Umatilla County's Shaw, Enbysk ⁵⁰⁸⁷ farmsteads achieve century status

PENDLETON — Two new Umatilla County families have achieved Oregon Century Farm status. Awards will be presented at 7 tonight at the Umatilla County Historical Society Museum, 108 S.W. Frazer in Pendleton.

Ron Brentano of Portland will represent the Oregon Historical Society's Century Farm program. He will confer the honors as part of the museum's Terrific Tuesday series of events.

Descendants of Daniel Herbert Shaw, who originated his family's farm near Pilot Rock, will be joined in the spotlight by Peter Christian Enbysk's progeny from Adams.

The Shaw Century Farm, founded in 1890, is located 10 miles south of Pendleton on McKay Creek. The farm is currently farmed by the founder's grandson, Daniel Shaw, and great-grandson, Jeffrey Shaw.

Gerald Enbysk currently tends his great-grandfather's farm, located 12 miles northeast of Pendleton, producing primarily wheat with some cattle.

Marilyn Lieuallen of Adams, Bonnie Sager of Pilot Rock, and Charles McCullough of Weston also will be honored Tuesday with the national certificate of commendation from the American Association for State and Local History.

The trio produced "The Land They Overlooked," a slide program for the 1993 Oregon Trail sesquicentennial celebration, which will be shown after the awards presentation.

Ron Brentano of OHS will present certificates to Marilyn Lieuallen, Bonnie Sager and Chuck McCullough during a program Nov. 29 at the Umatilla County Historical Society meeting. Brentano will also present Century Farm awards to descendants of Peter Enbysk and Daniel Shaw in the program beginning at 7 p.m. at the UCHS Museum, SW 1st and Frazer in Pendleton. 5087
