliff for two quick touchdowns. These easy long strikes snowballed into a stunning 31-13 Oregon State victory. The following two Saturdays, OSU rolled over Washington State and Indiana by 24-7 and 24-14 scores. In their next three games, the Beavers slumped into their early season ineffectiveness. They produced only 21 points and lost two games, including the ill-fated Rose Bowl.

Booker Washington and Dick Ruhl were team captains in the real sense of the word. They did an outstanding job leading the offense and defense. Booker scored the game tying touchdown against Oregon. His score put the Beavers into the Rose Bowl. Ruhl grabbed two interceptions from his linebacking post, including a game saving theft against Washington.

Basketball

Valenti guides Beavers to 16-10 in first year

First year Coach Paul Valenti's Beavers surprised most of their followers in 1965 by posting a 16-10 record and a strong fourth in AAWU league action with 7-7 record.

After losing their first game to highly rated San Francisco, the Beavers came charging back to win three of four contests before the Far West Classic. In the classic, Oregon State dumbfounded the basketball world by raking the title for the ninth straight time. The final game of the tournament saw OSU play one of the finest ball control games ever witnessed by Oregon State fans. They defeated Tennessee 48-27 to win the team title and produced the tourney's outstanding player in Jim Jarvis.

OSU posted an excellent home record of 9-3, and were 7-7 on the road. In the 10 defeats the Orange and Black suffered, only four could be considered one-sided losses. Two of these came at the hands of NCAA champion UCLA.

The 1965 Beavers won the Chancellor's Trophy, symbolic of state basketball supremacy, for the 12th time in 13 years. They were the leading defensive team on the coast, limiting their opponents to 60 points per game.

A fine start in a new era

A new era in Oregon State basketball began December 1, 1964, when the Beavers played their first game of the year. Oregon State had a new basketball coach in 36 years—Paul Valenti.

Coach Valenti moved into his new position after 17 years as Slat's Gill's assistant and four years of collegiate basketball for Oregon State. His assignment was anything but a breeze. Pre-season prognosticators relegated his team to last place in the AAWU race and few armchair coaches were willing to disagree. Valenti had other ideas. Combining the brilliant talents of Jim Jarvis and the leaping ability of OSU's first Negro player, Charlie White, Coach Valenti forged an unexpected 16-10 record, finished 4th in the AAWU, and kept Beaver basketball's two most precious possessions, the Far West Classic Championship and the Chancellor's Trophy.

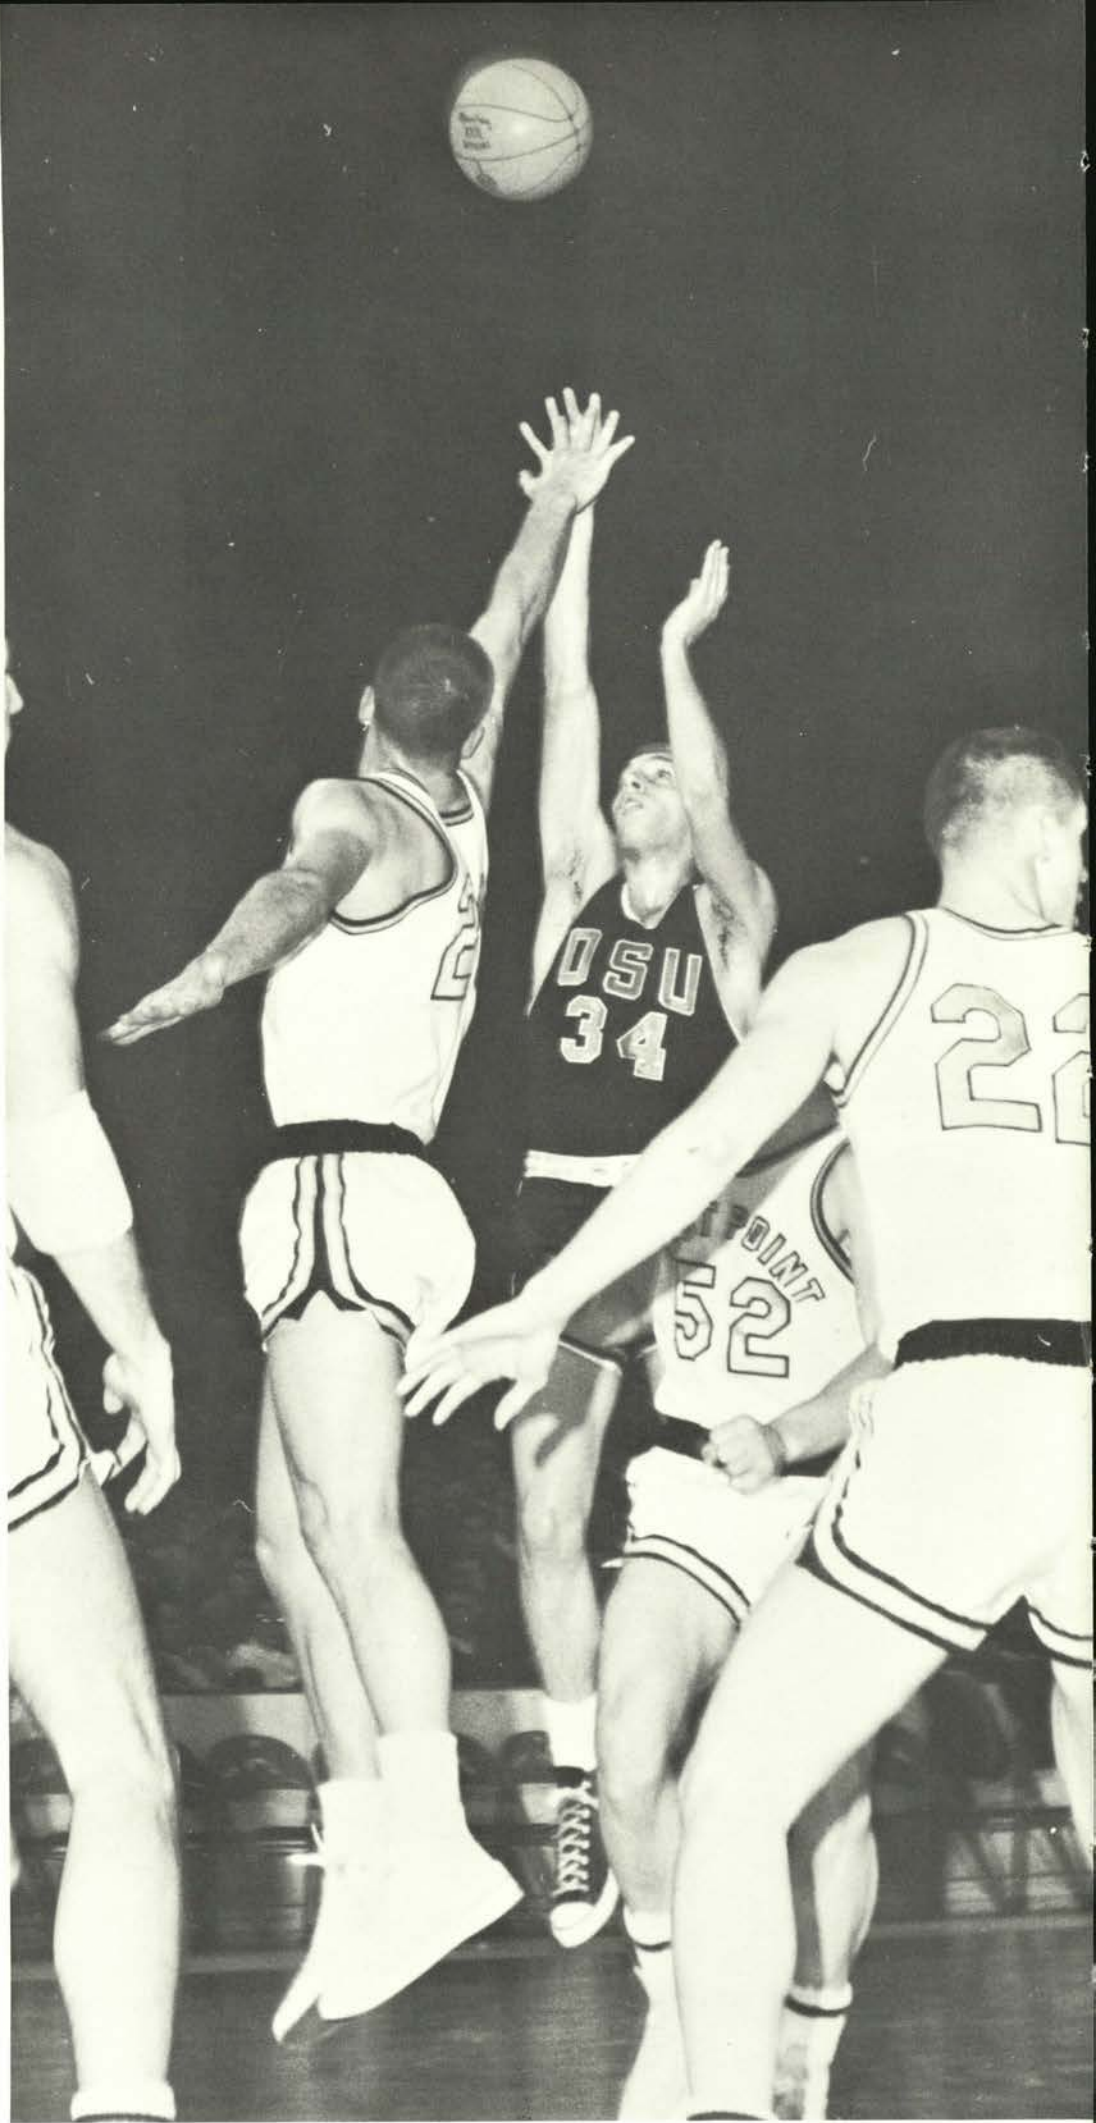

New Coach Paul Valenti (throughout the season) restrains himself over a questionable call. The ever-present towel helped Coach Valenti avoid the technical foul on the bench.

Rick Whelan (right), scored 13 points in each of the Army and Northwestern games to give Jarvis added scoring support. Aggressive board play (above) had much to do with the unexpected Classic triumph.

9th Straight Far West Classic Championship

Oregon State has monopolized the Far West Classic ever since its inception 9 years ago. Many times other teams have been the favorites but always the Beavers have risen to the occasion and always had Slat Gill been their coach. This year brought a new coach and one of those underdog OSU teams.

The first game pitted Oregon State against Army. Behind most of the way, the Beavers rallied to tie the game and send it into overtime. Dave Fox produced one of those clutch performances reminiscent of earlier underdog years by scoring 10 of the 11 points in the extra period, and OSU won 65-64. The Northwestern game saw all 5 starters score in double figures. Jarvis' 16 led the team to a 67-65 squeaker.

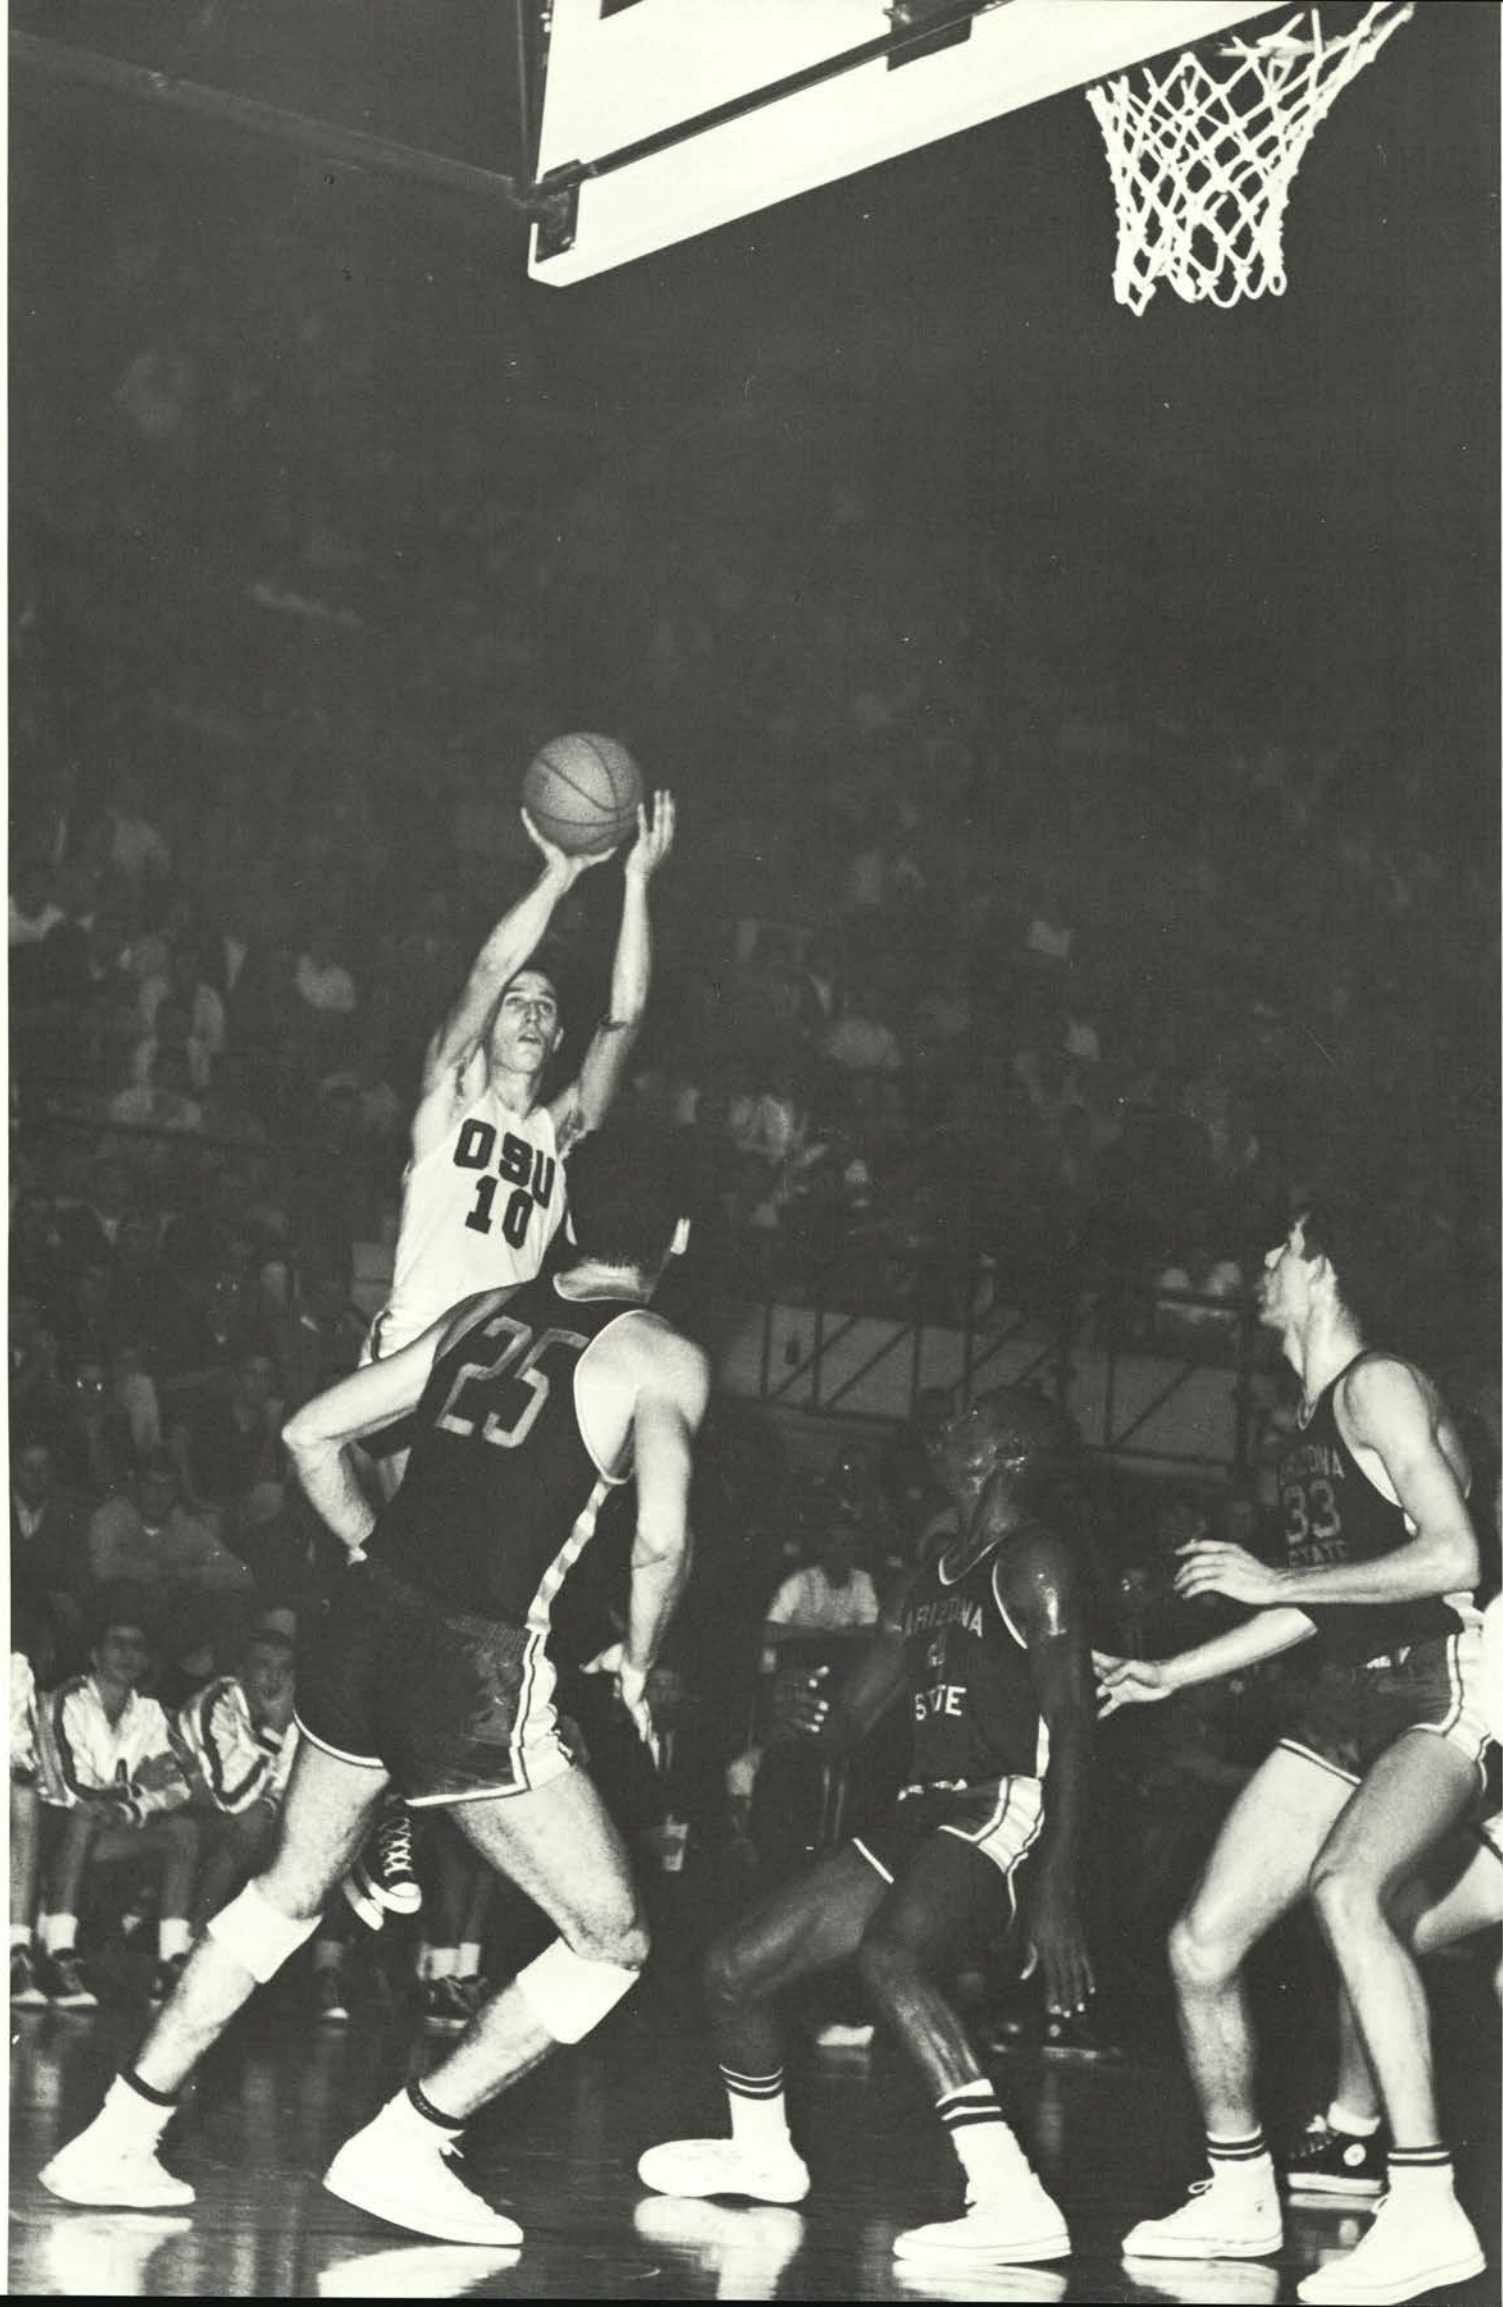

The final game against Tennessee was one of the most spectacular in Classic history. Sinking over 60% of their shots, Oregon State swallowed the Southwestern Conference champs 48-27. For the third straight game Jarvis led all scorers with 14. Fox followed with 11. The defense was so complete that All-American center A. W. Davis of Tennessee could score only 7 points. The unbelievable score at half time was 22-8.

Jarvis made the all-tourney team for the second year and was voted the classic's outstanding player.

Jarvis, All-American

Renowned as one of the nation's finest ball-handlers, Oregon State captain Jim Jarvis was a mainstay of the Beaver offense throughout his OSU career. His statistical accomplishments placed him fourth on the all-time and single season scoring tables, with 1,142 points and 548 points respectively. He was the highest scoring guard in Oregon State history.

At the season's end, Jarvis was named to the Helms Foundation All-American team. He was on every All-Coast team including Look Magazine's District 8 NCAA all-star team. Jim played in the East-West All-Star game at Lexington, Kentucky, and scored 10 points to help his team to a victory.

When OSU needed points most desperately, Jarvis was the man they called on, and he seldom disappointed them. Jim reeled off 10 straight points against Oregon to insure the safety of the Chancellor's Trophy. Throughout the season, Jarvis was in a head-to-head battle with UCLA'S All-American Gail Goodrich for the AAWU scoring title. Going into the last two games against Oregon, Jarvis trailed Goodrich by 10 points. Jim ended his fine season and career in true competitive and All-American form by scoring 60 points against the Ducks. His performance snatched the scoring title from Mr. Goodrich and nailed down the AAWU free-throw accuracy title.

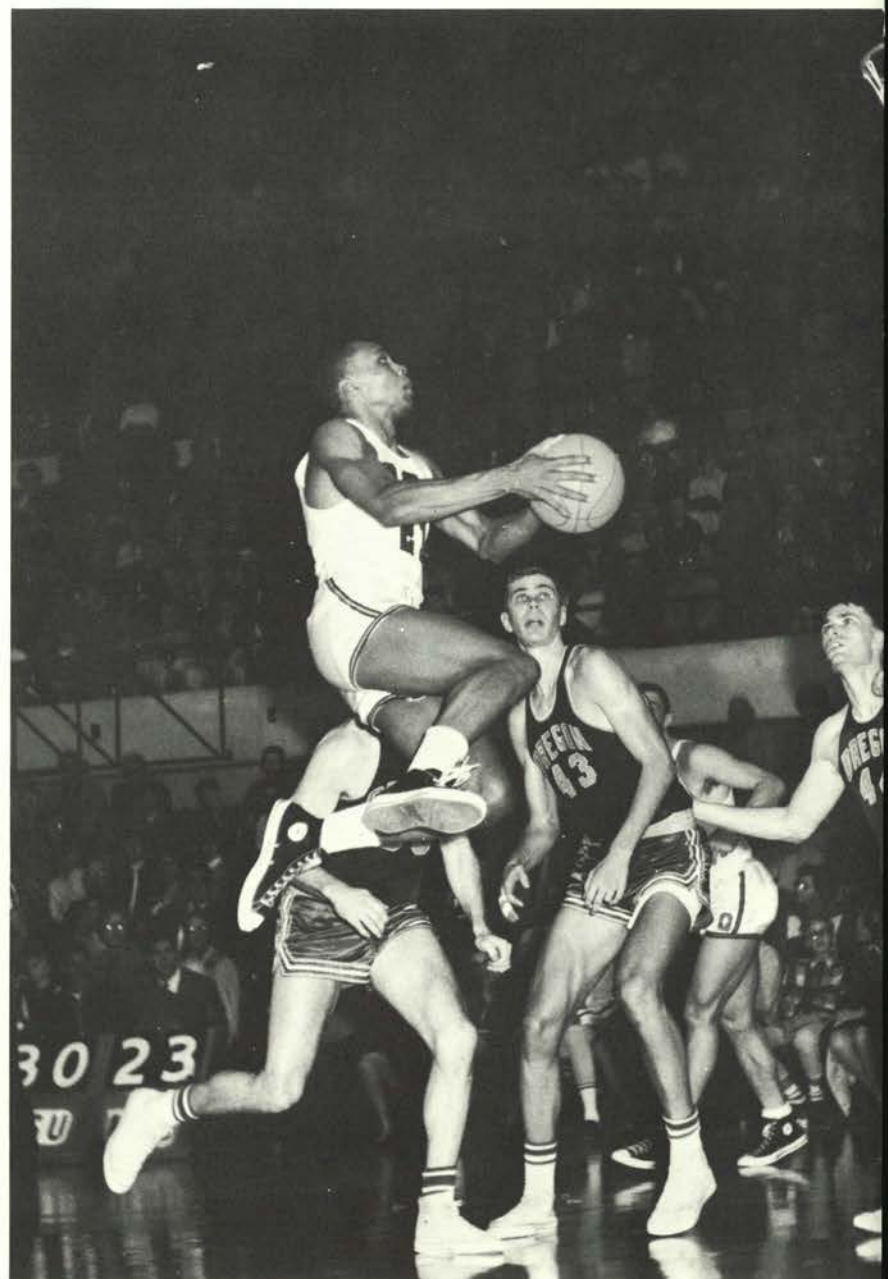

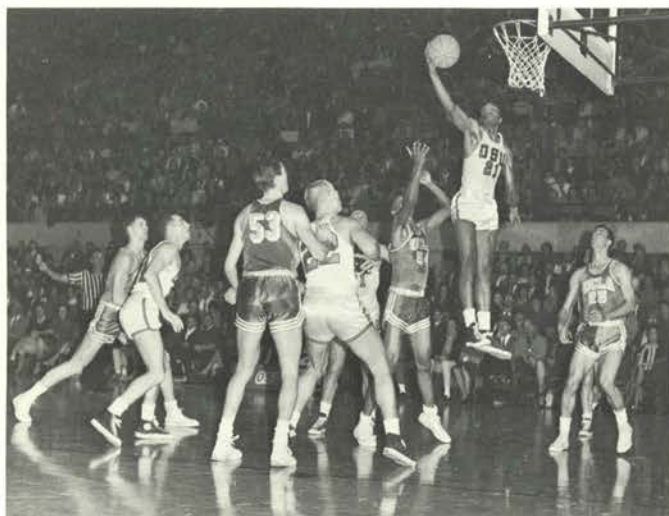

Jarvis was the complete basketball player. His arsenal of shots ranged from the jump shot (far left) to a hook. He was a quick defensive player and this quickness rattled his opponents into costly ball handling errors. Jarvis was also the third leading rebounder on the team (far below), a great tribute to his hustle. He was a great competitor. His series against Oregon and the Ducks' Nick Jones (below) in which he averaged 26 points per game is proof of this competitive attitude.

Ed Fredenberg and Charlie White added height to the OSU team. At 6'6" and 6'4" these two led the team in rebounding. Fredenberg (far right) won the USC game with this hook shot with 5 seconds remaining. White amazed everyone with his remarkable jumping ability in scoring (right) and rebounding (below).

Newcomers White, Fredenberg add needed height

Two newcomers to Oregon State basketball helped make the season the success that it was. Junior transfer Charlie White and sophomore Ed Fredenberg cracked the starting lineup at the season's start and held it through the 26-game year.

Throughout the season White and Fredenberg kept the Beavers from being slaughtered on the backboards averaging 14 rebounds per game between them.

White amazed OSU fans with his dramatic rebounding and soon became the crowd favorite in Corvallis. He led the team in rebounding with 183 and was second to Jarvis in scoring, averaging 9.6 points per game. Charlie provided OSU fans with the most spectacular play of the season when, on a steal of the ball from an Oregon player, he broke down the middle of the court and stuffed the ball.

The respect and ability Charlie White brought to the Oregon State team earned him the Attitude and Leadership Trophy earned previously by Jarvis and Terry Baker.

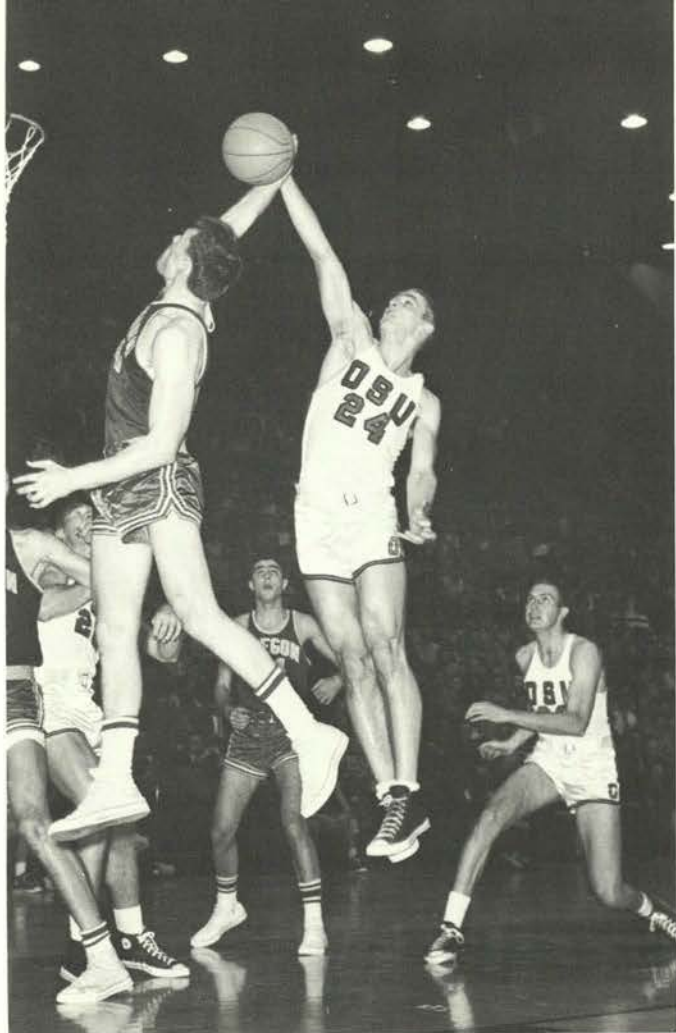

Ed Fredenberg was the biggest surprise of the season. Filling the shoes of graduated Mel Counts, Ed was second to White in rebounding and third in team scoring. He was extremely accurate from both the foul line and the floor. He led the AAWU in field goal percentage with a .545 mark and wound up fifth in free throw accuracy. His best shot was a feather soft hook. He won the Southern California game with this shot with only 5 seconds showing on the clock. Ed Fredenberg and Charlie White added height to the team. At 6'6" and 6'4" these two led the team in rebounding. Fredenberg (far right) won the USC game with this hook shot with 5 seconds remaining. White amazed everyone with his remarkable jumping ability in scoring (right) and rebounding (below).

Nine for two

A basketball team has five men and the other two positions in this year's squad were alternately filled by nine men. Rick Whelan, Dave Fox, Terry Dreisewerd, Ray Carlile, Scott Eaton, Larry French, Jim Kraus, Jeff Cudworth, and Maury Stevens all had roles to play in this surprising basketball season. Dreisewerd was the most accurate field goal shooter on the team and was fourth in rebounds with 70 retrieves. Whelan was one of the starting five early in the season and was the fourth leading scorer averaging 6.9 points per game. Fox put on one of the most clutch performances in Far West Classic history during Oregon State's first game against Army. The game ended in a deadlock. During the overtime period, Fox made 10 of the 12 points scored by OSU.

Beavers are AAWU Champs

Depth and individual excellence were key words in Oregon State's 1965 Wrestling team that went 14-2-1 in dual meet competition. Coach Dale Thomas' grapplers had not only to overcome their opponents, but also an injury jinx that crippled many of the Beavers' top performers throughout the season. Not until the last match of the regular season against Wyoming were the Beavers able to field their strongest lineup. This injury problem forced Coach Thomas to utilize 18 men in 8 weight divisions and enabled Portland State to end Thomas' remarkable record of never having lost to a West Coast team.

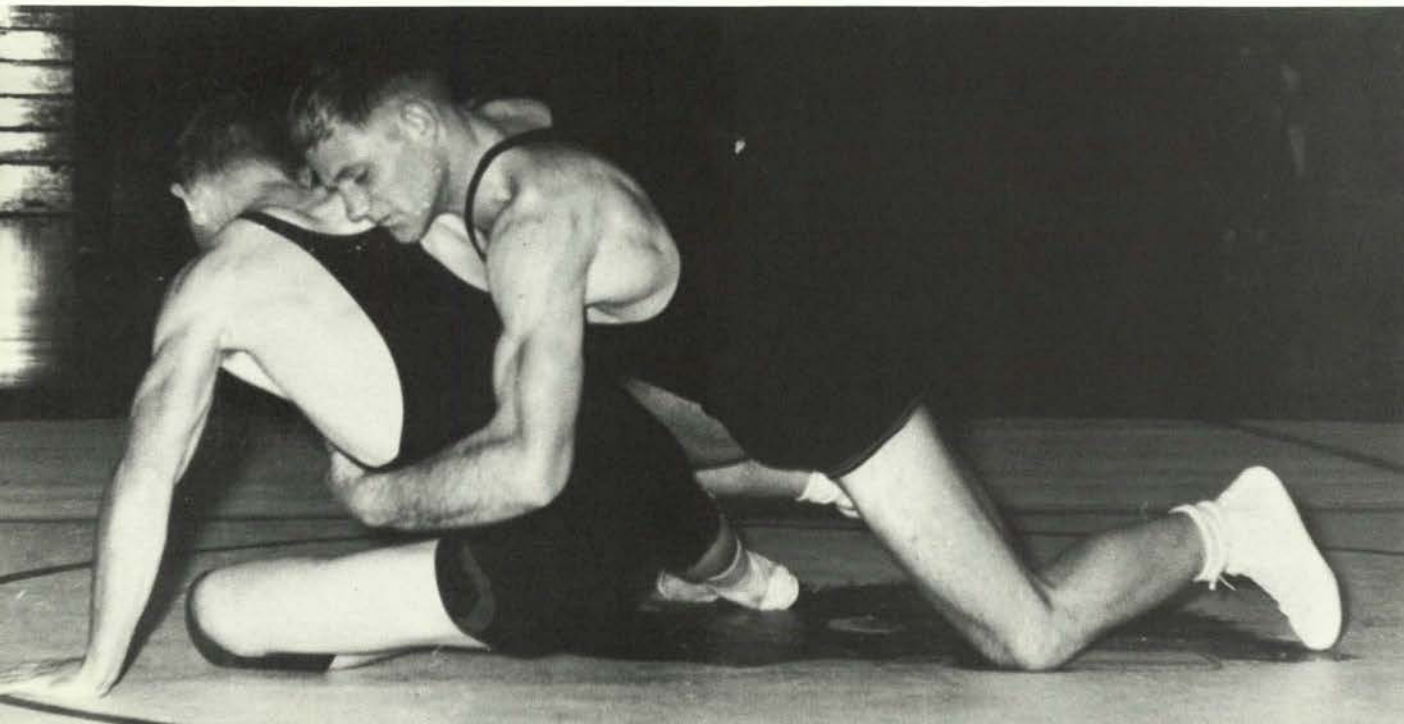

Ignoring their injury crutch, Oregon State overwhelmed their West Coast opponents in the AAWU Championships and finished 7th at the NCAA Championships. "There isn't one kid that didn't wrestle well down there." Coach Thomas' words best describe the OSU AAWU victory. The Beavers garnered 5 championships, two runnersup, two thirds, and a fourth. They also came back with two tournament records—most team points, 103, and most falls, 13 in 26 matches. To add icing to the victory cake, they also sported the meet's Outstanding Wrestler, Len Kauffman.

There is only one word for Len Kauffman, FANTASTIC.

A fall or pin is worth 5 points to a team. In 22 collegiate matches, Kauffman scored 110 points, 22 pins. He started his senior year in great fashion, winning the Washington Invitational Championships at 167 pounds for the third straight year. His three pins gave him the Outstanding Wrestler trophy. No collegian came close to him during the regular season. At the AAWU Championships, Kauffman again pinned his way to a Championship, this time at 177 pounds. He also garnered another Outstanding Wrestler trophy in leading his team to the coast title. Len was the only grappler west of the Rocky Mountains to be listed on the All-American team. It was his third such honor in his three years of wrestling.

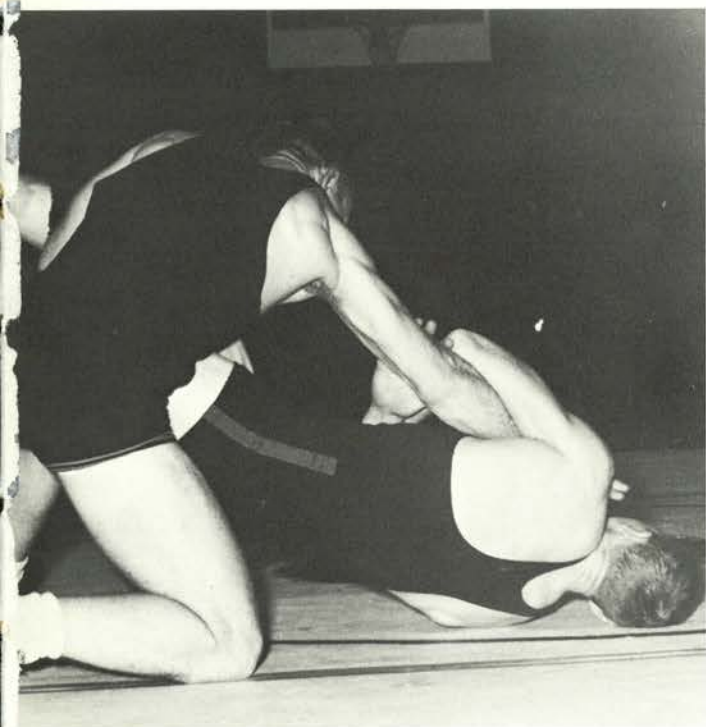

At the NCAA, Len finished second at 167 pounds to boost Oregon State to its 7th place finish. He scored 14 of the Beavers' 17 points. Kauffman romped into the finals with three pins in four preliminary matches. 25-year-old Greg Ruth of Oklahoma ended Kauffman's fantastic win string of 32 matches during the 1965 season. In the semifinals, Kauffman scored the most spectacular pin of the season. He exploded with a front whizzer and sent previously undefeated Martin Strayer of Penn State to the showers in 2:12 of the first period. It was the fastest pin of the round.

But for one move, Kauffman would have been a national champion instead of runnerup. Trailing Ruth by 2 points, the Beaver All-American tried a cradle that had pinned his quarterfinal opponent. Ruth rolled him over for a reversal and predicament to take a commanding lead. Kauffman kept after the Sooner star so aggressively in the last round that Ruth was whistled down for stalling three times. The Sooner's lead held up for a 10-6 victory.

All-American Kauffman finishes 2nd at NCAA

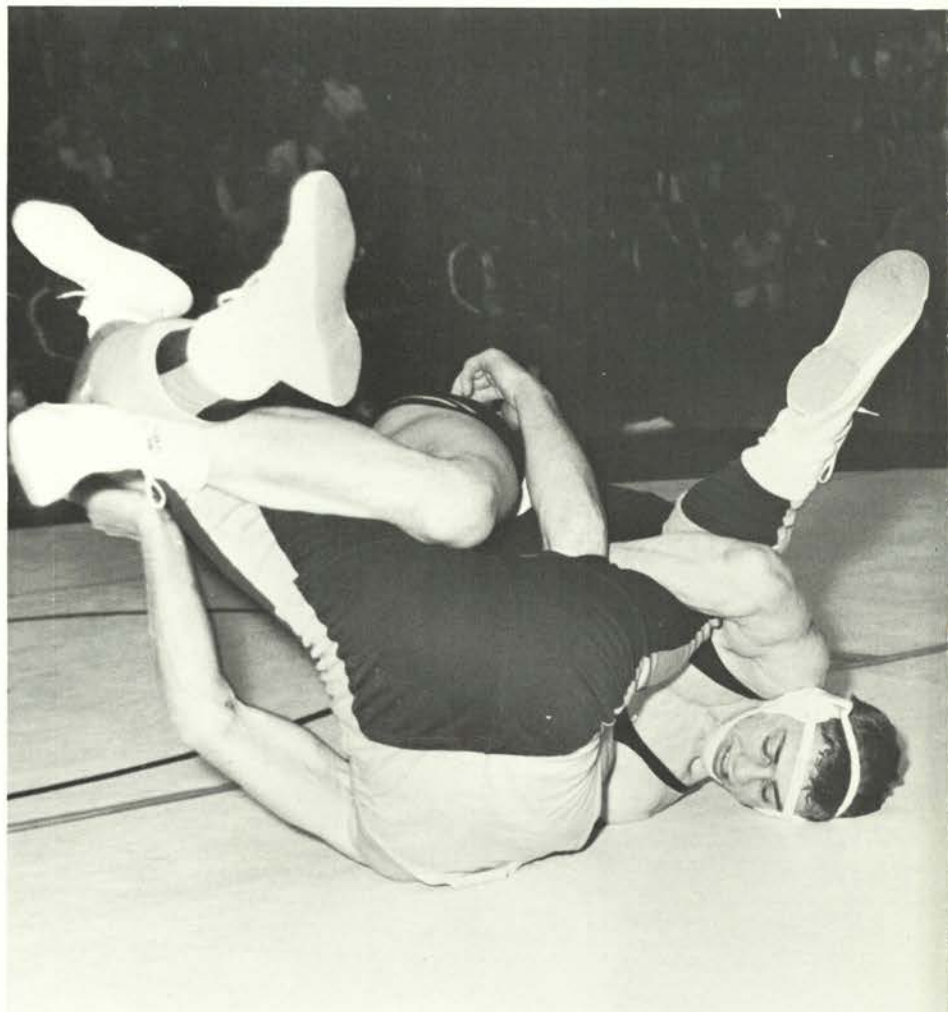

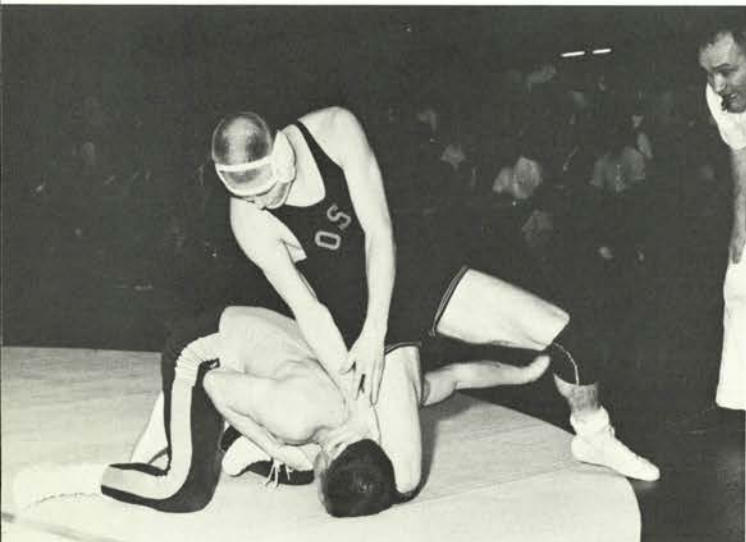

Kauffman generated excitement. The inevitable fact of a pin thrilled spectators and brought new attendance records. The secret to his success was aggressiveness and continual pursuit. Always thinking, always wrestling, Kauffman switched from position to position, feeling, waiting for the one opening to pin. Len worked for the fall and got it in 25 matches.

Senior Gary Head (below), and sophomore Don Dykstra (right) were riddled with injuries most of the season yet finished strong in the AAWU.

Kauffman and Ron Iwasaki, Oregon State's fine sophomore, were the only two Beavers to weather the injury storm. Iwasaki compiled a 9-5-2 record and capped his season with a surprising AAWU championship at 115 pounds. According to Coach Thomas, he was one of the most improved wrestlers on the coast. Oregon State presented one of the most fearsome 1-2 heavyweight punches in the nation. The only problem was in choosing which of Hank Schenk and Art Makinster was that 1 or 2. Schenk at 191 pounds was undefeated in 7 matches including 4 pins and a Coast championship. Makinster dropped one of 9 matches and settled for second at heavyweight at the AAWU. OSU's third undefeated wrestler, Lee Sprague pinned 2 of his 8 opponents. A midseason injury that sidelined him for a month didn't stop him from copping the AAWU 137 pound crown. Jim Quinn and Don Dykstra wrestled only 8 matches between them yet finished strong enough to garner a championship and runnerup at the AAWU.

Two of Oregon State's three undefeated wrestlers were Lee Sprague (left), and Hank Schenk (below). Both men won AAWU Championships.

Co-Captain Jerry Wille (above) became Oregon State's first All-American, placing 7th in his breast stroke specialty.

Swimming

Plagued by sickness and minor yet hobbling injuries, Coach Bill Winkler's swimming team faced their largest and most difficult dual-meet season in Oregon State history. In a nine-week season, the team met every AAWU team except Southern California and competed in fourteen meets.

Although posting an unimpressive 5-9 won-lost season, the mermen set five new school records and sent two swimmers to the nationals. One of these men became an All-American.

Doug Huey set new records in the 50 and 100 yard free-style while Jerry Wille lowered the OSU 100 and 200 yard breast stroke records. Gregor Greg and Rick Wood joined Wille and Huey to set a new 400 yard medley relay record. Huey and Wille represented Oregon State at the nationals. Wille stormed to a 7th place in his event and became Oregon State's first ever All-American swimmer.

Doug Huey (below) set two OSU records and qualified for the National Championships.

OSU's top backstroke man, Gregor Greig (far above) and Rick Wood (above) helped set an OSU record in the 400 yard medley relay record.

TRACK

Beavers make it 3 straight over Oregon

Oregon State had its most successful track season in 1964. Coach Sam Bell's spikers set one American record, three collegiate records, provided Oregon State with its first Olympian since 1948 and defeated Oregon twice.

Following early season victories over California and Washington, the Beavers were stymied by a series of injuries to key personnel that was to haunt them through a month's competition. May 2 brought a victory over arch-rival Oregon by an unbelievably close 73-72 score. At the California Relays, a Beaver sprint medley relay team of Butch Lumby, Lyn Eves, Roger Herbert and Morgan Groth set a collegiate record of 3:17.5 as Groth ran a 1:46.4 880 leg. The injury jinx riddled the Beavers again and Oregon trounced their Northern Division foes at the Far West Championships.

May 30 brought together the two best dual meet teams in the nation. The result of this meeting was the greatest dual meet in OSU history. The story of this season and that dual follows.

Success in track and field is a uniquely two-pronged endeavor. The striving for individual excellence and national acclaim forms one fork. However, the real importance of track in the Northwest lies in the dual meet. Often the difference between victory and defeat boils down to the question of who can muster that last ounce of strength or accelerate those last few yards; in short, who is the best competitor.

Right, top to bottom: Faces of OSU's finest group of competitors show all the pain (Morgan Groth), exertion (Lahcen Samsam), and strain (Butch Lumby and Jan Underwood) that came forth on that May 30 against the University of Oregon.

Six years ago, Oregon State had not won a dual track meet in 15 years and had lost 14 straight meets to Oregon. Now, OSU is a proud track power owning one world record, two American records, four National Champions, and three straight victories over Oregon.

The man who took over the reins and who is directly responsible for this improvement is Coach Sam Bell. Every school record is held by a Bell-coached athlete. Last spring Bell was named head track coach of the United States team that faced the Soviet Union.

Captain Eves inches out victory

The Beavers' leading Broad-Jumper, Gregg Macy, and school discus record holder Lou Fasano (176'5½") started the Beaver scoring parade with easy victories in their events. Pole-Vaulter Terry Cox, who earlier tied record holder Marv Radloff with a 15 ft. season's best, gained an important second place. The stage was set for the first of a series of close, meet-decisive victories on the track.

The 440 pitted Ducks Gorden Payne and Al O'Leary against Beaver captain Lyn Eves. Into the final 110 yards, Payne held a five yard lead over Eves with O'Leary lurking on Eves' shoulder. Making a determined run at Payne, O'Leary pulled Eves with him until the three were stride for stride 7 yards from the tape. Converted sprinter Eves showed his mettle as a competitor, spurting to a three inch victory and an early Beaver lead. This closest victory of the afternoon's competition was to mark a trend for every close race of the afternoon.

Lou Fasano (left) led 1-2 Beaver sweep against Ducks in discus. Oregon's O'Leary (below) looks on flabbergasted as Lyn Eves squeaks in for 440 victory.

Olympian Samsam leads 1-2 sweep

Lahcen Samsam was a Moroccan javelin thrower. At Oregon State on a state department scholarship, Lahcen switched to the shot-put and went to work in the weight room. His weight jumped 45 pounds and his distance improved 17 feet. Samsam steadily improved during the season, winning the Far West Relays and Far West Championships. He later finished 7th in the NCAA and represented his country in the Olympic Games.

His best performance came during this second Oregon dual. Successive puts of 58', 58' 5½", and 58' 10" not only successively raised the OSU standard but, coupled with Don Roberts' second place effort, gave OSU an important 1-2 sweep of the event.

Tom Wyatt, Gregg Macy (above) and Rusty Brown (below) gave Oregon State the best trio of hurdlers on any team in the U.S. These three had the 2nd, 4th, and 7th fastest collegiate intermediate times in the nation. Wyatt set school records in the highs (14.0) and both the 330 yd. (36.4) and 440 yd. (51.0) intermediates. He advanced to the Final Olympic Trials before bowing out of the Tokyo race.

Fastest Beavers Sweep Ducks

In the highs, Wyatt and Macy faced Duck Marcial Hunter. All three were off fast at the gun. By the second hurdle, Wyatt and Macy began to pull away, and at the tape, they were .1 second apart as Wyatt set his school record. Rusty Brown joined Tom and Gregg for a clean sweep in the intermediates.

Wyatt, Macy and Brown contributed 17 out of a possible 17 points against the Ducks and finished 1st, 3rd, and 4th in season scoring.

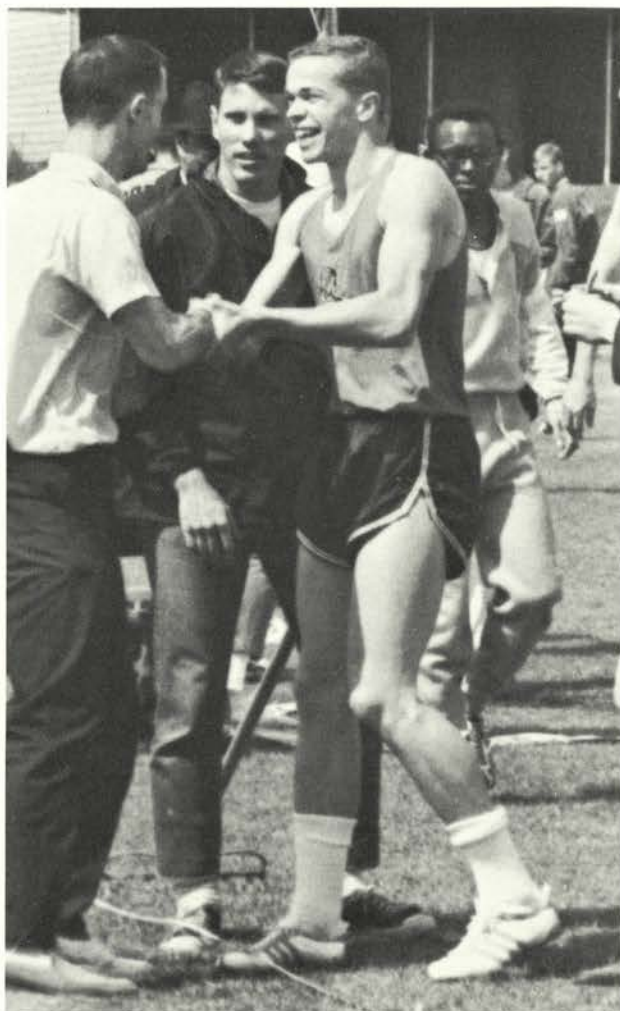

Morgan Groth (above) raises arms in joy as he defeats arch-rival San Romani.

Groth sets school, national marks; wins NCAA

Morgan Groth is the best middle distance runner in U.S. history. His combined 880 and mile times of 1:46.4 and 3:57.9 are faster than any other American athlete and only second best in the world. Morgan injured a tendon early in the year and lost several early mile decisions to Oregon's Archie San Romani. On May 30th, San Romani and Groth, the two best collegiate milers in the nation, were stride for stride with 110 yards to go. Those final 110 yards saw Morgan unleash a finishing drive that left Archie 15 yards in his wake. This same tactic brought Groth his second consecutive NCAA mile, 1500 meter championship and the 800 meter crown at the final Olympic Trials. At Tokyo, Morgan reinjured his tendon and was unable to qualify into the finals. His 880 and 800 meter (1:45.7) times were the second fastest times ever run and were both American and junior world records.

The two-mile produced a macabre three man OSU dropout. Groth, Gary Baker, and Dale Story, collegiate leader at 3 miles (13:57), stepped off the track, leaving all the points to the Ducks.

The triple jump is a new event to collegiate track. Since it is run near the end of the meet, it is often overlooked by the spectator. It was not overlooked in 1964. In both Oregon duals, the results of the triple jump decided the chance for OSU victory. To win the meet, the Beavers needed a 1-2 finish in the triple jump and a relay victory. In both meets, Oregon held the early triple jump lead. With three jumps left, Terry Monroe took the lead. With one round remaining, Oregon still had the winning 3 points of second place. OSU had a competitor equal to the occasion. In both duals, Mike Kelly produced season best performances on his last jump to snatch certain victory from Oregon. Only the mile relay remained.

“Tiger” Underwood finishes Ducks

Balance is essential for a successful dual meet team. However, there are times when victory hangs on the performance of one man. Many teams don't have that valuable breed of man, 10 percent appendages and 90 percent heart, that can assure your victory. Oregon State did. Throughout the season, Jan Underwood turned in tigerish performances, as he became the fastest collegiate half-miler (1:48.4). He won his specialty against San Romani and was pitted against Ray Van Asten on the last leg of the meet deciding Mile Relay.

Van Asten had been Underwood's personal nemesis since high school. Until the first Oregon dual, "Undies" had never defeated Van Asten in a major race. There was some doubt as to the relay's outcome, except to Jan. Van Asten took a 4-yard lead at the baton exchange. The lead dwindled to nothing at 220 yards. Coming out of the last turn, Jan made his final drive. Straining every muscle in his body, Undies threw himself 6 in. in front of Van Asten at the tape. Victory was Jan's; victory was Oregon State's.

Jan had a disappointing post dual meet season. The NCAA favorite, Jan was disqualified on a controversial cutting in charge. He tripped and fell at the Olympic trials. It was a fitting tribute to a great competitor and athlete when Jan was awarded All-American honors despite not placing in any national meets.

OSU	U OF O

Coach Ralph Coleman has been on the Oregon State baseball scene 32 years and has produced one of the best records in the nation. His teams have won 594 games while losing only 262. During Coley's reign, OSU has been on top of the Northern Division eight times. In 1952, Coach Coleman guided his team to a NCAA regional crown. This year Oregon State finished 25-11 on the season and 3rd place in the Northern Division.

Baseball

Coach Coleman (left) seems to be scowling at pitcher Steve Clark. He shouldn't be. Steve gained All-Conference honors for his mound prowess and actually led the team in hitting.

Top pitching, hitting bring impressive non-conference wins

Oregon State's non-conference record indicated another successful season. In 20 games, the Beavers dropped but 3. A combination of strong pitching and hearty batting netted Oregon State some very lopsided victories. So strong were the Beavers at the plate that no less than 11 men batted over .300 in racking up football like point totals of 10, 19, and 20 points. Andy Cleveland, alternating catching chores with Morrell Crary, sported a team leading .459 batting average and drove in 13 runs. Veeder South, Jim Jarvis and Frank Peters averaged .380, .368, and .388 respectively. These three drove in exactly one-third of Oregon State's non-conference points.

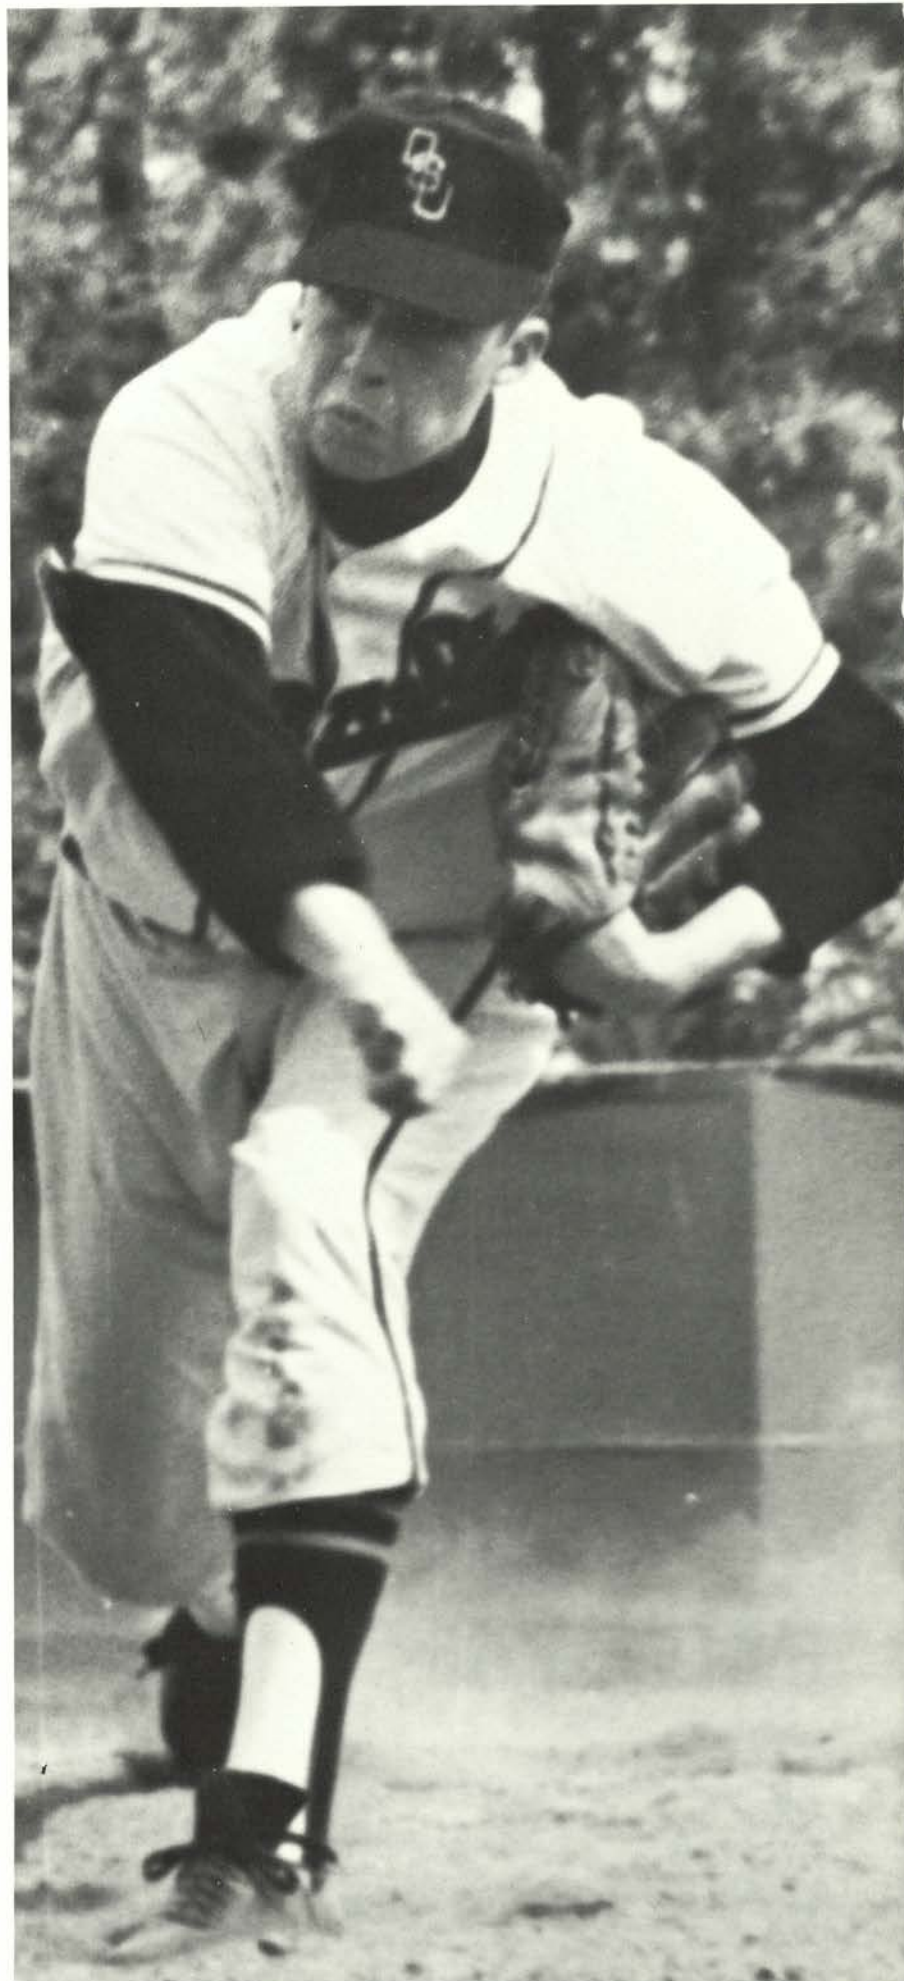

Steve Clark, Tom Hobbs, Denny Straub and Wayne Swango handled most of the pitching chores during non-conference play. The pitching was so tight that Swango, the least effective of the four, had a 3-0 won-lost record and boasted a nifty 1.33 earned run average. Steve Clark pitched 30 innings, struck out 26 men, won three while losing none and finished play with a great .90 ERA. Straub led the team in strikeouts, retiring 44 men swinging.

Nightmare Palouse trip ruins Beavers

Northern Division play saw a disastrous Palouse trip ruin a championship. The Beavers kept up their torrid pace through their first eight conference games. As they prepared for the always tough swing through the Palouse hills of Washington and Idaho they supported a 6-2 league record and first place. What happened to them on this trip no one would have guessed. In six games against Idaho, Washington State and Washington, Oregon State could not gain a single victory. The pitching bogged down, allowing Washington State to score 19 and 11 points against them. The hitting produced only 1 and 2 runs per game. No longer proud league champions, the Beavers returned home for a split with Oregon and a third place Conference finish.

Peters, Jarvis and South again led the hitters. The toughness of the Northern division is evidenced by Jarvis' drop in batting average from non-conference play of .368 to conference play at .250.

Steve Clark continued his fine pitching. He won 4 games, lost 3, and ended with a fine 1.71 ERA. Steve actually led the team in hitting during the games he played. His .333 batting average was the only .300 figure on the team. Denny Straub again provided able support, striking out 53 in 53 innings pitched. He won 4 games. These two pitchers provided Oregon State with all their Northern division wins.

Tennis

Coach Harris ends 20 successful years with 14-4 record

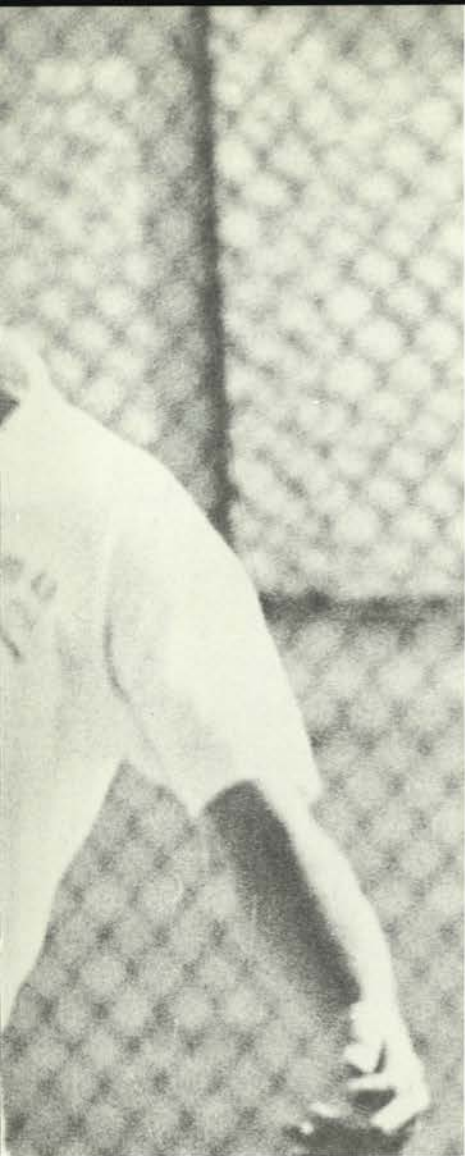

Tennis is a minor sport. It receives very little financial aid and yet Oregon State's tennis program has been one of the best on the West Coast. Much of the credit for this success must go to Coach Irwin Harris. Coach Harris ended his final coaching season with a fine 14-4 won-loss record. In his 20 years at the helm, his teams have accumulated 154 victories in 207 matches. He has defeated Oregon 30 out of 37 times.

This year's team placed second at the Far West Tournament. Senior Jerry McElroy was the number one man while Larry Eickworth proved the most consistent.

Rugby

Team captain Scott Miller (right) showed marked improvement over his earlier years and provided great team leadership. (Below) Action in a scrum is often tough.

Ruggers are conference co-champs

1965 was the year that Rugby really came into its own. This "minor sport" had 60 men vying for the 15 available positions and drew crowds of up to 3,000.

Coach Murray Dawson's Beavers posted a 10-2 season record and a 3-1 conference mark to tie with the University of British Columbia for the conference championship.

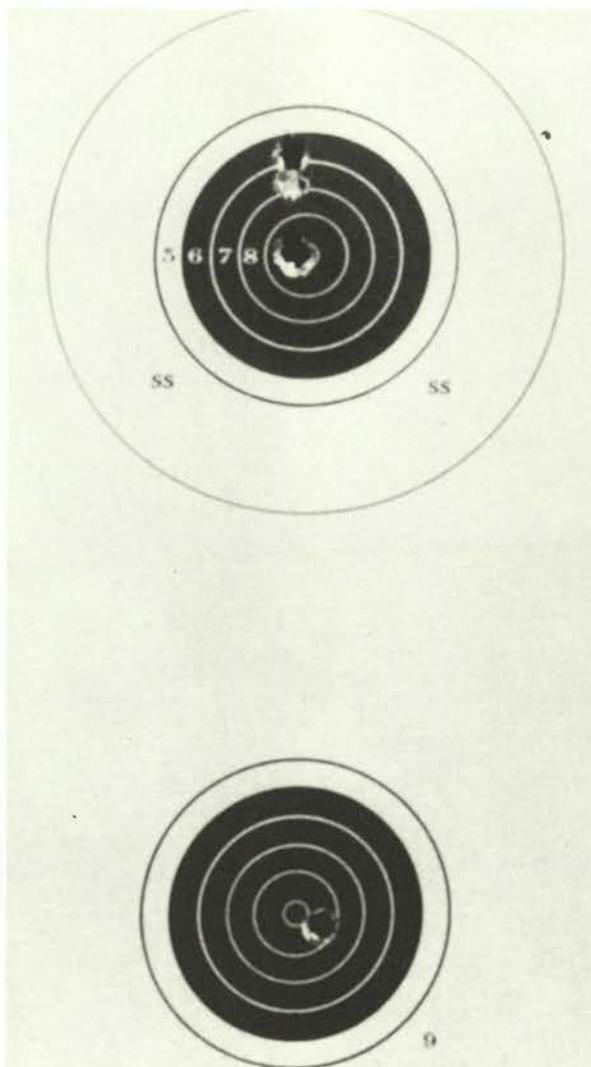

Oregon State opened the season in great fashion, placing well at the Monterey Tournament in California. Their only loss was to eventual winner, Stanford, in the semifinals of the 18 team contest. The Rugger's only other loss came at the hands of the British Columbia team in the 12 team Portland Tournament at the season's close.

Team captain Scott Miller showed great team leadership throughout the season. Wayne Valley was the leading scorer and Loyd Chapman was cited by coach Dawson as the most consistent player.

The 1965 Varsity Rifle Team had another successful season. Led by All-Americans Allen Bates and Alan Dapp, they won the Willamette Valley Rifle League with an 8-2 won-lost record. In the National Intercollegiate Championships, the team had a score of 1158 out of a possible 1200 and placed high in the rankings.

Rook sports

Fall

Football: The Rook footballers enjoyed a 2-2 season while splitting one and one with the Oregon Frosh. The team was quick and powerful. Fullback Fred Schweer and Jeff Hardrath helped the Rooks in the line and backfield respectively. Quarterback and defensive safety Bob Mayes was voted the team's outstanding player.

Cross-Country: This year's crop of freshman Cross-Country runners has proven to be the best in OSU's history. The team was led by Dave Olcott, Jim Duthie, Les Wellman, and Bob Reiten. The strong Rook runners defeated both the freshman and varsity teams of the University of Portland, Lewis and Clark and Portland State, while losing to the University of Oregon Frosh.

Bill Bonser was at bat 40 times and got 16 hits for a .400 average, while McKeown led in runs batted in with a .389 average. The rooks fielded a well talented and strong team, several of its members presently playing on the varsity team.

Tennis: At the main tennis event of the year, the Far West Meet in Pullman, Wash., the Beaver rooks were runners up.

Track: The rook track team had a successful season even though hampered by injuries. Weightman Don Tollefson broke both the freshman shot put and discus records. With a vault of 14 feet 7 inches John Hergenrather broke the pole vault record as did Steve Pancost with a 48.4 four-forty-yard run. Tracy Smith was the nation's second leading two-miler, running a 9:00.1.

WRA: Women's Recreation Association

WRA provides a wide range of social and recreational activities for all OSU women. WRA functions are to stimulate interest and participation in physical activities on both an extramural and intramural level. Through the broad and ever increasing program of activities, WRA offers something of interest for all. WRA activities are coordinated through the WRA council, executive board, and intramural council.

WRA officers and council members are, front row, left to right: Lynn Searcy, Extramural manager, Sandy Potampa, Vice President, Judy Connor, Intramural manager, Miss Shute, advisor, Vicky Malcolm, President, Kathy Clark, Treasurer, and Sue Lare, Secretary. Intramural activities are coordinated through the Intramural house representative council and a system of sports managers—one for each intramural sport offered each term. Competition is on an intra-living group level. Winners receive their name engraved on a revolving trophy for each respective intramural sport. Judy Connor was the intramural manager in charge of coordinating all intramural activities, receiving help from the intramural advisor.

Seahorses, synchronized swimming club, hosted the Northwest Sectional Aquatic Art Festival. Participants represented colleges and swim groups from Oregon, Washington and Idaho. Beulah Gundling, international aquatic artist and author, conducted workshops and performed an award-winning composition. After the festival, Seahorses prepared and presented "The Wonderful World of Water," the annual Moms' weekend water show.

Seahorses, a group of synchronized swimmers, annually present a water show for the public.

In conjunction with Orange "O" the WRA honorary, WRA provides ushers for the home football games and program sales at home basketball games. Seahorses put on a Watershow for Mothers' Weekend and WRA sponsors an open house and a Mothers' Tea during Mothers' Weekend.

General activities

Extramurals--Interest groups

This program offers competition on a higher skill and interest level with matches, sportsdays and playdays arranged with other schools. These activities are coordinated by an extramural manager and the extramural advisor.

Hockey: Always a favorite extramural activity. This interest group played hostess to the Northwest Hockey Conference here this fall.

Bowling: The bowling interest group enjoyed an undefeated season this year which included winning the team event of the Region 14 Northwest ACU tournament in Seattle.

Tennis: This group travels often for matches with other schools and enjoys much prestige among the interest groups.

Seahorses: A very talented group of synchronized swimmers. This year this group sponsored the Northwest Aquatics Arts Festival on the OSU campus. They also put on a three performance water show for Mothers' Weekend.

Basketball: Always a group of avid participants traveled often this year to compete with many other schools. They also sponsored a large basketball sportsday in the coliseum.

Athletic Board

Oregon State's Athletic Board had a new look this year. Slat Gill (far left) took over as new Athletic Director and was immediately faced with the difficult job of filling two coaching vacancies. Helping him with this rough initiation assignment was new Assistant Athletic Director Jim Barratt (left).

Outstanding contributors, OSU Sports 1964-65

The Rose Bowl . . .

Fall term's athletic highlight was the Rose Bowl. Oregon State's unsuspected climb from pre-season predicted last place in the AAWU to a tie for the championship was perhaps the sports story of the year. If it was not, then the controversy generated over the selection of OSU as the conference representative in the Bowl was. Many facets of the game and many individuals made this a fine season, however, the one person who best personified Oregon State's success was Jack O'Billovich. The glamor group, the people that ignited the press and public, was the defense, and linebacker O'Billovich was their recognized leader. He became known as "Mad Dog" for his obvious slashing, hell-bent-for-leather style. The defensive unit soon inherited his tag and their pride, determination, and performances more than any other factor carried Oregon State to Pasadena. At the season's end, O'Billovich was named to 1 All-American team, made numerous honorable mention All-American squads, and gained All-Coast honors on everyone's poll.

two seniors . . .

This University will graduate two seniors that were Oregon State Athletics 1965. Len Kauffman and Jim Jarvis so distinguished themselves on the wrestling mat and basketball court that their names became synonymous with the sports and their success.

Jarvis brought the predicted AAWU cellar-dwellers to a fourth place finish, the Chancellors Trophy, symbolic of Beaver domination over Oregon, and a ninth-straight Far West Classic title. In the process, he annexed the AAWU scoring title, the Far West Classic most valuable player trophy, an All-Coast guard berth, and a Helms Foundation All-American team mention.

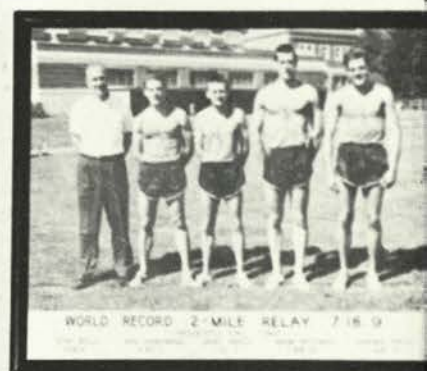

Kauffman was perhaps the best wrestler in Oregon State history. Finishing runnerup at the Olympic Trial free-style and Greco-Roman Championships, he proved himself America's best all-around wrestler at 167 pounds. In 27 collegiate matches this year, Kauffman pinned 25 men, won his 3rd straight Pacific Coast wrestling championship and was voted the outstanding wrestler at the Washington Invitational and AAWU Championships. Over the last two years, Len pinned 47 of 54 collegiate opponents and lost only 2 matches. He is a member of OSU's Wrestling Hall of Fame.

Coaches . . .

Oregon State can pride itself on its fine coaching staff. Year-in-year-out, athletic success depends almost entirely upon the recruiting and coaching abilities of this staff. Two of OSU's coaches have so developed their sport that they deserve special mention.

In 1959, Sam Bell was named head track coach at Oregon State and in five years has taken OSU from a poor team to one of the best in the country. Before Bell took over, Oregon State had not won a major dual meet in 15 years. In his first year, his Beaver squad placed 4th in the NCAA meet. His over-all record in dual meet competition is 32-15 and includes three straight wins over Oregon. Last summer, Bell was selected to coach the United States team that faced the USSR. His American team scored the most lopsided win in the history of the meet. His 1962 Cross-Country team won the only National Championship in recent Oregon State athletic history, and became the first west coast school to do so. His runners have produced Oregon State (all OSU track records are held by Bell-coached athletes), Collegiate, American, and World records.

Wrestling coach Dale Thomas has delivered 8 Pacific Coast Championships in 9 years at the Beaver helm. In 1961 he was named wrestling Coach Of The Year, and brought the NCAA wrestling championships to Corvallis. At that match, his team placed 4th, the highest finish ever for a West Coast team. To say he has dominated wrestling on the Pacific slope is the understatement of the year. This last season, Thomas lost his first match ever to a West Coast opponent. Thomas coaches aggressive rather than defensive wrestling. In 1964, OSU was the pinningest team in the nation. Coach Thomas' wrestlers have represented Oregon State and the United States at Olympic and Pan-American games, and have won National Collegiate, Free-style, and Greco-Roman championships.

... and OSU's outstanding athlete

The greatest height to which an amateur athlete can rise is Olympic competition. Oregon State was represented by one athlete in the 1964 Olympic games at Tokyo: Morgan Groth. Although his Olympic experience was cut short by a tendon injury, his athletic accomplishments in track make him Oregon State's outstanding athlete. One week before the 800 meter final at Tokyo, Morgan strained his Achilles tendon. Leading in his first heat, the tendon gave out on him and he failed to qualify for the semifinals.

Before his heart breaking Olympic experience, Groth won every major track competition he entered, and was OSU's only National Champion in any sport. For the second straight year, he won the NCAA 1500 meter-mile championship. In the process he set a collegiate and NCAA record of 3:40.9, equivalent to a 3:56 mile. At the final Olympic trials, he ran away from all his competitors to win his 800 meter Olympic berth. During the dual meet season, Morgan became Oregon State's first sub-four minute miler. At Compton he ran 3:57.9. During the summer, he ran the second fastest half mile in track history, 1:46.4. His combined mile and 880 times make him the third best middle distance runner ever.

Morgan is a two time All-American. He holds Oregon State (mile, 880), Collegiate (1500 meters, 880, 800 meters), NCAA (1500 meters), American (880, 800 meters), and World (2 mile relay) records. No other Oregon State athlete has ever so distinguished himself locally, nationally or internationally.

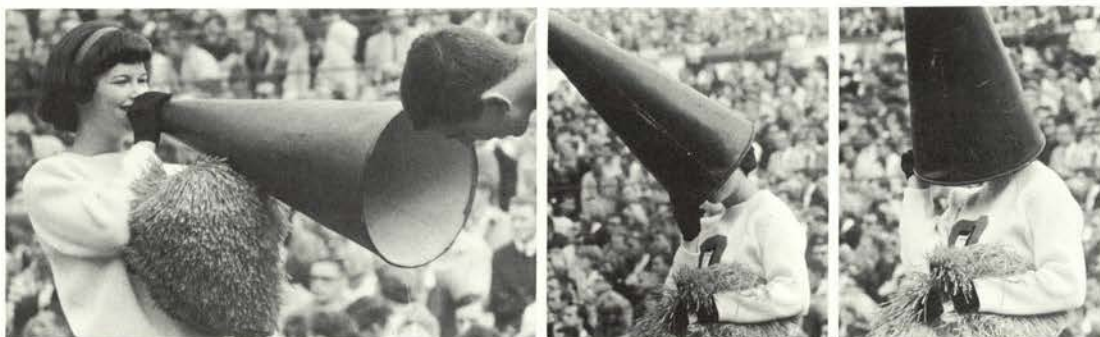

Two of the most pleasant innovations in recent Rally history were the Rook Rousers (left), a group of 50 Freshman girls, and The Beaver Ambassador Miss Sharon Lasater (below). Miss Lasater added beauty and spectacular baton performances to the athletic events and was a handsome addition to the OSU sports scene.

ACADEMICS

Man's capacity to reason separates him from other forms of life. Reason, like the transitive verb, requires an object. This object is knowledge, not for its own sake but because knowledge is the key to an ordered Universe.

As man widens his scope of knowledge, he grows individually and collectively through knowledge toward a oneness with his environment . . . controlling order to subdue chaos.

The administrative council (above) develops policies governing the academic climate of the university. Its individuals functioning under the generic term "administration" work in areas of admissions, counseling, general student welfare and activities, academic standards, curricula, faculty competence and teaching methods. Such activities advance progress toward the best educational atmosphere possible for the university.

Graduate School

The Graduate School program attempts to make the graduate student an integral part of the academic community, and to supplement basic knowledge by channeling acquired facts toward a full understanding of one's field of study. The "mass produced" graduate begins again to realize the importance of the individual and his own creative thinking. He discovers knowledge, interprets knowledge, and must communicate knowledge.

The Graduate School granted its first degree in 1876 and its first Doctor of Philosophy degree in 1933. The school has grown rapidly; the Doctor of Philosophy degree is now given in 75 fields of study; the Masters degree is given in 19 fields. The departments of instruction are in the nine schools: Science, Agriculture, Business and Technology, Education, Engineering, Forestry, Home Economics, Humanities and Social Science, and Pharmacy.

Advancement of knowledge through research at Oregon State University is encouraged. Grants supply apparatus, equipment, and certain supplies and wages. Excellent facilities promote advancement of human knowledge and technical and technological service which are the functions of institutions of higher learning.

School of Agriculture

Because of ever-increasing technical developments in agriculture, the agriculture curriculum provides an understanding of the sciences: chemistry, botany, entomology, microbiology, zoology, bacteriology, and physics. This includes laboratory and classroom experiences.

Fish and game management, animal science, and food science and management, are some of the areas of specialized training that are offered. The graduates of agriculture serve us in agricultural business, agricultural science, and agricultural technology.

School of Business and Technology

The School of Business and Technology falls into three departments: Business Education, Business Administration, and Secretarial Science. Its objective is to help prepare and produce efficient, skilled personnel to accept responsible membership and leadership in our free democratic society.

Increasing numbers of students, in addition to work in their original major field, have been completing the requirements in business administration. This will prove to be of great value in meeting the demands of our society.

In the Oregon State University School of Business, students learn how to meet the challenges and demands of modern business. Through internship programs, lectures, and field trips, they learn to manage the complex tools of business.

Both theory and practice are part of the curriculum of beginning typing.

School of Education

To educate the educator—this is the purpose of the School of Education. It must enable an individual to utilize the materials and assets at his disposal to share his knowledge. For the teacher must be the link between the students' mind and the entire world of learning and experience.

The School of Education at Oregon State University is oriented toward this responsibility of the teacher. Training in method, emphasis on a chosen field, and a period of full time teaching establishes the means by which the teacher can make knowledge come alive before those who seek it.

The school offers undergraduate and graduate work in elementary and secondary education, graduate work in higher education, and instruction in guidance and personnel work. The students undergo a program of continuous evaluation before they are granted permission to take professional courses leading to teaching credentials; evidence of speech clarity, and other academic, professional, personal, and social qualities are required.

Learning begins with the educator.

Observation and participation in the nursery school enable students to watch the behavior and development of small children.

Using objects familiar to them, crayons, pencils, and paper, children can express what they have learned.

School of Engineering

Engineering is known as an applied science. Scientific knowledge and principles are applied to the design and operation of machines, to the selection of materials, and to the use of men, money, and energy.

The School of Engineering has numerous departments. All freshmen are enrolled in a common freshman year, after which they branch off into departments of agricultural, chemical, civil, electrical, general, industrial, or mechanical engineering. Engineering physics and production technology also enroll many students.

The need for engineers and technically trained people is acute and graduates find numerous job opportunities since there is a continual demand for personnel trained in design, research, and development.

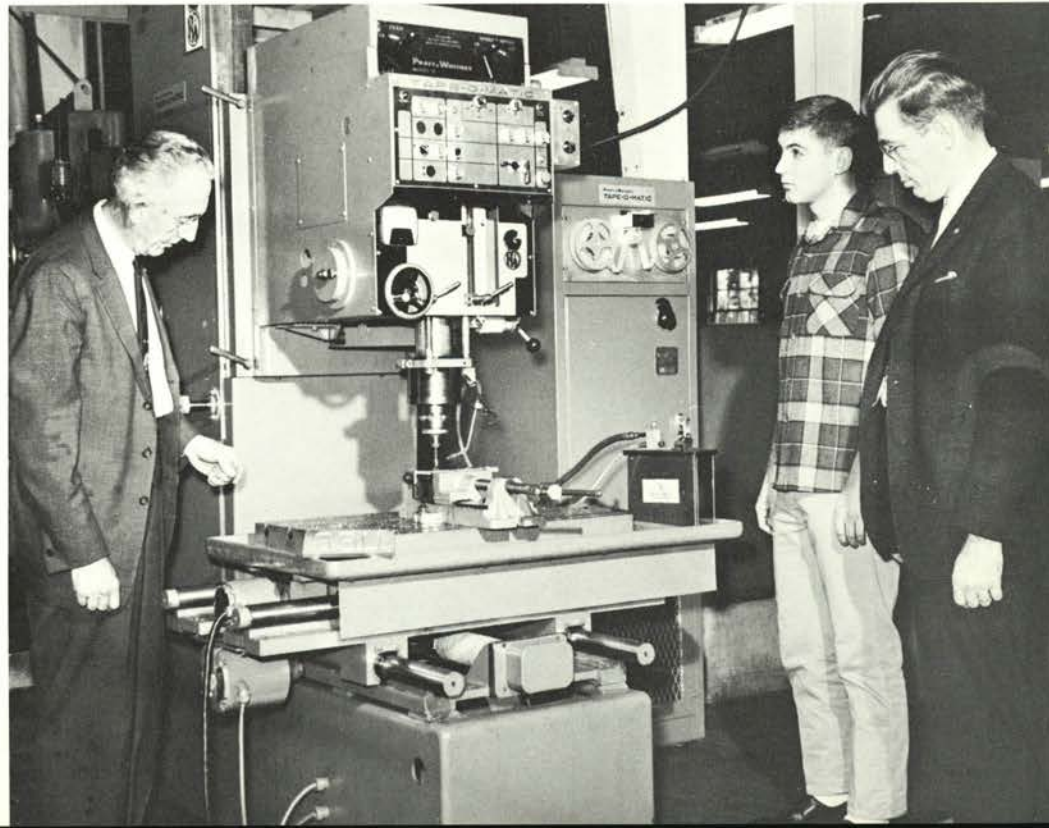

Assistant Professor Labaun watches as two students perform static bending on a wood clear specimen.

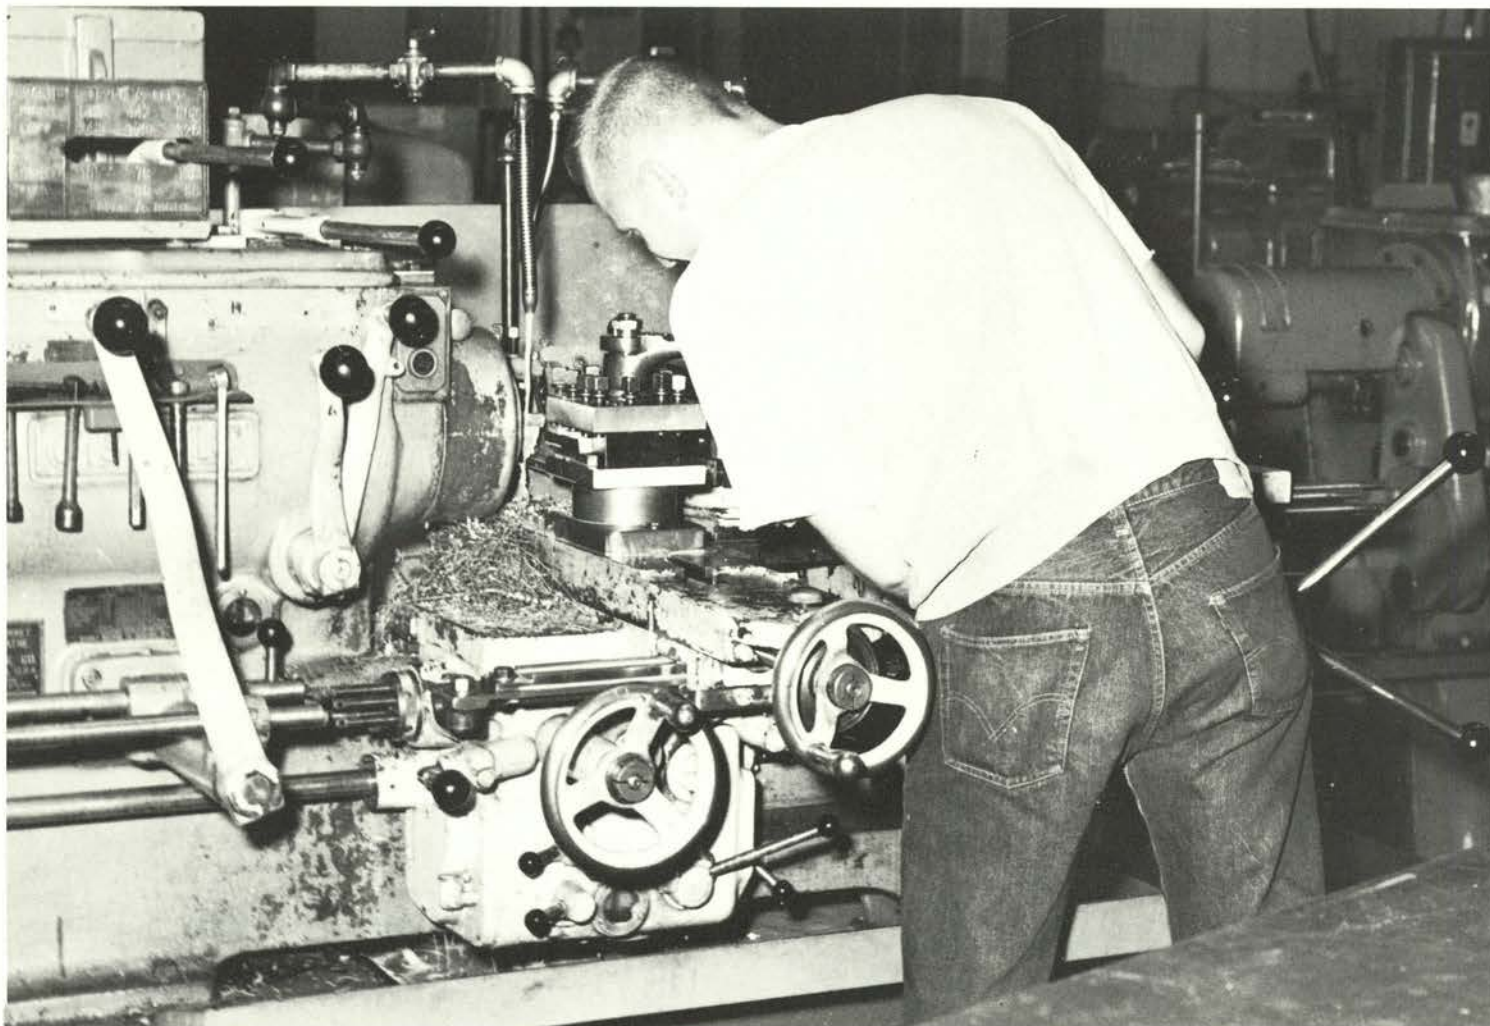

At home in the lab, the engineer is familiar with instruments and the formulas that put them to use.

The Production Technology Department is the proud owner of a new numerically controlled drilling machine. Tape controlled machine tools is just one area of new processes and techniques by which manufacturing capacities and capabilities have been expanded.

School of Forestry

Forestry, one of the greatest industries in Oregon, is important nationally, and is of major significance in other Western states. There is a strong, continual demand for foresters in this region.

Students specialize in one of three areas: Forest Engineering, Forest Management, and Forest Products. They learn to manage the basic forest values, water, wood, wildlife, recreation, and forage.

The school arranges seasonal employment and operates a graduate placement service. Graduates are employed in establishing, maintaining and harvesting forest crops; in product development, processing, and marketing; in teaching; and in research.

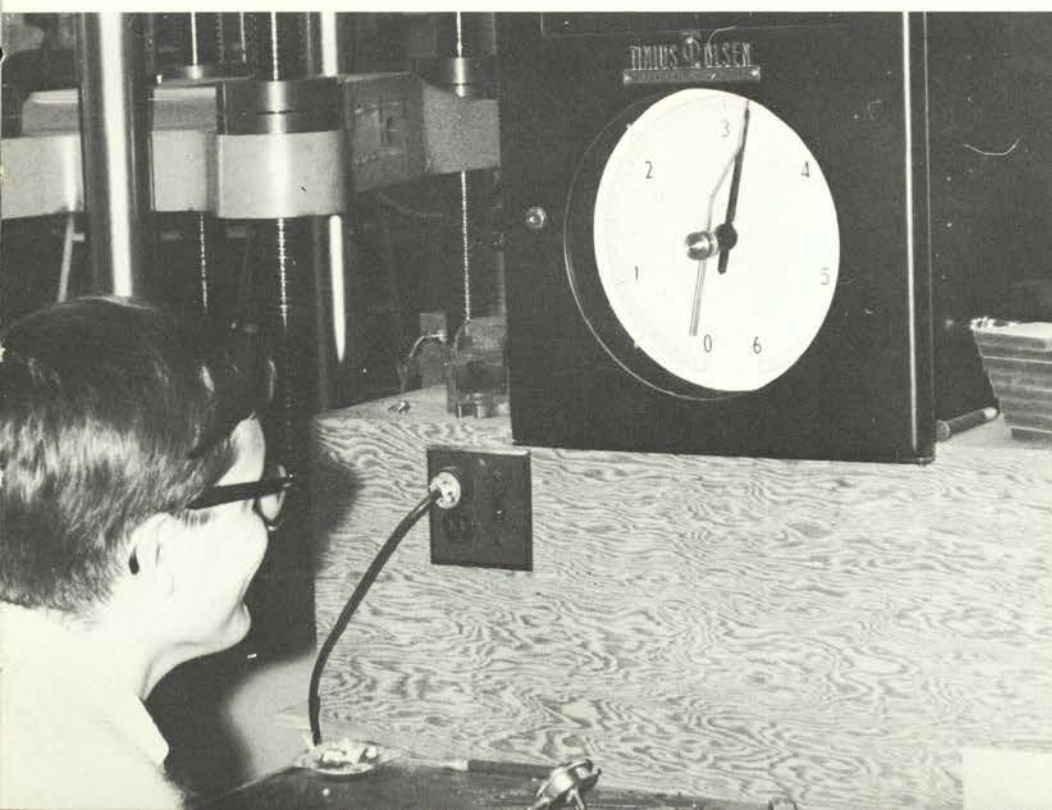

Weighing soil enables forestry students to classify the soil in relation to forest type and rate of forest growth.

This microscope camera enables forestry students to take unusual pictures of minute objects.

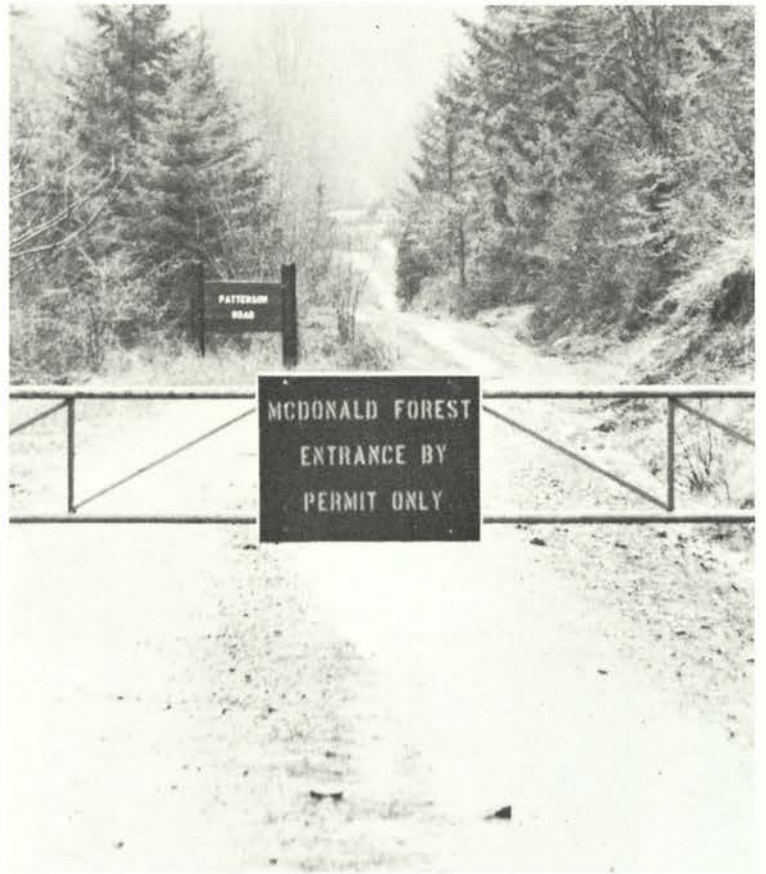

Extensive machinery is available in the laboratory for testing wood samples.

Public land survey is part of the basic curriculum of forest engineering.

McDonald Forest is available for research and demonstration as well as instruction for forestry students.

A truck fleet takes students daily to nearby school forests for field instruction.

School of Home Economics

The School of Home Economics has long been a part of Oregon State University, and was the first to be established in the west. Students in Home Economics can apply the principles they have learned in the classroom, by working in the residence halls and dining services, by observing children in nursery schools, and by living in home management houses. All Home Economics students take some work in each of the three basic areas, which will qualify them for an occupation almost anywhere in the world.

Just as dynamic changes in living have taken place, so has the School of Home Economics prospered. Students are looking forward to a new family life center, which is still in the planning stage. Besides providing a new home management house, many other educational facilities will be included in this center. Because of many changes and improvements that have taken place, the School of Home Economics at Oregon State University has become renowned throughout the world.

School of Humanities and Social Science

The School of Humanities and Social Science offers the student a broad liberal arts education. The school has two major divisions: Social Science and Humanities. Humanities are those fields of knowledge dealing with the intellectual enrichment of man. They include art, architecture, English, journalism, speech, modern languages, and philosophy. The Social Sciences deal with man and his social relationships, and include economics, geography, history, political science, sociology, and psychology.

The outlook for the four-year-old school is bright, as approval of an English departmental major and other curriculum broadening proposals were approved by the State Board of Higher Education.

Outstanding Teachers of 1964

H. Darwin Reese

Friendliness and helpfulness characterize the spirit that Darwin Reese, associate professor of chemistry, uses in his approach to students. He feels enthusiasm for the subject is an important factor in helping students. If the teacher likes his subject so much that the feeling is catching among the students, then a student will learn more.

Reese has been Blue Key and Alpha Phi Omega advisor. He has worked with the Student Life and the Student Conduct Committee on campus. Besides these activities, he is currently building his own home, doing all the work himself.

Robert F. Doerge is chairman of the department of pharmaceutical chemistry. He approaches his students with the idea that his course presents valuable professional information which he hopes will aid the students' career in pharmacy.

Before coming to OSU, Doerge worked for Smith, Kline, and French, a pharmaceutical manufacturing firm, doing research on tranquilizers. The reason he returned to teaching was mainly the attractiveness of the profession.

School of Pharmacy

The School of Pharmacy was first established in 1908 and since 1925 has occupied the Pharmacy Building, which was designed and constructed specifically for pharmaceutical education. The School is a member of the American Association of Colleges of Pharmacy and is fully accredited by the American Council on Pharmaceutical Education.

The undergraduate program is designed to lead to a Bachelor of Science degree, but the Bachelor of Arts is available to those who meet the requirements in Humanities and Social Science and foreign language. Graduate and doctoral degrees are offered in the departments of pharmaceutical chemistry, pharmaceutical science, pharmacognosy, pharmacology and pharmacy administration.

The School of Pharmacy is designed to give the student a sound general education and knowledge applicable to improvement of public health and welfare. It aims to train and provide a background for both pharmaceutical competence and cultured responsible citizenship.

School of Science

The School of Science is the center of scientific learning in Oregon and maintains highest criterion in regard to scientific education. The school includes liberal arts in its curriculum to provide the student with a broader education. The honors program in the school seeks to enrich educational opportunities for the more able student and to recognize scholarly achievements. The School maintains divisions of general science, pre-dental and dental hygiene, pre-medical, pre-veterinary, pre-nursing, and medical technology. The school also offers an outstanding program of research.

ROTC plays its role in protecting our national security

Lt. Col. H. L. Fross, USAF

Oregon State offers a four year officer training program leading to a commission in the Navy, Army, Air Force, or Marine Corps. This voluntary program consists of two years basic training and two years advanced training.

Navy ROTC offers two programs to the prospective midshipman. The "regular" student receives a four-year, full tuition scholarship and a commission as ensign, USN, or second lieutenant, USMC; he is required to make three summer cruises between each school year. The "contract" student participates in one summer cruise between his junior and senior year and receives a commission as ensign, USNR, or second lieutenant, USMCR. Midshipmen are offered such extra-curricular activities as drill team, glee club, drum and bugle corps and color guard.

Capt. R. F. Locke, USN

Army ROTC offers a commission as a second lieutenant in any one of four combat branches. A new facet of cadet training introduced this year is an organization designated as McAlexander's Guard, and designed to provide cadets with advanced training in leadership and military tactics. Cadets in McAlexander's Guard tackle field problems, participate in combat techniques exercises, and witness practical demonstrations. McAlexander's Guard sponsors the Army ROTC drill team and the Raider detachment. Also newly organized this year is the Women's Army Sponsor Corps, an honorary service group organized to sponsor the army.

Col. J. B. Hancock, USA

Students enrolled in Air Force ROTC enter into flight school or research as second lieutenants upon graduation. The Air Force boasts its Silver Wings drill team, last year's Mother's Weekend drill team competition winners. Also sponsored by the Air Force unit is the Arnold Air Society, a national Air Force ROTC honorary. The Oregon State squadron is called the Nathan F. Twining Squadron. It is open to selected cadets enrolled in the advanced AFROTC program, and it sponsors the local Angel Flight Squadron. The purpose of the Nathan F. Twining Squadron is to advance and promote interest in the Air Force and the AFROTC program.

Division of Physical Education

The Division of Physical Education offers professional courses for students who wish to enter the fields of physical education, health education, recreation and pre-therapy. The major in Physical Education, offered through the School of Education, provides teaching and coaching training. Major work in hygiene and sanitation through the School of Science provides professional training for specialists in those areas. Graduates are prepared for work with schools, parks, athletic teams, public recreation departments and hospitals.

Exercise, rhythms, gymnastics, aquatics, games and sports provide students with a broad program of physical fitness. The division is also in charge of intramural sports which offer every OSU student participation in competitive sports.

ACTIVITIES

Activities have been subject to a great deal of criticism, labeling them ineffective, inefficient, and unnecessary. In a sense this criticism is valid. The majority of University activities are not essential in themselves. They do not accomplish outstanding goals. However, is this the entire purpose of collegiate activities? Perhaps individual growth as well as group achievement should be considered when passing value judgement. Student organizations can develop personal responsibility, creativity, and organization aside from the overall purpose of the group. However, to gain one must participate.

Student government achieved plans

The ASOSU government began on an auspicious note as it scored a major triumph leading state governments in working for the passing of the State Bond Measure. This successful program realized for each student on the campus a saving of $100 per year by eliminating the tuition increase.

Another major area of achievement was centered around the Oregon Federation of Collegiate Leaders. Through OFCL the ASOSU government prevailed in establishing a State-Wide Convocation and Lecture Series, a state-wide coordinated Lobbying and Information Committee, and developing increased travel and foreign study benefits.

Locally, an advisory board to the ASOSU officers was established, composed of all living group presidents.

Through this committee a broader understanding of the respective component areas of the University was formulated as well as an increased insight into the needs of each group.

An increased number of students served on joint faculty student committees, providing an even greater degree of communication and harmony between the students and administration. The work of these committees resulted in an improved student advising system and a more workable relationship with the campus traffic directors.

The Senate progressed through a multitude of business, marking itself as one of the most effective groups yet. Its more prominent achievements include segregated seating, block ticket-buying, and new by-laws.

MU program council plans activities

Memorial Union activities are guided by members of the Program Council. The MU Newsletter, a new publication, might show MU activities guided by the following students: Bill Ray, art; Tammy Young, publications; Jim Neill, movies; Pam Norberg, posters; Cheryl Porter, music; Alice Pitney, publicity; Ann Logan, secretary; Dave McKellar, photography; Candace Moore, talent; Keith Nichols, toastmasters; Nancy Pearce, tours; John Gilmour, activity service; Bonnie Gathercoal, dance; Diane Kiesendahl, games, recreation; Rob Fallow, forum; Sharon Hobson, toastmistress; Romer Brown, public relations.

Juniors schedule activities

Fall term saw the Class of '66 provide the first after-game dance following the University of Washington basketball game. Winter term the Junior-Senior Prom featuring Peter, Paul, and Mary received the focus of their attention, as Juniors worked to provide a memorable event for the senior, and Spring term brought the All-School Carnival and the Junior Swing-Out.

Council members make plans for the future.

Class of '67 busy this year

Students enjoyed the rock 'n' roll dance in the MU sponsored by the Sophomore class.

Under the leadership of Husnu Ozyegin, the Sophomore class was busy this year. Along with sponsoring the Rook-Sophomore Picnic and the Sophomore Cotillion, the class introduced various new committees, staged a stomp dance in the MU, and had a special service project. The Sophomore Cotillion featured Duke Ellington and his band and had "A Feeling of Rhythm" as its theme.

Freshmen make future plans

Under the leadership of President Ron Holloway, the class of 1968 planned many projects to provide new and varied activities. In an effort to initiate unity in the class and perhaps lay stepping stones for the freshman classes of the future, the class planned a Pom-Pom section to boost spirit at Rook games. Other activities led by the Freshman Activities Council included the decorating of a class Christmas tree, the cleaning up of Corvallis City Hall, the sponsoring of a class dance, and completing the year with a successful Rook-Sophomore Picnic. The class Senate Meetings comprised of senators from each living group proved to be successful as the communicating body between the students and the Executive Council including Ron Holloway, president; Barbara Fischer, vice president; Judy Whealdon, secretary; Jeff Heimbeck, treasurer; Mike Gaulke, sergeant-at-arms; and Donn Lewis, parliamentarian.

Associated Women enthused about their program

Associated Women Students is the governing body for all women on campus. ## People-to-People have varied activities

People-to-People celebrated Christmas in the traditional manner of several different countries.

People-to-People again enjoyed a successful year at OSU as it continued to involve students in activities bringing them in close contact with people of other nationalities. Through this close contact many international friendships grow and a greater understanding of other cultures is developed as People-to-People works to establish the first truly "International Generation."

Highlights of the year included the largest active membership in the history of People-to-People at OSU, a new office in the Student Activity Center, cultural exchanges in various living groups, Sunday evening fireside discussion groups in professors' homes, a Thanksgiving retreat to the Flying L Dude Ranch, an International Christmas party, co-sponsorship of India Night, an "International Sing" talent show, and bi-weekly general meetings with programs of international interest.

Memorial Union center of student life

A jam-packed Corporation meeting in the MU ballroom on January 18 effected the transfer of the Memorial Union property and assets to the Oregon State Board of Higher Education. Thus making the Union a legally functioning, integral part of the total educational program of OSU. Another "first" for the Union this year were the all-free programs: dances, receptions for performers, lecturers and entertainers, weekly coffee hours, movies, hootenannies, honky-tonk Commons music, tournaments, open houses, parties, and the Valentine's Day and Easter Sings. Political debates and presentations of a cultural nature were added by the MU Forums Committee, a new one this year. In November the Program Council journeyed to Moscow, Ida., to the ACU Conference, and to support Donna Fowler, Region 14 first Vice President.

Board chooses educational program

Members of the Educational Activities Committee set policies and coordinate the funds used by student publications, music groups, forensics and concerts and lectures. The board is held responsible for evaluating student needs and selecting high quality professional entertainers that come to Oregon State.

The Beaver illustrates "transition"

The Oregon State University Beaver illustrates and represents "The Transition." It's overall effect is one of time . . .

The Beaver touches on the past: it relates those processes which have made the student what he is when he enters OSU.

The Beaver gives a close inspection to the present: it relates what has happened this year; the actual events and people are shown in the various sections.

The Beaver looks beyond to the future: it communicates to the student that his college experience will end with an insight to the "outside" world.

As college is a step from a life of guidance to one of independence, the Beaver depicts "The Transition" as it summarizes and interprets life at OSU.

Student photographers add new dimension to the yearbook

To paraphrase the old adage, one picture can accomplish more than endless verbiage. It can express a mood, an idea, the abstract quality of form and design. Just as the excitement of a news story is doubled by the addition of a good action shot and the essence of a magazine article can be captured in a single pertinent picture, the success of a yearbook lies in the ability of its photographers to capture the mood and character of the university students. In the Beaver the photography depicts the students as they are a part of the transition of college life.

Spindrift and Fussers' Guide stimulate and guide OSU students

As Oregon State University's School of Humanities and Social Sciences grew in 1965, its expansion was mirrored by the Spindrift, student literary magazine. Edited by Anita Larsen '65, Spindrift included student works of poetry, prose and art, reflecting in its quality the excellence of student literary and art work throughout the university. Mrs. Larsen was aided by a staff of student editors, plus the guidance of faculty advisor John Haislip of the Department of English.

Fussers' Guide, the OSU Directory, is published annually by Theta Sigma Phi, women's national journalistic fraternity; Alpha Delta Sigma, national professional advertising fraternity; Sigma Delta Chi, men's national professional journalistic fraternity; and the Associated Students of Oregon State University. It was edited this year by Evelyn Oveson, past Barometer editor, and managed by Gregg Macy.

Barometer reports daily life

The Oregon State Daily Barometer also represents the transition of the student—but on the daily scene:

The Barometer front page and its news pages report campus activities and events before they happen, as they occur, and what they accomplished. Significant off-campus news is also reported in the Barometer through the Associated Press wire service.

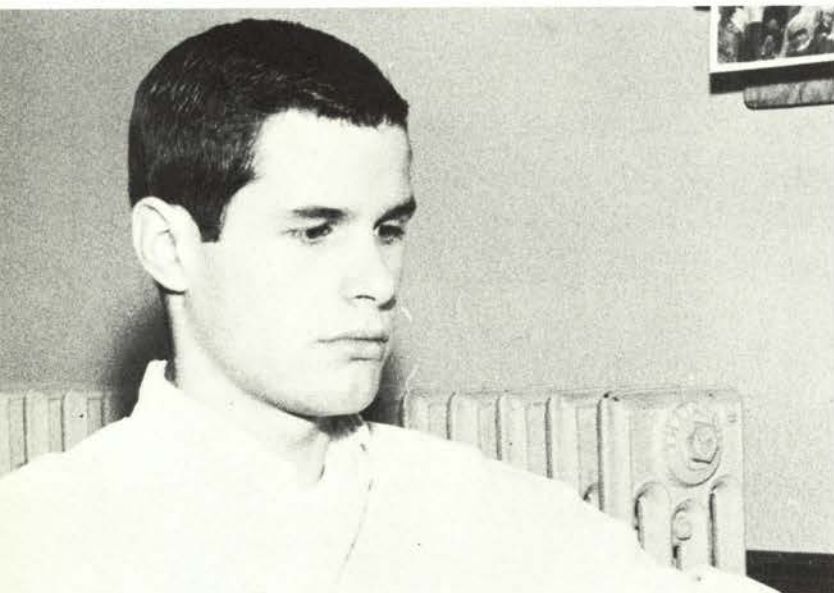

The Barometer editorial pages and columns, its letters to the editor and its editorial cartoons interpret and comment upon those events and activities that are the most significant to the OSU student and those which affect his life.

The Barometer sports and society pages grant space that will interest and amuse the students and faculty at OSU.

The eternal spirit of William Shakespeare touched Oregon State University this year with the production of "Hamlet." Dr. Angus L. Bowmer (right), founder and producing director of the Oregon Shakespearean Festival in Ashland, brought his talents to Oregon State as visiting professor fall term to direct "Hamlet."

Preparations for "Hamlet" began long before fall classes started and enthusiastic participants worked long hours right up until opening night. Casting, rehearsing, costuming, preparing and managing sets and making up, all played indispensable roles in the production.

Shakespeare has been studied at OSU from its earliest years and has had a continuing influence on the campus. At no time, however, has the impact been so great as it was this year.

Other Mitchell Playhouse productions presented by the speech department included "Papa Is All" by Patterson Greene and "A Man For All Seasons" by Robert Bolt.

MUSIC

Bulging out of the two top floors of Benton Hall, Oregon State University's oldest standing building, is the music department. Classes, rehearsals and individual practice sessions are scheduled here every hour of the day. The constant muffled sound of a voice, a cello, a piano or a trumpet penetrating the walls of secluded practice rooms gives evidence of the great effort of outstanding Oregon State musicians which goes into the presentation of successful concerts and recitals.

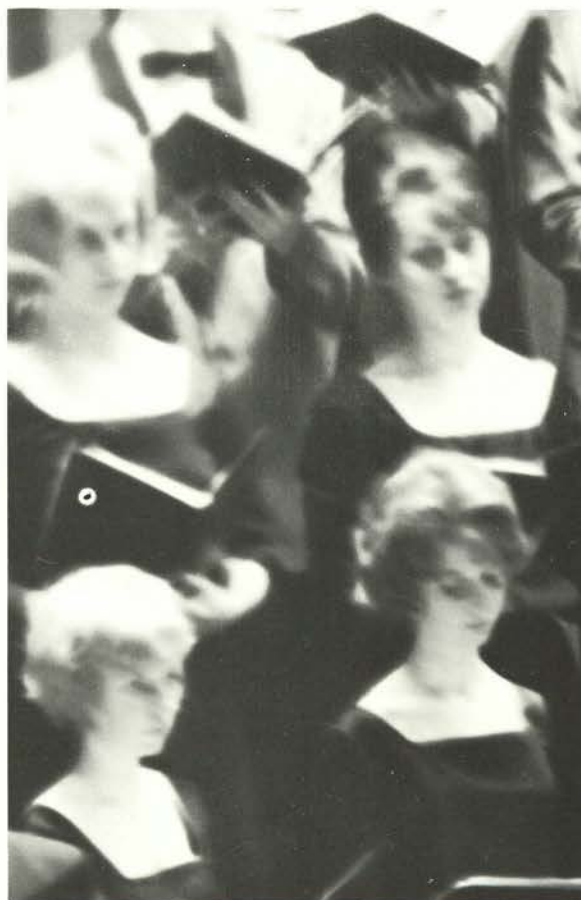

Six major concerts were presented during the year by the Department of Music featuring the Corvallis-OSU Symphony, the Concert Band, the University Chorus and the Choralaires. John O'Connor conducted the Symphony Orchestra, a community-campus organization. Ted Mesang directed the Concert Band and took his Marching Band to the Rose Bowl, joined the Michigan State Band, and produced a spectacular half-time performance. Karl Moltman led the Chorus and Robert Walls directed the Choralaires.

The famous Irish Brigade was the opening event of the Corvallis-OSU Music Association Concertseries this year. Bagpipe and drum bands, regimented bands and Irish dancers produced an exciting concert for students and townspeople. The Japan Philharmonic Symphony Orchestra, French pianist Phillippe Entremont, the Paris Singers, duo-pianists Ferrante and Teicher and soprano Adele Addison were also brought to OSU by the association, headed by Joseph Brye.

In addition, the Friends of Chamber Music sponsored recitals by the Hungarian Quartet, the La-Salle Quartet, and the Danzi Quintet.

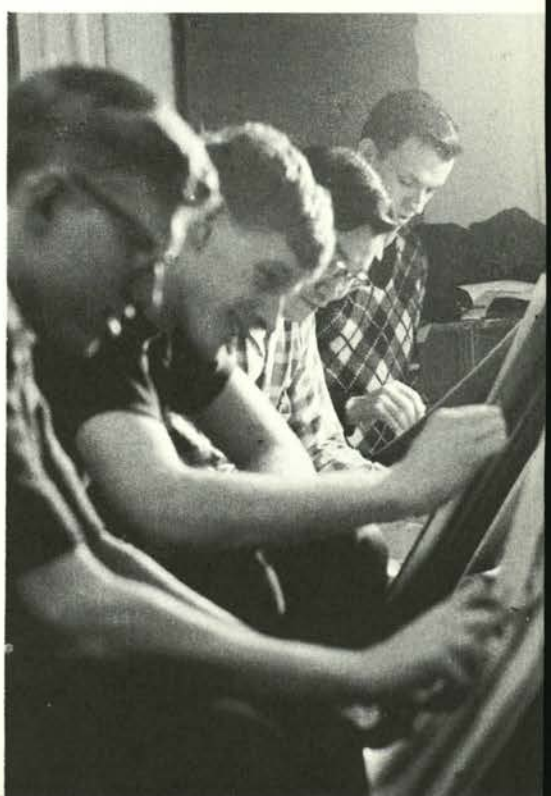

ART

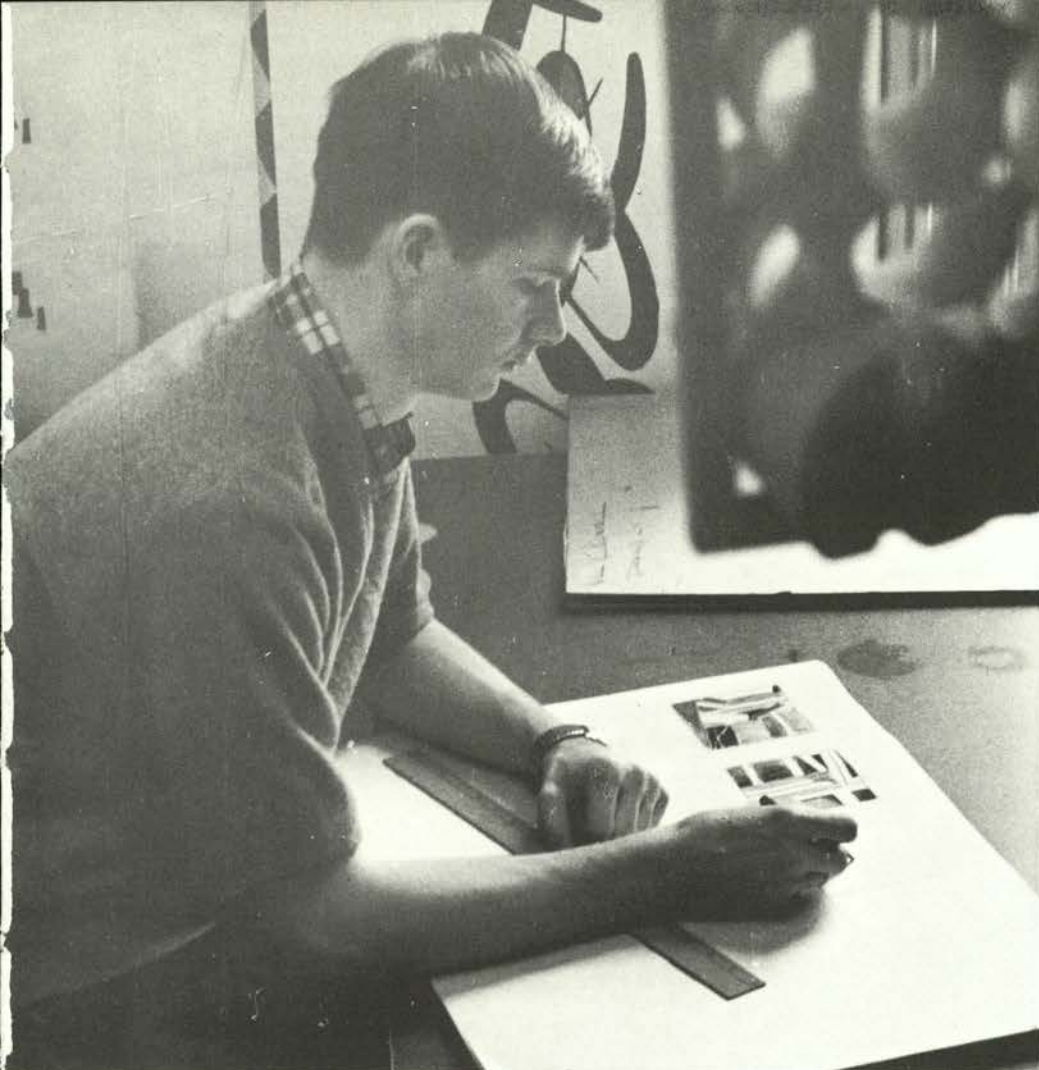

Ceaseless and often violent changes characterize the students of our time—students who are searching for individuality. Individuality produces everything on which we place any value. It creates progress—in short, change. Change is magnified in art by the search for individual expression.

Art is feeling: created by the artist's feelings and interpreted through those of the beholder.

The Oregon State University art department offers courses ranging from jewelry and metalsmithing to scientific illustration. In addition, it sponsors stimulating art exhibitions throughout the year in the Memorial Union and in the galleries of Fairbanks Hall. Highlighting the year were the annual Student Art Show and the Art Sale sponsored by Kappa Pi, national art honorary.

MODERN DANCE

Modern dance has made the most rapid advance in the whole program of modern physical education. It is an exquisite art which expresses through large, free, natural movements the ideas and emotions from within. Here the student can forget herself—her movements and thoughts are free. Modern dance instills in her a love of natural movements, expression and creation and encourages her individuality, initiative and imagination.

Several dance recitals are given each year at Oregon State. "Salute to Rhythm—1965," presented by Orchesis, OSU dance honorary, climaxed the year's modern dance program.

FORENSICS

Forensics have intellectual and cultural value for both the participants and the campus community. Oregon State is a member of the Pacific Forensic League and the Intercollegiate Forensic Association of Oregon. A full schedule of forensic activities is programmed for students, including debate, oratory, extempore speaking, after-dinner speaking, and discussion.

Six regional and national forensic tournaments were staged this year. Especially outstanding was the girls' debate team, composed of Suzann Peterson and Ann Sisson (lower right).

Man lives a life of continual transition. For the college student, his four or more years of University life are years of rapid, decisive change. His living group plays a large part in this process. Prior to college the student lives for the most part in a close family environment. His beliefs are ready-made; his behavior, pre-ordered. At the University this is not the case. He meets as many ideas as he does people, and he must answer to himself for his actions.

The meaning of a living group lies within each individual. For some it becomes home, a place of security and satisfying friendships; for others it is an obstacle, an organization of imposing restrictions; still others find it a testing ground for leadership ability. Although the kind of living group may differ, the essential experience does not—people living with people.

Off Campus Students

Off campus living is typified by the married student . . .

And the independent—his time is his own . . .

No closing hours, fire drills, house meetings . . . and no maid, cook, or dishwasher.

The Senior finds himself abruptly face to face with his future. "Life" is no longer that nebulous span of time "out there" somewhere to be worked toward. The future has become the present.

Well or ill prepared, challenged or apathetic, the graduate joins the ranks of his society with its problems, responsibilities and challenges.

Acknowledgments

I would like to express my appreciation for the work and encouragement of those people who have made this book possible.

My thanks to the staff who worked hard to complete their work when the pressure was on. I think the book speaks for the quality of their work. I would like to give special thanks to Leslie Busch and Bruce Clifton for their creative work which is most outstanding in the opening section.

Thanks to Tom Moon and his business staff for making this year's book a financial success through their successful sales campaign.

Thanks to Mr. Harris for his advice and help in getting the book finished.

Thanks to Ball and Hise Studios for their fine work and promptness when we most needed it.

A special thanks to the publisher Mr. Abbott, Joe Kratky and Bob Kendall for their patience and personal interest in the book. Thanks also to artist Doug Lynch whose advice has been invaluable in helping us form our editorial policy.

I would also like to mention some of the people who have helped the section editors — Clubs: Suzanne Olson, Marty Hetrick; Living Groups: Peggy Main, Sharon Cudd, Marion Roberts, Carolyn Steers, Judy Hawk, Sally Reamer, Nancy Spence, Linda Hess, Ellen Schermerhorn, Ann Erickson, Marilyn Schmokel, Patty Hammond; Publications: Irene Stauss; Sports: Dick Wilcox, John Martin, Larry Grant, Mike McAuliffe; and Office Helper, Nadine Putnam.
