PROFESSOR GEORGE WILCOX PEAVY

Connected with the growth of every institution of learning, no matter what the scope of its teachings may be, there lies a story of strife and of endeavor of some one who has struggled with Spartan persistence to build up, from a small beginning, a strong working force for the education of those entrusted to its guidance. If this may be said of an institution as a whole, it must also be said of each of the departments of learning that make up the scheme of education of the institution.

Phenomenal as has been the growth of the Oregon Agricultural College, from a few buildings and a small faculty to one of the largest of the land grant institutions of the United States, yet its rise is no more remarkable than is the rise of the Forestry Department from a class of a few students, studying Botany and Forestry, to the present course, in which are registered over fifty students.

The secret of the development of the Forestry Department may be stated briefly: It is, Professor George Wilcox Peavy. A man eminently qualified by years of experience in the Federal Forest Service, he came to O. A. C. to undertake the work of establishing a Forestry Department. He received his master's degree in Liberal Arts at the University of Michigan. For five years following he was principal of a High School, where he taught History and Economics. It was while teaching that he became acquainted with the importance of National forests. So imbued was he with the future of American forests that he re-entered the University of Michigan and two years later received his Master's degree in Forestry.

Professor Peavy then entered the Federal Forest Service, acting in various capacities that took him to nearly all parts of the country, during which time he traveled several thousand miles through timber lands. Later he was made Inspector of Forests in California, with offices at San Francisco. He had just completed his seventh year of active service when he was selected to head a newly created department in Forestry at O. A. C. Under his never-ceasing efforts, the department gained in strength. So earnest was he in his endeavor to advance the interests of the work in his charge that he early enlisted the attention of loggers and timbermen of the state and pointed out to them the importance of establishing a great school of Forestry, where men might be trained to care for one of Oregon's most important industries. In every movement for the betterment of existing conditions and the solving future problems, Professor Peavy will be found actively engaged.

Not content with simply confining his work to his immediate department, Professor Peavy interests himself in other activities of the college. Faculty and students alike have learned to look to him for assistance in problems whose solutions require diplomacy, tact and judgment that will stand the test of time. As chairman of the Student Affairs Committee, he has the difficult task of arranging student activities upon a basis of absolute justice to all. A firm believer in, and a ready sympathizer with, the students, he has come in close touch with them, and they have learned to seek his judgment in all weighty and important matters.

A man young in spirit and in action, Professor Peavy has the opportunity before him to gather further laurels in serving O. A. C. A cheery nature, ready wit, and dogged perseverance are his—these, with an unselfish devotion to his work, spell success.

FOREWORD

THE college Annual is a legitimate publication. It fills a niche into which no other literary production, now known, would fit. It is one of the safety valves in college life, furnishing an escape for boiling mirth, and stormy, long pent-up enthusiasm. The custom of issuing annuals is firmly established in every live, wide-awake higher institution of learning in our country. The contagion has spread even into our high schools, whose slender, though often highly creditable, publications furnish excellent practice for budding college youths.

The task of preparing the Annual usually falls on the shoulders of those who stand among the best in their classes—young men and young women whose abilities have been tried, of whose scholarship there is no question, and who are ready and willing to assume the responsibility, shoulder the burden, and make the sacrifice of time and talent.

The casual reader usually has no conception of the labor involved in such an undertaking. The book comes to him complete in its make-up, the reading matter judiciously selected and logically arranged, the text beautifully illustrated, and the whole tastefully bound. "Take me and enjoy me," the book seems to say; "look at my pictures and laugh over me; maybe I can furnish you with topics of conversation when you are at home, surrounded by your loved ones."

The staff, as a rule, ask no special privileges, receive no perquisites, look for no lightening of the load of the regular course work; but attend to their new-found duties patiently and with enthusiasm, content, as regards reward, that the honor enjoyed, the distinction conferred, the experience gained, should be ample recompense for the efforts expended.

Putting out an annual is a labor of love. The work, while often wearisome and exacting, is nevertheless for the most part agreeable and instructive and has many attractive features, but is not wholly free from vexation. This is true concerning the work of all the staff, but particularly so in the case of the editor-in-chief and the business manager, both of whom should be men of Atlantean shoulders and pachypod nether extremities. To be prepared for all sorts of emergencies, they should have done graduate work in the school of the heavy-weight champion. Anon they should be as meek as doves, enduring in patience as water in Kentucky, and as self-sacrificing almost as Simeon the Stylite.

The greatest trial of courage for them usually comes when it is whispered among the knowing ones that in the forthcoming issue of the Annual—to distinguish it from previous issues and as a means of dealing a decisive blow at all manner of rapsallionry—the perpetrators of untimely pranks, the heroes of thrilling escapades, snipe hunters, fountain artists, peeping Toms, “escaladers,” and such ilk, are to be given their deserts. There is immediately a grand rush of the malefactors or their friends for the sanctum sanctorum of the Annual staff. Their little jokes were played in the dark of the moon, you know; they want to keep them dark, for they are afraid of the light.

The pleas put forth, the eloquence displayed, and even the tears (crocodilus vulgaris) shed by the trembling delinquents, would turn a veteran barrister green with envy, could he witness these acts behind the scenes.

What is the editor to do? Echo gives the answer, “to do!” if he have the necessary stamina and resolution. More often than “doing it,” however, he relents, in the goodness of his heart, and fills the space that should have contained a scathing account of the “joke” with—buttermilk or some other innocent and harmless condiment.

Everybody connected, even in the remotest way, with the student body of the institution expects to find his or her name on the printed page of the Annual. Names alone would not do, however, else the Annual would degenerate into a mere catalogue or almanac. Something must be predicated of each subject or there will be dissatisfaction and complaint. Good is always given the preference, and good will be predicated where good can be found. But where this greatly revered and desirable quality is not present, or present only in microscopically small quantities, practically negligible, something else will have to take up the space, of course. Aye, there’s the rub!

It has been said long ago, but is surprisingly true even in this day and age, that every man is the architect of his own fortune; so that, if one of his ambitions be to stand well in the estimation of his fellow citizens and to be favorably remembered by after generations, he has but to square his actions with this his ambition. After all, this is the only course worth while; the world cares for no other. The antics of the clown and the buffooneries of the harlequin may have the ear and eye of a thoughtless multitude for a while, but they soon grow stale and unprofitable. Therefore, for your own good and for the sake of setting a worthy example for those less fortunately situated than you, put your heart into serious work and do your best—do it better than any one else ever did it, and you need not worry about getting it into the Annual or any other publication; for the recorder of facts will hear of it and come to your door to get the particulars, which the world will be glad and eager to peruse and will be the better for it.

“Our acts our angels are, or good or ill,
Our fateful shadows that walk by us still.”

PROFESSOR MCKELLIPS

A WAY back in what might be reasonably regarded as ancient history—namely, in 1898—it became apparent that a demand existed for an opportunity to obtain education in theoretical pharmacy. Prior to that time it had been necessary for those Oregonians who desired such educational advantages to go outside the state in order to obtain them.

The attention of the Regents of O. A. C. was directed to this condition of affairs. It at once became evident that this type of institution, a land grant college, because of its extensive laboratory facilities and its faculty of trained workers in the sciences, was admirably adapted to the function of offering a course in pharmacy.

It was thereupon decided that such a course be added to the curriculum of the college. A teaching staff was at once organized and the work was offered in September of the year mentioned—1898.

The department is now attempting to shape its work not only to the purpose of turning out finished pharmacists, but also in such manner as to qualify its graduates for positions in the Federal food and drug laboratories, a branch of government service offering many attractions to scientific workers.

PROFESSOR PEAVY

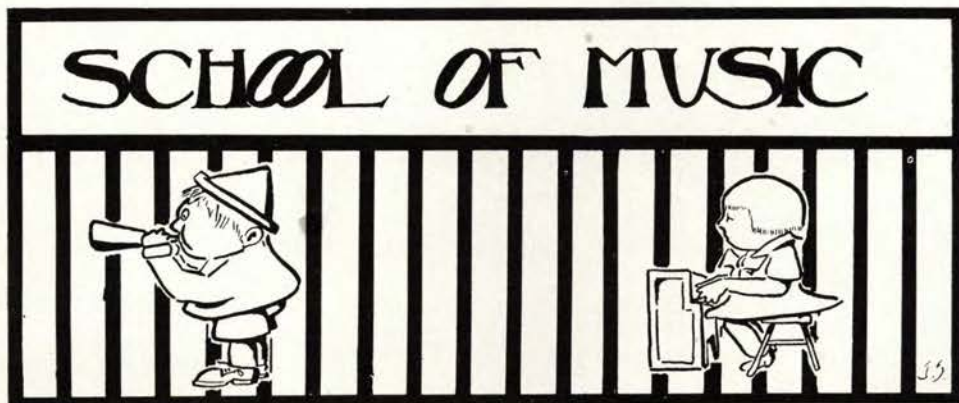

THE Department of Forestry in the Agricultural College was created in February, 1910, when George W. Peavy, of the Federal Forest Service, having headquarters at San Francisco, was appointed Professor of Forestry and head of the department. At the time Professor Peavy was placed in charge of the department, 26 men, formerly students in the Department of Botany and Forestry, enrolled in the newly created department. From that time the growth in numbers has been such that, at the time of the publication of the 1914 Orange, the foresters have 56 men at work, an increase of 115 per cent in three years.

The work of the department is in the hands of professional foresters who have been trained in the best forest schools of the United States and who have had extensive experience in the Government service.

Without an exception, the men who have graduated from the department and have desired work in forestry have secured good positions. Representatives of this department are employed in the Federal Forest Service, in the state service and in lumbering and logging operations. The timbermen of the state have recently become actively interested in the forestry work of the College, for the reason that they are coming to feel the need of trained men in their work. At their request, the Board of Regents recently established a course in Logging Engineering as a part of the work of the department.

PROFESSOR GASKINS

THE School of Music of the Oregon Agricultural College affords opportunity to cultivate technical skill and theoretical scholarship in a universally appreciated art.

The School of Music is a self-supporting department of the Oregon Agricultural College. Its work is favorably regarded on the campus and in the town because the high ideals and progressive methods of its instructors are frequently demonstrated in the efficient public performances of its students.

That such opportunities are available to the students of O. A. C. is due to the broad policies and good will of that master of constructive educational methods, President William Jasper Kerr, and to the high ideals and executive ability of Professor William Frederic Gaskins, Mus. Bach., Director of the School of Music, aided and assisted by a competent, conscientious and widely experienced corps of assistants.

THE CADET REGIMENT

BY WM. C. MILLER, First Lieutenant, Twenty-third Infantry

THE Corps of Cadets is one of the leading and governing institutions of the College. Standing as it does, the one organization of the College where all the undergraduate men come together for close association in endeavor, it is not strange that it should be a benefit and a strength to the school. Here in the regiment, men's outward bluff or pretense is dissipated and their real selves become known to their fellows. The regiment, by its traditions, esprit de corps and endeavor, conduces to truth, cleanness, honesty, honor, and manliness in the students' relation with each other and with the College, and is a powerful influence in imbuing the new students with the proper idea of the ethical standards of the College.

Among the traditions of the regiment, none is plainer than the spirit of loyalty. This loyalty extends to duty and to honor, to the College and to the regiment, to the particular organization to which each man belongs, to the fellow student and to the fellow cadet. The military profession more than any other demands a complete loyalty, and the fact that the cadet regiment of this College can attain the efficiency it does is in itself evidence that the young men composing the regiment have learned to render loyal service.

Those sons of the earlier day of the Corps of Cadets have pointed the way for us of the present and we follow close order after them. They are here with us in ghostly inspiration, and we grip their unseen hands as we swear, as they did before us, that by our lives and by our achievements we will honor the College and the Corps.

LIEUTENANT WILLIAM C. MILLER, U. S. A.

LIEUTENANT WILLIAM C. MILLER

THE retirement of Lieutenant William C. Miller, as Commandant of the Oregon Agricultural College Cadet Regiment, was made necessary by a certain section of the regulations of the United States Army, which provides that no officer shall be in detached service for more than four years. Some military power in the East discovered that Lieutenant Miller had been away from his company for the prescribed time and, all ignorant of the place which the lieutenant had won in the hearts of the students and faculty of O. A. C., issued an order, and the cadet regiment was left to mourn the loss of a soldier and a gentleman—the Commandant.

Mr. Miller's regiment is the Twenty-third Infantry. Previous to taking up his duties at O. A. C., in the Fall of 1911, he had been in detached service in the Philippines, with the rank of First Lieutenant.

The qualities of manliness, gentlemanly courtesy, military efficiency, and loyalty to the College, which were manifest in his character, soon won for him the respect and friendship of every cadet in the regiment.

We regret the loss of Commandant Miller, because he was a good soldier, of high aspirations and ideals, an enthusiastic supporter of O. A. C., a "good fellow," and a gentleman. The highest compliment we can give him is to say that we felt at his departure much as we felt at the departure of Major Mac-Alexander. Wherever he may go, Lieutenant Miller carries with him the best wishes of the students of the Oregon Agricultural College.

OLIVER B. HAYES.

LIEUTENANT P. J. HENNESSEY, U. S. A.

Lieutenant P. J. Hennessey, assigned as Commandant at the Oregon Agricultural College, arrived in Corvallis January 5, 1913. He took up the duties of his predecessor, Lieutenant W. C. Miller, in a prompt and military manner, and soon the new Commandant was a familiar figure on our campus. Lieutenant Hennessey has proven himself to be a strict disciplinarian, requiring military exactness and precision; at the same time he is impartial and considerate toward all, from the highest ranking cadet officer to the "rookie" private in the ranks.

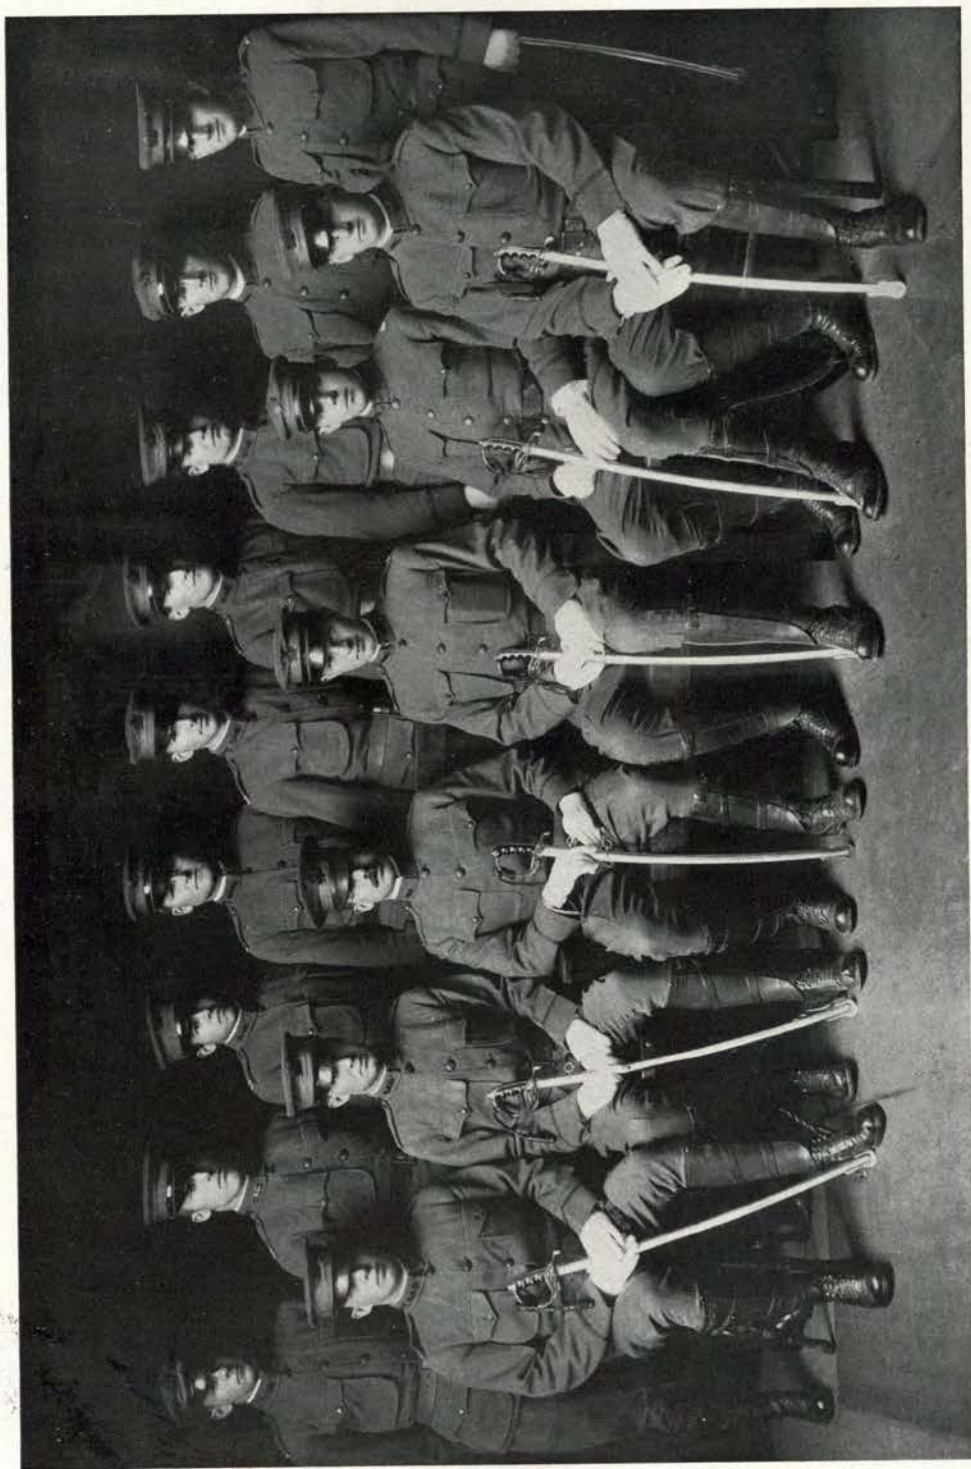

The Lieutenant commenced his career as a soldier by enlisting in Troop D, Fourth U. S. Cavalry, at the beginning of the Spanish-American War. He was commissioned as a second lieutenant in 1901 and served in the Philippines until 1903. Since that time he has served in various parts of the United States, also graduating from the Infantry and Cavalry School and Army Signal School at Fort Leavenworth. The Lieutenant was promoted to his present rank of first lieutenant January 21, 1908.

Lieutenant P. J. Hennessey has the welfare of the O. A. C. Cadet Regiment at heart and is winning the confidence of the cadets as only an able commander can.

STARTLING DISCLOSURES MADE

Colossal graft connected with publication of the Junior Annual

One of the most stupendous and far-reaching systems of graft ever uncovered at this institution was recently brought to light by Detectives Berchtold and Bach, who are specially employed by the "Digest" for the purpose of ferreting out dishonest officials.

The graft ring comprises almost the entire staff of the Junior Annual, and the names of some of the best known young men of the College are included on its infamous rolls. Jo. Sorenson, the Annual's art editor, hitherto a respected citizen of the community, has purchased a half interest in Ball's Studio with his share of the ill-gotten gains, and it is rumored that C. C. Baynard, editor of athletics, will soon wed his fair school teacher and retire beyond the reach of the law's arm for a six months' honeymoon in Europe.

As yet, no arrests have been made, but our indefatigable chief of police, Mr. Harding, says that the men are all being shadowed and that none shall escape.

THE TRUTH ABOUT THE COLLEGE FIRE DEPARTMENT

A striking example of the inefficiency and incompetency of the College fire department was afforded yesterday afternoon when one of the finest and best equipped chicken coops in the poultry department was almost totally destroyed. The coop was valued at $3.47 and the loss is but partially covered by insurance.

The blame for the slowness with which the apparatus arrived seems to be equally divided between our hitherto efficient firemen, Dr. Withycombe and Dean Covell, for upon arriving at the fire-house, they engaged in a wordy battle as to which one should hold the position of battalion chief and were with difficulty restrained from coming to blows.

Their difference was finally adjusted, however, and each proceeded to the blaze with his favorite piece of apparatus, Dean Covell's consisting of an efficient fountain pen filler and Dr. Withycombe carrying the latest improved form of atomizer.

The fire was out, however, when they arrived, and the damage done. Those "higher up" have been informed of this culpable negligence and the offenders will no doubt soon be brought to justice.

Elsewhere will be found a poem under the heading "Crank's Contribution." We are glad to note that the author thinks so much of his opinion that he has taken the pains to put it in the form of verse.

Alright Jenkins, right here we wish to thank you for giving us material for an editorial for it is seldom that we find opportunity to express our opinion of that considerable contingent of tried-to-be-reformers of which you are a typical representative. We are giving our readers the treat (?) of reading word for word your compilation of rhymes since you evidently wish to put yourself up as a mark for the shafts of ridicule, preferring no doubt to be laughed at rather than altogether ignored.

You are right, our college is a war camp to one of your concept, which by the way is as far from the concept of the average cadet as is Mars from Mother Earth. You should have your brains taken out—however difficult it might be to locate them—and carefully sandpapered, bathed in a strong septic solution and carefully put back then outfit yourself with a toy pistol and get busy, which weapon is of about the right caliber of a war implement for you to carry.

If we might offer a word of advice to such a museum misfit, like sperm oil on a tempestuous ocean, we would say, for him to get posted on the editorial tripod and play at liberty to enlighten the campus by the aid of gas.

So, now Mr. Jenkins if we have succeeded in constructing a vehicle that will convey ideas into the head of such an irremediable Mugwump as you, we will get it patented.

Great German General Visits College

Is Much Impressed With the Military Department

The regiment was greatly honored yesterday by the visit of General Leeser Raphael Solis Cohen, whose military exploits in the famous German cavalry have given him wide renown. During drill hour he was the guest of Captain Bernstein of Company J and seemed to be greatly pleased with the military appearance and general bearing of the cadets.

GENERAL COHEN

He had given out the statement that he would not, on any account, be interviewed but our star reporter, Dr. Weniger, managed, by a clever ruse, to gain admittance to his quarters and the General finally gave his impressions of the regiment.

Our only fault, he declared, was that we did not drill enough. "If you would drill six times a week, and force all Seniors to take their place in the ranks, you could have a

THE SOLDIER'S COMPLAINT

Drill, drill, drill; morning and noon and night.

We drill by sun and moon and stars, and artificial light.

Our steps, they are lagging and footsore and weary,

We ne'er hear a word that is happy or cheery,
For its drill, drill, drill, till dizziness blackens our sight.

Drill, drill, drill, with guns that are as heavy as lead.

The black mud splashes to our knees and raindrops hit our heads

Our lips are cracked, our throats are parched,

Still comes the order, "Forward March."
For its drill, drill, drill, till we stumble away to bed.

Drill, drill, drill, in the Armory's biting cold.

And ever in front with head held high, marches the Captain bold

What a cruel world! what an awful "sell!"

What wonder that Sherman said, "War is hell!"
For its drill, drill, drill, and we get neither silver nor gold.

Drill, drill, drill, in uniforms ragged and torn.

Oh! pity the wretched soldier boy, so sad and so forlorn.

Why give our college the name O. A. C.?

Why not call it war camp, six hundred and three?

For its drill, drill, drill, at night and noon and morn.

—Jasper Jenkins.

body of men whose efficiency and ability would be of the very best," said the General in his well-modulated voice. He speaks with only a slight German accent and you can see at a glance that he is well bred and cultivated.

On being asked of his present position in the German service, the General gave the startling information that he had relinquished his post in the cavalry and enjoyed, at present, the distinction of being Brigadier-General of the "Boy Scouts of Germany," which, if reports be true, is a most efficient organization.

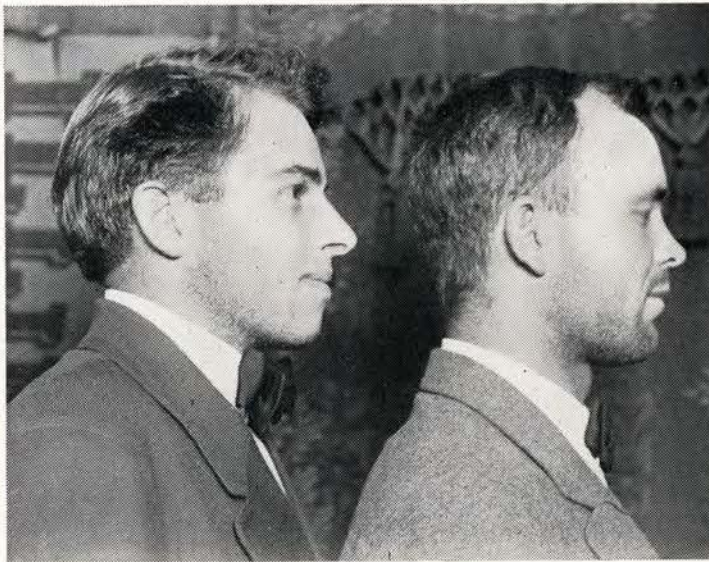

The "Disgust" joins with its readers in wishing General Cohen success in his work and a pleasant trip back to the Fatherland.

CONNELL'S DRESSING ROOM

MARY JANES' PA

"MARY' Jane's Pa," the first play presented by the Mask and Dagger Society, scored a success second to none. The production was of a high order and under the competent coaching of Mrs. H. B. Carter, each player seemed particularly well adapted to the character represented.

The action centers around Portia Perkins (Miss Wilda Solomon) in her endeavor against great odds as a newspaper publisher, to support her two daughters, Lucile (Miss Ruth Shepard) and Mary Jane (Miss Cuba Amick). Too much praise cannot be given Miss Solomon. Hers was an intelligent conception of her part and splendid adaptability to the character. Miss Amick, in her childishness was very pleasing and Miss Shepard acted the part of the stage struck girl very well.

C. L. Hill, in the part of Hiram Perkins, Portia's printer husband who had left her ten years before, was particularly strong. Another extremely clever character presentation was given by Francis Neer, in the part of "Joe Skinner."

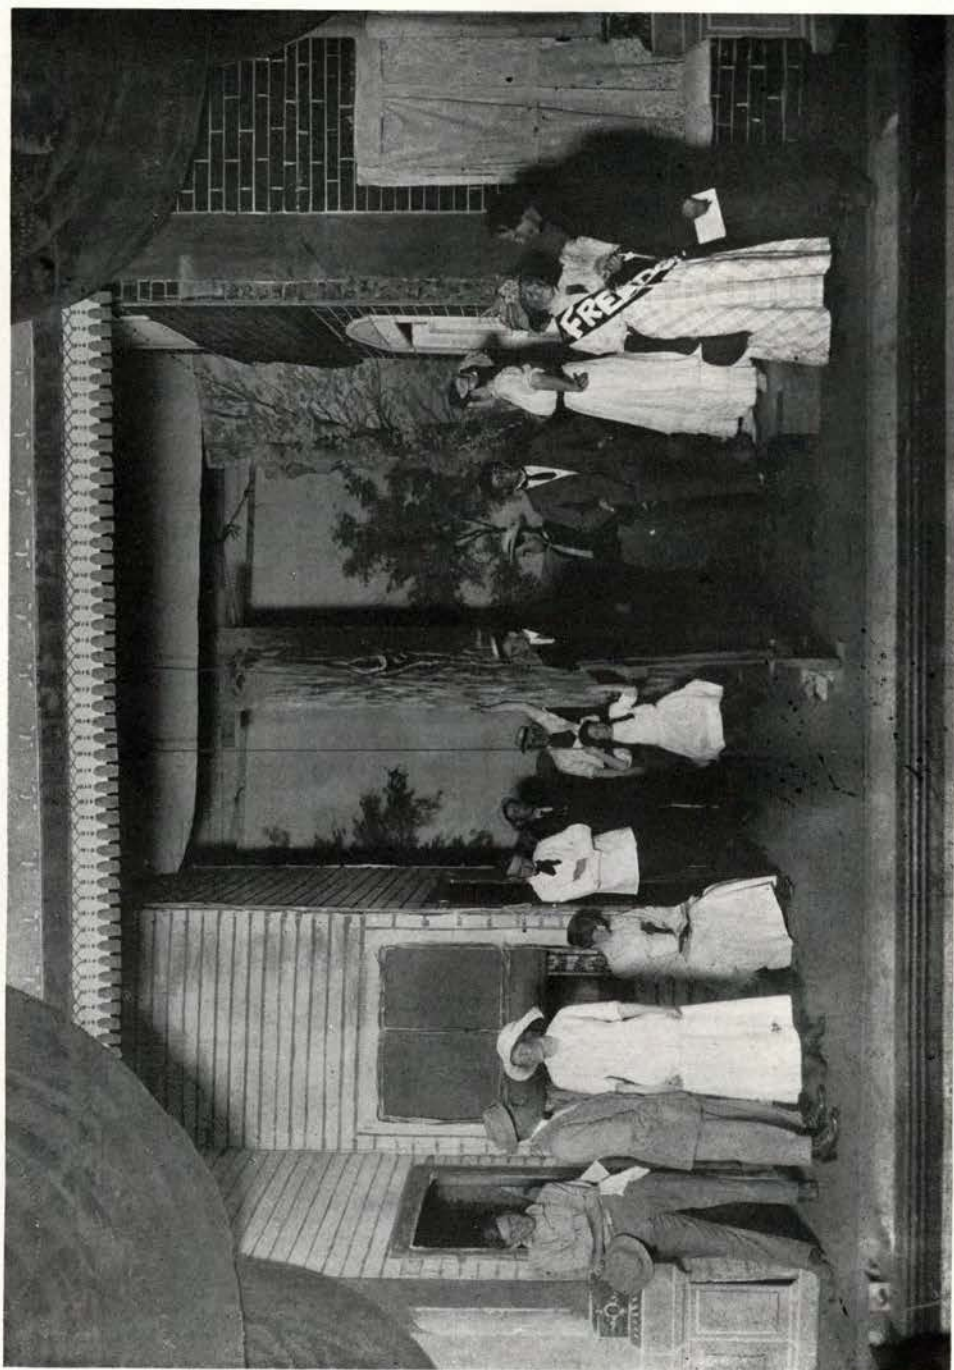

H. I. Padgham was excellent as "Rome Preston," a young lawyer, in love with Portia and a candidate for the legislature.

Lydia Harris and Bertha Booth in comedy parts kept the audience in a continuous uproar of laughter.

Jack Cooke, playing the part of "Star Skinner," the stuttering, red-head country boy, R. T. McKee as "Linc Watkins," sweltering in a heavy bearskin coat in midsummer, and L. F. Cronemiller as "Claude Whitcomb," were the comedians, with no equals in amateur acting.

W. H. Belknap, C. W. Clark and E. C. Brownlee, made much of minor parts.

Much of the success of "Mary Jane's Pa," was due to Harry G. Smith, the manager. The special scenery, which was particularly good, was obtained through his efforts.

MARY JANE'S PA

THE LADY OF LYONS

THE evenings of June 7th and 8th, gave forth the climax of the Seniors' dramatic skill. The "Lady of Lyons" was the play on which the members of the '12 class expended their last efforts in college dramatics. A packed house both nights proves the credit due to the cast and Mrs. Carter, who coached this most excellent production. The following quotations show the appreciation of the individual talent by the press:

"Miss Vena Rickard as Pauline, was simply superb in her emotional scenes."

"Mr. Walter E. Morris, as Claude Melnotte, gave an interpretation of the peasant boy that could scarcely have been better."

"L. M. Turner, as Beauseant, the villain, deserves great credit for the splendid way in which he acted."

"F. M. Miller, as Colonel Dumas, was at his best in this role. He was an ideal soldier."

"Nell Sykes, as Madame Deschappelles, portrayed the eccentric society lady of the sixteenth century exceedingly well."

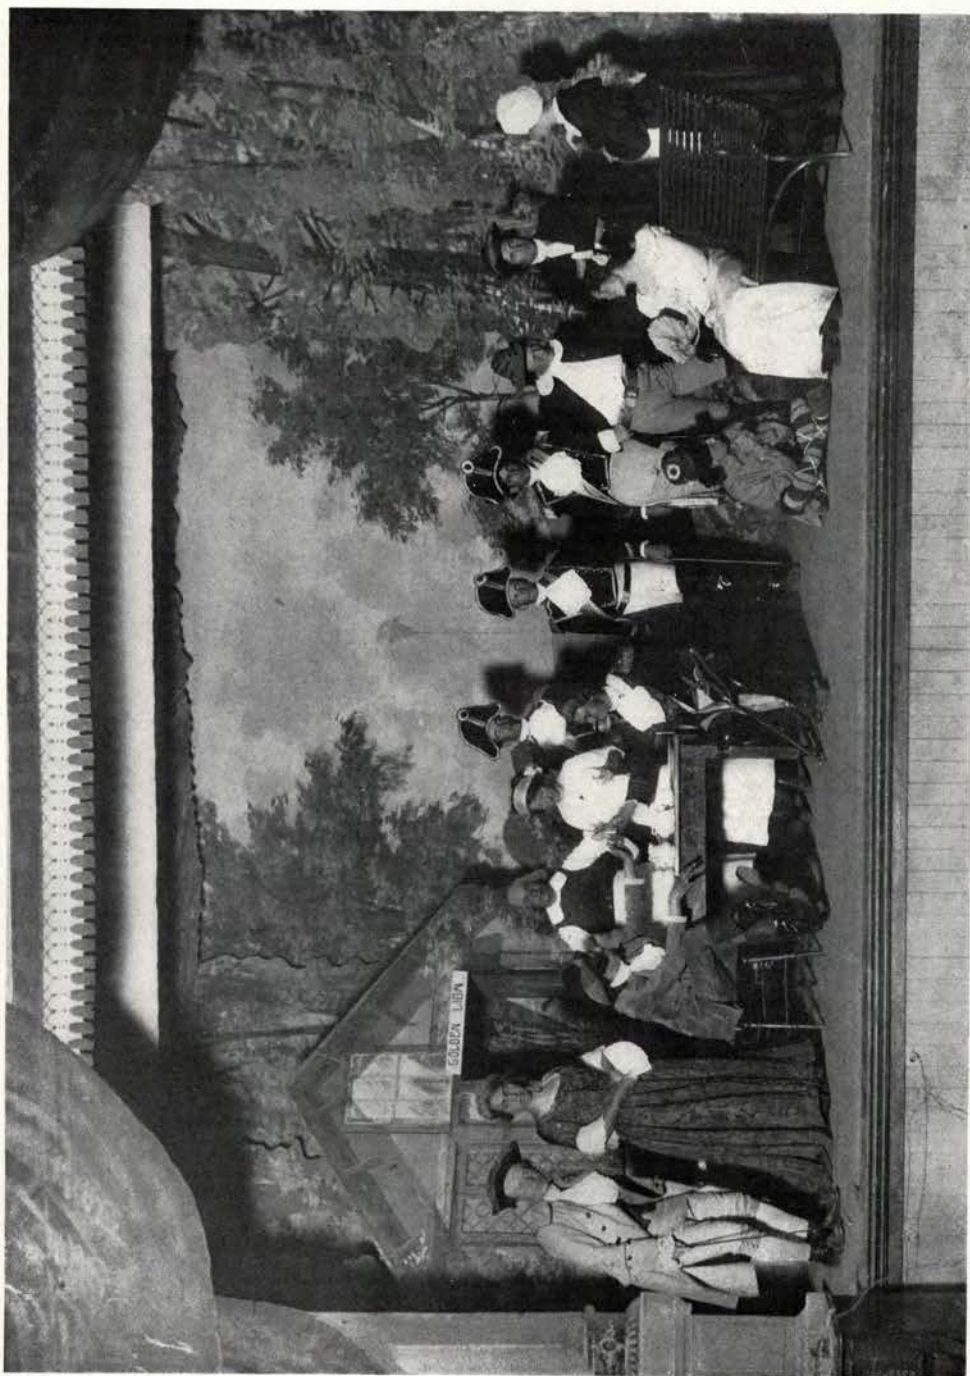

"Morris Koon, as Mons. Deschappelles, was natural as the narrow souled merchant who would sell his daughter's heart for mere money."

"Miss Eppley, as Claude Melnotte's mother, was a sweet true mother."

"Clark Schultz, as Glavis, the drunken clown, afforded much amusement."

"Laurence Prescott, the landlord, continued to win with his hearty laugh."

"Earl Heckart, as Gaspar; Chester Lafferty, Glen Paxton and Mark Lafky, as soldiers, and Miss Mabel Huff, as Janet, were all exceptionally good."

THE LADY OF LYONS

THE RIVALS

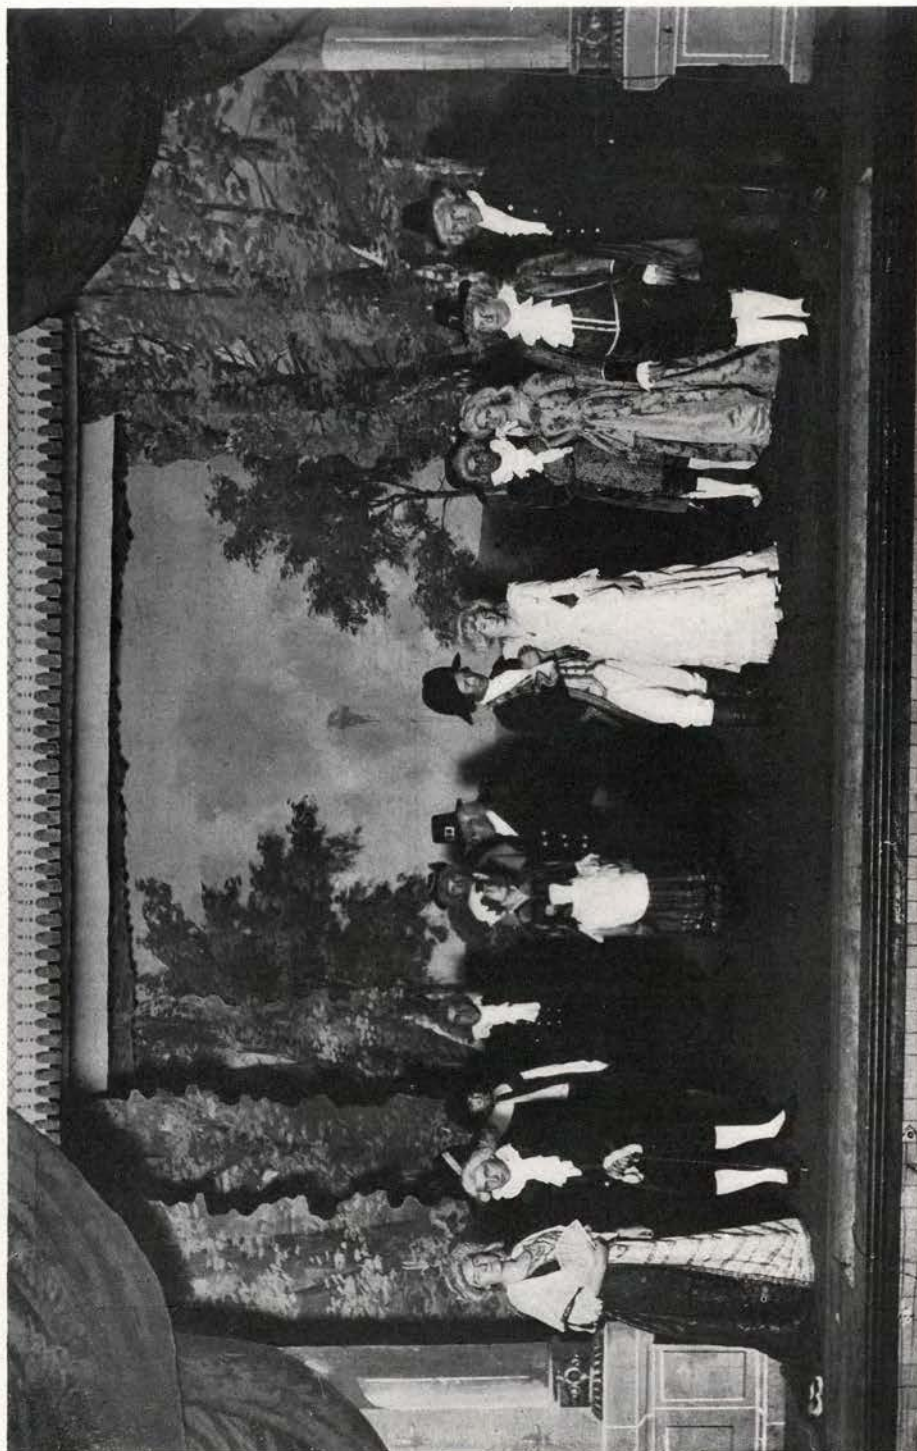

ON Saturday evening, January 25th, 1913, The Mask and Dagger Dramatic Club presented "The Rivals," an old English comedy by Richard Brindley Sheridan. It was a very successful production, judging from its reception—the only adverse criticism was that the play was a little too ambitious to be essayed by amateurs and like all old-fashioned plays there was more stress laid on speeches than on acting. But the play was successful from start to finish. Every character was well taken and well presented.

A great amount of credit is due to Miss Thayer for her valuable coaching. More than any other person she gave her entire evenings to planning and coaching. While her work may have lacked the finishing touches of a professional, it had the added merit of sincerity of purpose and hard, efficient work. Too much credit cannot be given to her.

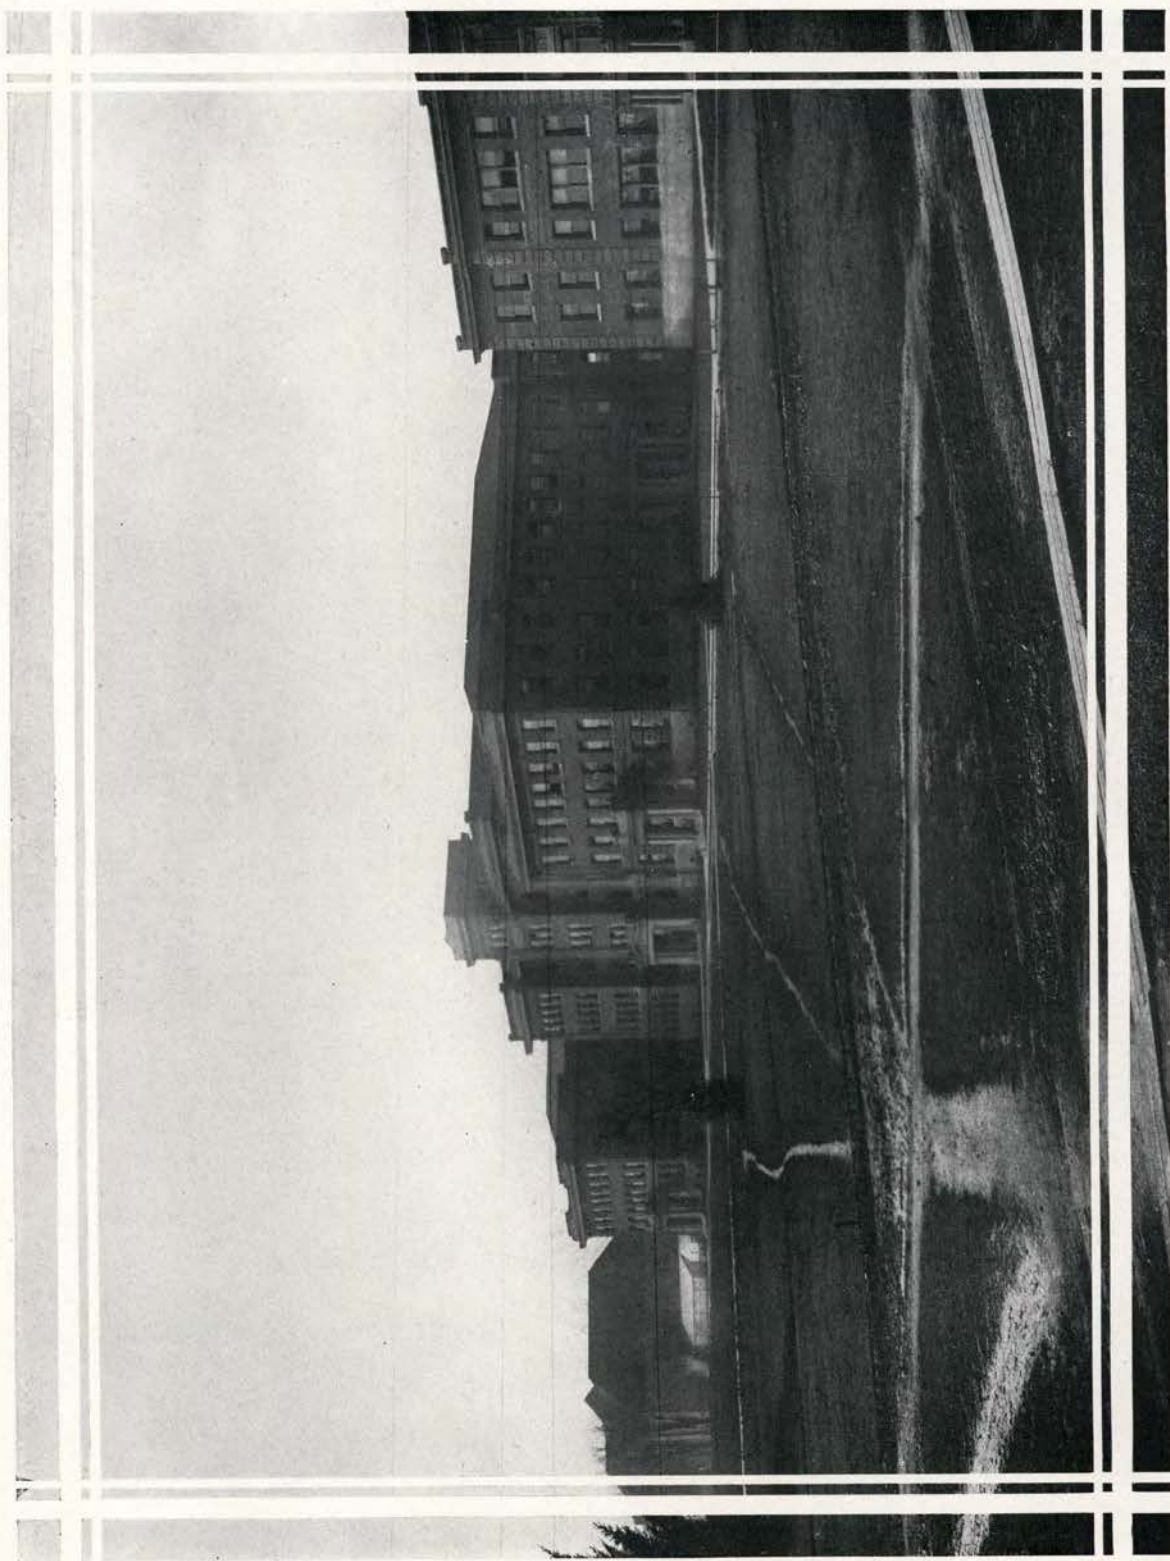

Of those of the cast who deserves special mention, perhaps Miss Helen Maguire ranks first. Her part was exceedingly small, but her cleverness of acting and charm of personality entitle her to this rank. The leads were well taken by Walter Dutton, as "Captain Jack Absolute," and Miss Ruth Shepard, as "Miss Lydia Languish." The character parts were well sustained throughout the play—Godfrey, while his presentation of "Bob Acres" was not the lovable, innocent country lad of Joseph Jefferson, was very amusing as the unsophisticated country bumpkin; Miss Bertha Booth as "Mrs. Malaprop," was fine; and Neer made a good "crabber" in the part of "Sir Anthony Absolute." The entire cast was well balanced and the work of each person good.

The cast was as follows:

Lydia Languish, Mrs. Malaprop's niece.....	Miss Ruth Shepard
Julia Melville, Sir Anthony's ward.....	Miss Mildred Wilson
Mrs. Malaprop.....	Miss Bertha Booth
Lucy, Mrs. Malaprop's maid.....	Miss Helen Maguire
Capt. Jack Absolute.....	Walter Dutton
Sir Anthony Absolute, his father.....	Francis E. Neer
Bob Acres.....	G. G. Godfrey

THE CORVALLIS ALUMNI CLUB

Corvallis, Ore., March 15, 1913.

Strictly speaking, there is no such organization, but we have a Benton County Alumni Association whose activities are confined chiefly to Corvallis. We are awaiting the action of the Portland O. A. C. Club in calling for a state convention of O. A. C. Clubs to reorganize along the lines that may be suggested.

A history of our present organization for the past year concerning its social doings would be of little general interest, although we have enjoyed some delightful meetings. One of our annual affairs is our Christmas party.

Prior to the Alumni-Varsity football game last Fall several lady members of our organization and the secretary of the O. A. C. Alumni Association decided to give the gridiron warriors of other days a fitting reception. The telephone was freely used in notifying all graduates and former students that they were expected to be present at the game, and a large crowd turned out to cheer for the returning boys. A party was to have been given to the alumni players and all arrangements made, but we were notified that some other feature had been prepared for their entertainment that evening.

We are so close to the college, here, and so in touch with its activities that the necessity of a distinct organization of former students is not so apparent as elsewhere, but when the state convention of O. A. C. Clubs is called we will be ready and will send to Portland a delegation of over 100.

MRS. C. M. MCKELLIPS, '95.

THE WALLOWA COUNTY O. A. C. CLUB

Joseph, Ore., Feb. 20, 1913.

The Wallowa County O. A. C. Club is an organization composed of all students of Wallowa County, who have and are, at present, attending the Oregon Agricultural College. The officers are: L. Burnaugh, president; Lawrence Allen, secretary, and William Spence, treasurer. The Wallowa County O. A. C. Club holds an annual meeting at the Wallowa Lake, a beautiful summer resort, and an annual hop at different towns in the county. The purpose of the club is to put the Oregon Agricultural College first and foremost in the minds of the people of Wallowa County, to get acquainted with the old and new students at O. A. C., thus working as a unit for the good of the school, and to create that old O. A. C. spirit among the high school students of the county, thus making them think of our school first before entering any college or university.

M. C. HAYS, '09.

THE PORTLAND O. A. C. CLUB

Portland, Ore., March 2, 1913.

The first official effort to effect a permanent Portland O. A. C. organization took place November 16, 1912, when a small but loyal collection of O. A. C. graduates and former students met and decided that Portland logically should be the headquarters of the central and largest alumni association in the state. To this end a permanent organization was effected by the election of the following officers:

President, W. Y. Masters; first vice-president, Miss Gladys Moore; second vice-president, D. M. McClaire; secretary-treasurer, M. E. Smead.

Board of Trustees—E. C. Calloway, S. A. Wilson, R. R. Clark, John Schroeder, J. H. Gallagher, H. C. Getz.

In order to make the work more comprehensive and the membership larger the organization was officially named the Portland O. A. C. Club, granting membership to any person living in Portland or vicinity who shall have completed two complete semesters resident work, or its equivalent, at the College.

Two successful dancing parties have been given by the club. These events stimulate interest and insure a large attendance at the business meetings.

Members of the club looking into the future have a vision of a neat club house, where long separated classmates come together and meet the new grads., where visiting students are welcomed and introduced, where the faculty member is recognized not as a tyrant of the classroom, but as a brother working for a common cause, and where petty jealousies and school or party politics are smothered beneath unlimited quantities of college spirit, lingering the longer when college day memories and events are portrayed by class pictures, various trophies, lovely creations of pennants, rugs and pillows, and a general artistic O. A. C. decoration. Such is only our dream, but this dream bids fair to some day become a reality.

TO MT. CHINTIMINI

(MARY'S PEAK)

Long aeons 'ere time began,
Centuries before the advent of man,
Whence out of chaos the earth took form,
Mt. Chintimini then was born.

Thou art the grandest of all thy regions
The season's prophet, omen of legions,
Silent witness to a vanquished race,
Yet time with thee has left no trace.

Firm hast thou stood thru storm and night
Guarding what would seem thy right,
The peaceful valley, with sentinel care,
Vieing with it in beauty rare.

Chintimini! White-capped sentinel of time!
The hand that wrought thee was divine,
And from thee this lesson we should learn,
Midst temptation's storm, stand ever firm.

TOGETHER

The moon had raced the cool ravines and tip-toed through the pines,
The ripples laughed, and lullabys beguiled the trailing vines;
The water lilies bowed to us along the dappled pond,
And through the darkling trestle-work the rapids gleamed beyond

A trampling in the hazel wood and tinklings on the hill
Came softly to us as we dipped and paddled past the mill;
And here the night hawks hovered low and touched the passing skiff,
And here the owl awoke at guard and challenged from the cliff.

And hoofs of horses, low or loud, beat promptly on the bridge,
Or still retreating rose and fell across the moonlit ridge;
While far below us, ghostly dim, the silent city glowed,
A mist upon her steeple tops, and lanterns down the road.

And you were lithe and cool and free; the skiff was in your hands;
She bubbled down the crystal creek, and through the dewy lands;
And so we sang with waterfalls, and so we ranged the sky,
And so explored Elysian shores, my roving mate and I.

IN THE MELTING POT

I. B. Stubborn, freshman, pranced into his room on Wednesday evening, mad enough to possess a poisonous bite. He bounced himself into his arm-chair, and got busy, mentally, annihilating the male portion of the sophomore class, toenails to dandruff. Most of them he sent to the hospital, crippled for life. A few special unfortunates, he laid out in the morgue, sending their shrinking, shrieking souls to meet their just reward.

After decimating the college enrollment to his satisfaction, he dragged his slaughter-wearied mind from the scene of carnage, and set it to work on his personal troubles.

He turned to face the dilapidated skull of an ancient Indian warrior with a broken tomahawk buried over its right temple. He had plowed up the skull on his father's farm; and, happy thought, he had brought it along to add that touch of the bizarre to his table and room, so dear to the heart of the true collegian. Lately, it had become the only confidant that he dared to trust.

"Big Chief," Stubborn inquired of the empty shell sympathetically, "you got yours, didn't you? I never appreciated it before, but now I know how you felt when you saw it coming.

"It wouldn't be so bad," he continued, reflecting gloomily, "if those dubs of Sophs. would only put a dent in my dome like the one that you are carrying. Instead, they set their basso profundo intellects in motion, and decree that all freshmen shall decorate themselves with a ridiculous green cap.

"Nice note isn't it," he sneered, "when a fellow circuses himself up to take a girl to a dance, that he is compelled to crown his celebration rags with a verdant lid?"

"The Sophs. warned me today," he stated contemptuously, "never to appear on the streets again without a freshman's cap, or they would duck me in the campus fountain. They said that if I got too fresh, that they would put salt in the water before they soused me in."

As Stubborn dwelt on his wrongs, his rage got the best of him. He sprang to his feet and shook his fist in front of the spot where the old warrior's nose had once been.

"Let 'em put salt or lye or anything they blamed please in the water!" he yelled. "But I can tell 'em one thing: I'll never wear one of those beastly, little lids, not if they keep me in the soak 'til I dissolve and wash down the drain!"

"Is that so?" queried a sarcastic voice from the street.

In dismay, Stubborn glanced out of his open window. There in the moonlight, not ten feet away, were clustered a dozen sophomores.

"Come on, let's attend to his case!" continued the voice, while the sophomores scattered and surrounded the house with a concerted rush.

However, Stubborn proposed to make himself as interesting as possible. He drove out of the back door like a scared rabbit, and earnestly endeavored to extend the scenery between himself and a husky sophomore who had been too late, by inches, to intercept the flying freshman as he shot from his room to the street.

Undoubtedly, Stubborn would have eluded the pack at his heels, and have delayed the inevitable punishment for his sins by hours, perhaps days, had he not had the misfortune, in turning a corner, to catapult himself into the center of another band of sophomores. In an instant, he was a prisoner.

Kicking and fighting, and, it is to be feared, using language not learned at his mother's knee, the struggling freshman was dragged to the fountain, where many a better man than himself had received his first rude shock in life's lessons. With a chilling splash, he sank beneath the purging waters; and, when his grasping form sprang back over the rim of the fountain, the sophomores had melted into the moonlight.

The next morning, Stubborn walked up the campus bareheaded.

"Where's your hat?" inquired an interested sophomore.

Stubborn put his hand to his head in well-feigned surprise.

"I must have forgotten it," he replied.

The sophomore looked suspiciously at the freshman's bulging pocket. Then, suddenly thrusting in an investigating hand, he pulled out something.

It was a green cap.

THE BEAVER SPIRIT

Did you gaze with pride while the lusty forms
Lined up for the coming fray?
When the air was still, did you feel a thrill
As the teams swept into play?
Did you give a shout when a foot swung out
And the pigskin cut the blue?
Then I know you're back of the Orange and Black,
You're a Beaver, staunch and true.

Did you see them plunge 'gainst the Whitman team
And the boasted line give way?
Did you cheer them along with a Beaver song,
Are you proud of the way they play?
Were you glad you won when the game was done,
Were you back of the team to a man?
Then I know you're struck with the Beaver pluck,
And you're one of the Beaver clan.

THE VENTURE

Take the risk, make the try!
Now's the leap, lad, or never;
Fate herself passes by—
Take the risk, make the try;
In her deep moonlit eye
Joy and fame burn forever—
Take the risk, make the try,
Now's the leap, lad, or never!

THE VOICE OF THE SEASONS

The saddened winds were wailing
Through the drear December wood,
And the last leaves, brown and withered,
Swirled round me where I stood,
With despairing eyes uplifted
To the naked branches high,
Whose tips, so gray and lifeless,
Seemed to pierce the leaden sky.

How unlike the bright-eyed springtime,
Whom the poet's fancy loves,
With her sweet and langorous breezes
Bringing song of mating doves.
With her peeping winsome wild flowers
Strewing beauty all around,
And her tender green upspringing
From the moist and steaming ground.

How unlike the fruitful summer,
With her granaries piled high
In the golden hoard of harvest,
That delights the toiler's eye.
With her memories that haunt me,
Of those evenings, long gone by,
When the last far-shadowing sunbeams
Set aflame the western sky.

Unlike, too, the bracing autumn,
With her nights all frosty clear,
When the wild geese, honking southward,
Thus proclaim the waning year.
Autumn, with her leaves of russet,
Flakes of gold that shimmer down
To the variegated carpet
Spread across the hillside brown.

Some there are who hold communion
With all Nature, through the year,
In her summer, sing of roses,
In her winter, drop a tear.
'Tis to these, in soft breeze murmurs,
Nature speaks in tones of love;
Whispering of age-old wisdom,
Whispering of God above.

—R. H. SAVAGE, '14.

HAIL O. A. C.

Builder of manhood—strong, enduring,
Pride of the Orange-Black Beaver clan;
Out where the western peaks are towering,
Playing thy part in a nation's plan.
Shrine of a deep, sincere devotion,
Loved with a love that cannot fail;
Proudly we sing thy worth and praise thee,
Hail, O. A. C., all hail!

Moulder of thought—sublime, inspiring,
Mother of men of power and fame;
Rich are the tributes we would render,
Deep are the thoughts that shrine thy name.
We who have loved thee long, revere thee;
Long may thy strength and power prevail.
Down through the years thy praise is ringing,
Hail, O. A. C., all hail!

UTOPIAN LITERARY SOCIETY

THERE is a beginning to all things. The Utopian Literary Society first came into existence in 1900, and since that date, year by year it has treaded its upward path until today it is a strong and well supported society.

True to its name, its members are not satisfied with existing conditions, but are ever working for the betterment of themselves and O. A. C. The aim of the Utopians is to work together in the study of the literary world. Here subjects are brought up which are not discussed in the class room; such as reviews of the best books and authors as well as current topics of the day. It is by means of this training that its members obtain an ease of expression which is of great benefit to them in their future careers.

ZETAGATHIAN LITERARY SOCIETY

THE Zetagathian Literary Society was organized in 1896. At the time of its organization, its main purpose was to further literary work, but the field was later enlarged to include the presentation of popular plays.

In this endeavor, the Zetes, assisted by their sister society, the Utopians, showed themselves equal to any task which they undertook.

As the giving of plays is now monopolized by one society at college, the Zetes are holding themselves strictly to a literary career. The society this year is among the few were able to stay intact and weather through the storm of disintegration brought about by Friday night social activities.

MUSIC

THE Glee-Mandolin Club, this year, made its third annual tour of the state and has succeeded in establishing itself as a permanent organization of the institution.

Under the supervision of Prof. Wm. F. Gaskins, the Glee-Mandolin Club has made for itself a state-wide reputation, reflecting honor upon itself and upon the institution by the excellent quality of work done.

During the season of 1912-13, the club has given eighteen concerts, appearing in all of the larger towns of the valley.

The advertising value of the organization to the institution will readily be understood when it is realized that hundreds of high school students are met, personally, and the work at O. A. C. is explained to them.

The social side of the club is pleasant indeed and the chance to make the club should never be neglected.

THE CADET BAND

THE band is primarily a military organization, being a distinct part of the cadet regiment, where it has long been known for its efficiency. Wherever it has appeared in parade it has easily been first as a military band.

However, it is toward the developing of a first class concert organization that the instructor has put forth his greatest efforts. This is Captain Beard's eighth year as instructor of the band, and during that time it has been his aim, through the use of good music, to elevate the musical taste, not only of the members of the band, but of the whole community as well. Through his own efforts, the enthusiastic work of the band boys and the hearty support of the college and town people, O. A. C. now has an aggregation conceded to be the best amateur concert and military band in the Northwest.

THE STUDENT ASSEMBLY

THE Student Assembly of the Oregon Agricultural College has come to face many weighty problems in the last few years, and has certainly proven that it is a body of broad-minded men and women.

Among its several branches of enterprise are: The Barometer, the official bi-weekly publication of the College; Oratory and Debate; Athletics, in all forms, and the Student Self-Government, directed by the Student Council.

During the past season, the Assembly has handled the "Oregon Question" in a diplomatic manner, and the general progress of the student body has been shown by the reorganization of the Athletic Board of Control, and the Resolutions concerning Freshmen Discipline. The Assembly has shown its business sagacity in starting the Student Co-operative Store, and its greatest triumph in the consideration of weighty matters was when, at a crisis in the life of the Student Council, it decided to support that body in all its activities.

For the year's success, much credit is due to Ralph A. Blanchard, the President of the Student Assembly. The officers who have just brought the Assembly through another lap in its successful career are:

President of Student Assembly.....	Ralph A. Blanchard
First Vice-President.....	Burt C. Burdick
Second Vice-President.....	Chester A. Dickey
Third Vice-President.....	Walter J. Koenig
Secretary	Gertrude Walling
Editor of Barometer.....	R. B. Thompson

Secretary Oratory and Debate.....	O. B. Hayes
Treasurer Oratory and Debate.....	J. C. Gibbs

RALPH A. BLANCHARD

STUDENT COUNCIL

Practically completing its third year of existence the "Student Council" which was first ushered in as an experiment has now proven itself to be a permanent organization of the Student Assembly.

The Student Council is run upon similar plans of other institutions. Organized upon the principle of government for the students, and by the students it owes its success. The council is composed of thirteen members, seven of which are Seniors, three Juniors, two Sophomores and one Freshman. Their duty is to formulate and enforce such regulations and discipline as the Student Body may direct.

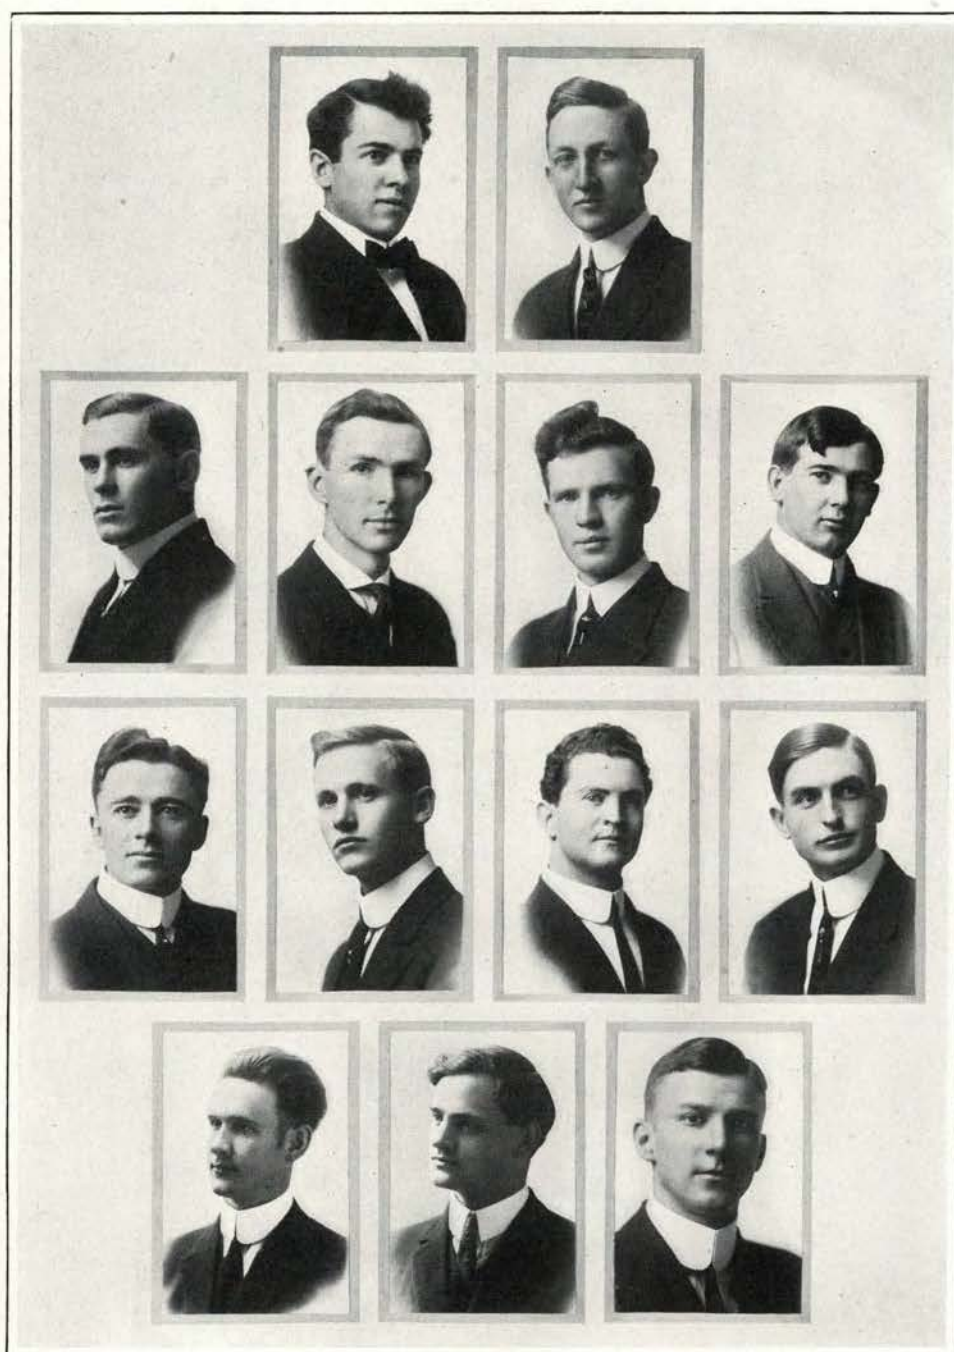

The council strives to give careful and impartial judgment to all cases which may come before it, attempting to correct and aid the transgressor with good fellowship, applying punishment only when unavoidable. While the Student Council has been going through an evolution and is far from being perfect as yet, the loyal support of the Student Body and the work it has effected in the past is commendable, leading towards still more successful years in the future.

THE original Engineering Association was formed in January, 1905. It then included Juniors and Seniors in the electrical and mechanical courses only. Its objects were to promote the interests of the engineering department and to secure a greater spirit of advancement along engineering lines. They held bi-monthly meetings, at which programs consisted of papers by faculty and student members.

In 1908 the electrical engineers formed their local branch of the A. I. E. E., and the following year the former Engineering Association became the local A. S. M. E. By the year 1910, the year in which the present organization was formed, every branch of the engineers had formed an association of its own. These organizations carried on the work of the old organization as applied to their own branches. The need was felt, however, of an organization embracing all of these, which could bring the engineers into closer touch socially, thus assisting in the furtherance of the interests of the engineers at large.

The Engineering Association was accordingly formed in the Fall of 1910, it being provided in the constitution that the editor and manager of the Student Engineer should assume the offices of president and secretary-treasurer. This organization seemed, however, to be inadequate, and in the Fall of 1912 the association was reorganized and separate officers were elected. W. L. Dutton was elected president, C. E. Oaks vice-president, L. F. Cronemiller secretary, H. S. Babb treasurer, L. F. Cronemiller publicity manager, and E. B. Loken sergeant-at-arms.

Developments of the present year have shown the wisdom of this move. Both business and social meetings have been well and enthusiastically attended, and a deep interest in the association, its objects and its continuance is apparent in the students of all the classes.

AMERICAN INSTITUTE OF ELECTRICAL ENGINEERS

PROBABLY the best organization for the promotion of the electrical science is the American Institute of Electrical Engineers. Headquarters of the Institute are maintained in New York City and there are branch organizations in many of the large cities and the technical schools throughout the country.

The Oregon Agricultural College branch of the American Institute of Electrical Engineers was organized in accordance with the rules of the National organization. The branch has for its purpose the discussion of recent inventions and discoveries in the electrical engineering profession. It also affords a means of promoting good fellowship among its members. Meetings are held bi-weekly and programs are given, which consist of talks by practical engineers, the presentation of original papers by members or the discussion of papers presented at the National Institute meetings in New York.

These meetings afford an excellent opportunity for the student to become acquainted with the practical problems that are occupying the attention of the leaders in their future profession.

THE Civil Engineering Association was organized in 1908, the primary object being to give the students enrolled in the Civil Engineering course a broader idea of engineering methods, to promote a greater interest in present day undertakings along civil engineering lines, and to create a better fellowship among the members.

In addition to the instructive benefits received, many social functions are participated in by the members. Big feeds and social programs are given from time to time, and it is safe to say that those in attendance never regret the time spent.

THE FOREST CLUB

THE Forest Club is one of the livest organizations on the campus. It has grown from a club of five members in 1906 to one of fifty-five at the present time.

Meetings are held fortnightly. Pertinent subjects are discussed as to forestry conditions, methods, etc. The evenings devoted to social affairs are always well attended, for snappiness is a strong feature in all of the Forest Club meetings.

The annual dance given by the club is one of the big social affairs of the year. It was given on February 15 in the O. N. G. Armory, which was transformed into a very realistic sylvan scene by means of the profuse forest decorations.

While the Forest Club is conceded to be a strong and efficient organization, the members ascribe much of their success to the efforts of Professor Peavy and Mr. Newins.

FORESTRY CLUB

THE Agricultural Club has a membership of about 175 students, and is open to all men in the various lines of agriculture. Every live agricultural student should identify himself with the Agricultural Club, as it offers the best opportunity for the men of the different classes to get acquainted with each other and the great field of agriculture. The club aims to broaden the minds of its members, and to create interest and an enthusiasm in the general field of agriculture.

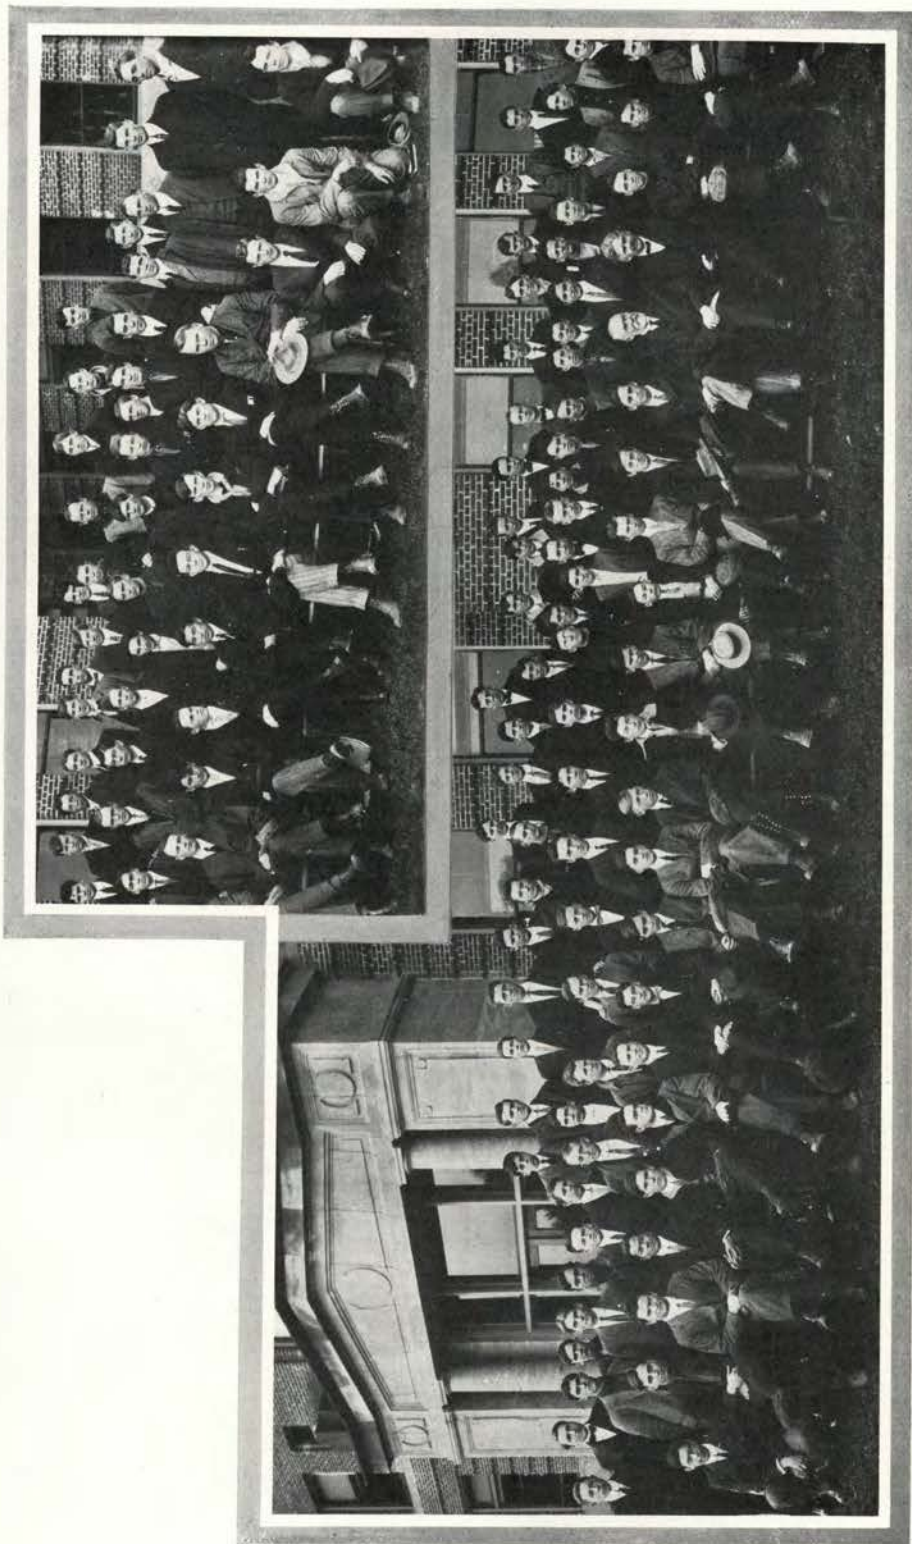

The Oregon Countryman, the official publication of the Agricultural Club, with J. E. Cooter as editor, and D. B. Hogan as manager, has reached a foremost place among the college publications of the country.

The Agricultural Fair is one of the great events of the year. At this time it is intended to exhibit the work of the different departments, and the educational features are emphasized. This year the fair was held January 11, and it was the greatest success, both financially and entertainingly, of any fair ever held. The Senior D. S. girls combined with the horticultural department to show the process of transforming the big red apple into the big spicy dumplings.

An O. A. C. demonstration car and the college professors represented by proxy the "Hungry Band," and the "Big Five Quartette" were amusing sides of the fair.

AGRICULTURAL CLUB

THE Commercial Club is one of the livest organizations of the college, including about 150 members. At the time of its organization, in 1907, it included only Seniors and Juniors, but in 1909 the membership was extended to include the Sophomores and Freshmen as well.

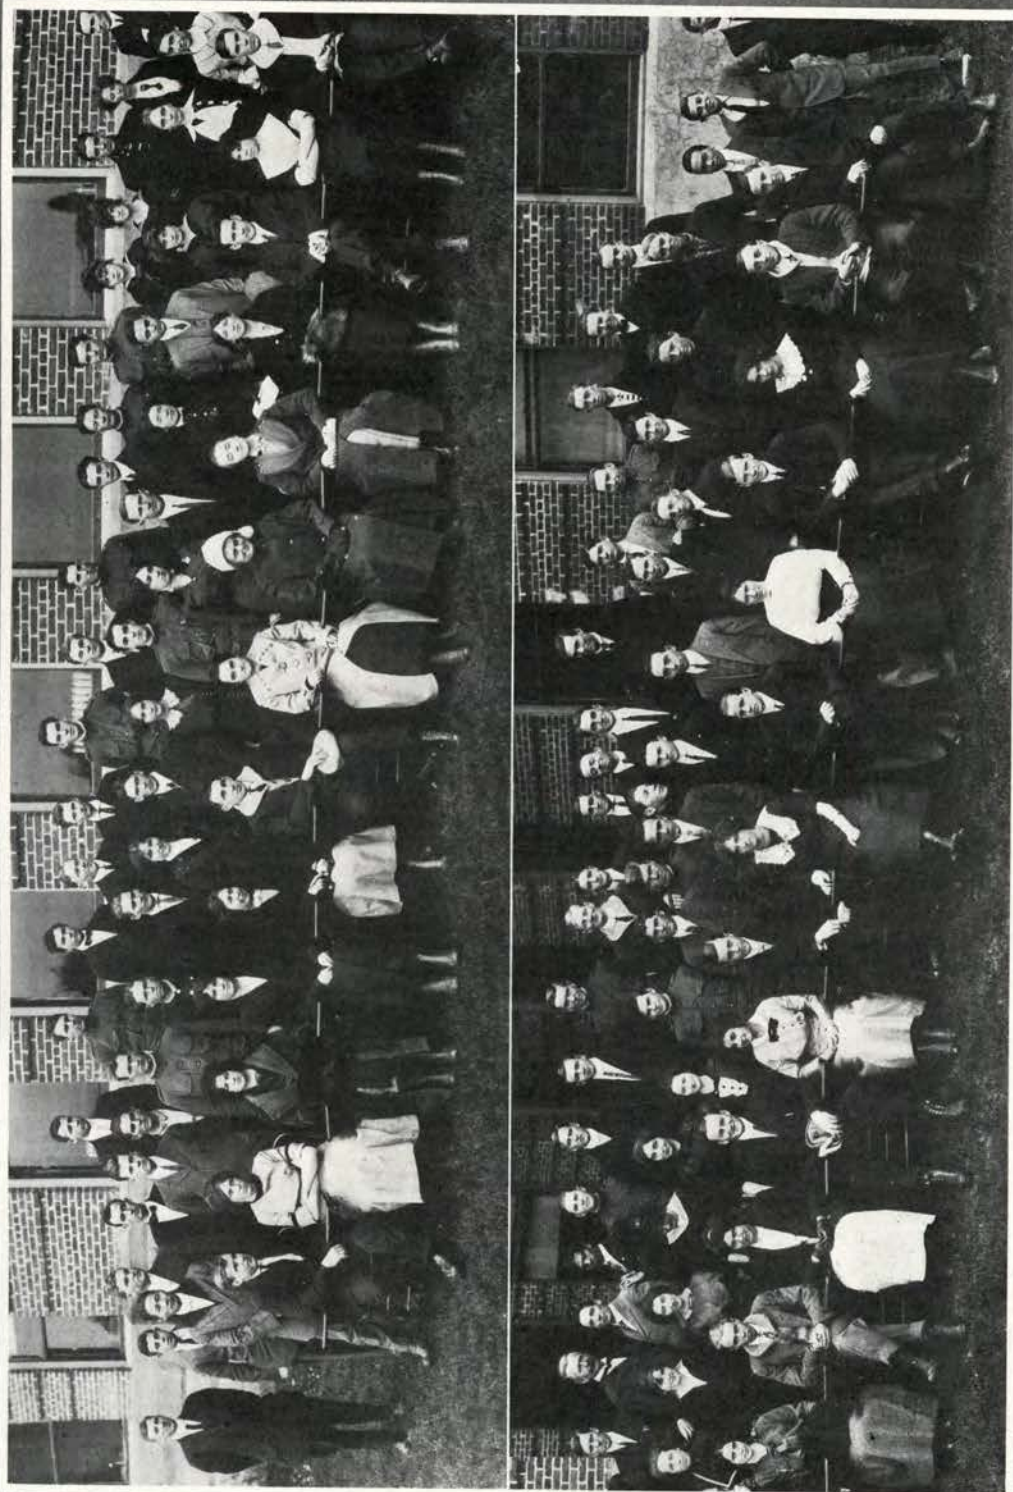

Considering the organization from its accomplishments, it is among the most progressive in college. Meetings are held every two weeks on Friday, at which times the students are treated by a program, or a lecture by one of Oregon's foremost business men. These lectures are on subjects which pertain to the problems of the average business man and give the students an insight into what they have to meet after leaving college and the protecting care of the instructors.

Last year the Commercial students combined with the Pharmacy section in issuing a student publication, the C. P. Journal. This proved a success from the start and the C. P. Journal is now issued four times a year, and besides the articles of merit which it contains, it meets one of the greatest needs of the students by printing a student directory.

Another phase of the work of the Commercial Club is the Commercial Museum, which contains specimens of merchandise, both raw material and manufactured goods. These articles are of especial interest in political economy, as they show the evolution of merchandise through a series of developments.

THE Pharmaceutical Association of O. A. C. was organized for the purpose of bringing the members of the Department of Pharmacy in closer relation with each other, in order that a better acquaintance with practical pharmaceutical methods and usages might be secured, and to unite the pharmacy students in a closer acquaintance with the customs of the profession.

During the year it has been the fortune of the association to have many instructive lectures given by different members of the faculty and representatives of the various large drug concerns throughout the state. A feature of the latter part of the year is the question box. This always proves to be a live number on the program.

Due to the interesting character of the meetings and the enthusiasm displayed by the members, the association is sure to retain its high standard.

PHARMACEUTICAL ASSOCIATION

THE Oregon Architectural Club was organized, with the assistance of R. H. Dobell, during the school year of 1911-12, with Harry G. Smith as president.

The purpose of the club is to supplement the work in the classroom with lectures by members of the faculty and by practicing architects who could be secured, on subjects of interest to students of architecture. It also gives the students an opportunity to discuss problems relative to the study of architecture.

It has been the aim of the club to hold the meetings on the Wednesday of each alternate week. During the past year we were favored with a number of illustrated lectures by various members of the faculty and by members of the club, which were very interesting and instructive.

The election of the officers for the ensuing year was held last June, and all the members came back to college with enthusiasm aroused for the work of the club.

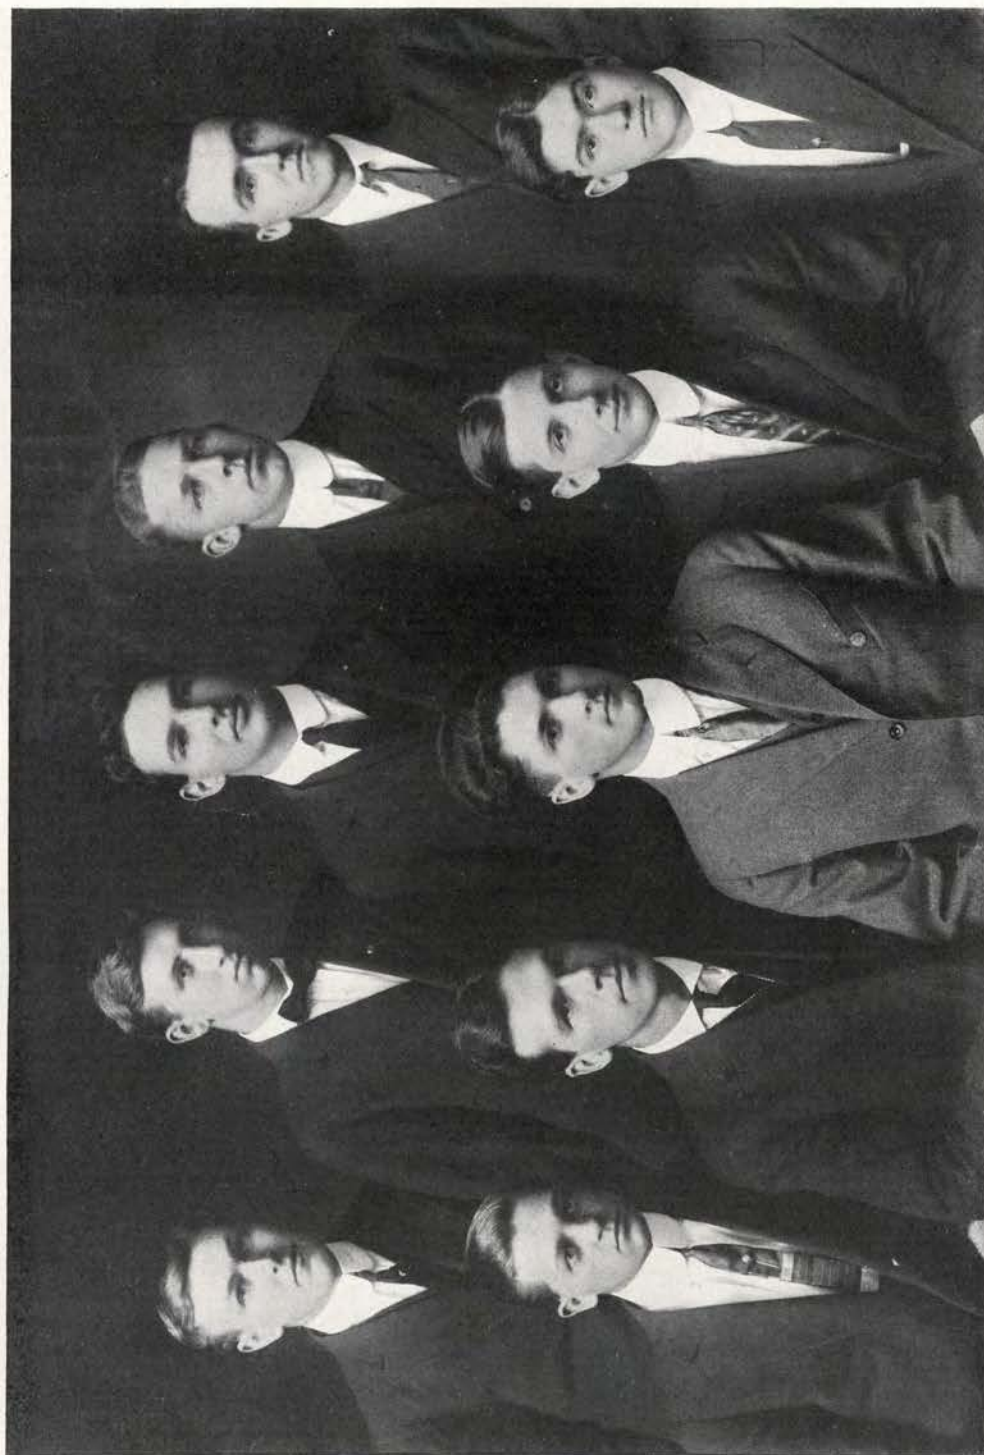

A number of new members were added from the Freshmen class, and the officers are encouraged by the interest taken in the club this year. Some of the meetings were turned into purely social affairs and were a marked success.

One of the most enjoyable of these was a "chicken feed," held at Hotel Julian, where covers were laid for twenty, and from which all arose wishing that such enjoyable occasions would come weekly.

It is hoped the interest that has been aroused in the club may continue, and that it may be a factor for making O. A. C. a better insitution.

Home ECONOMICS

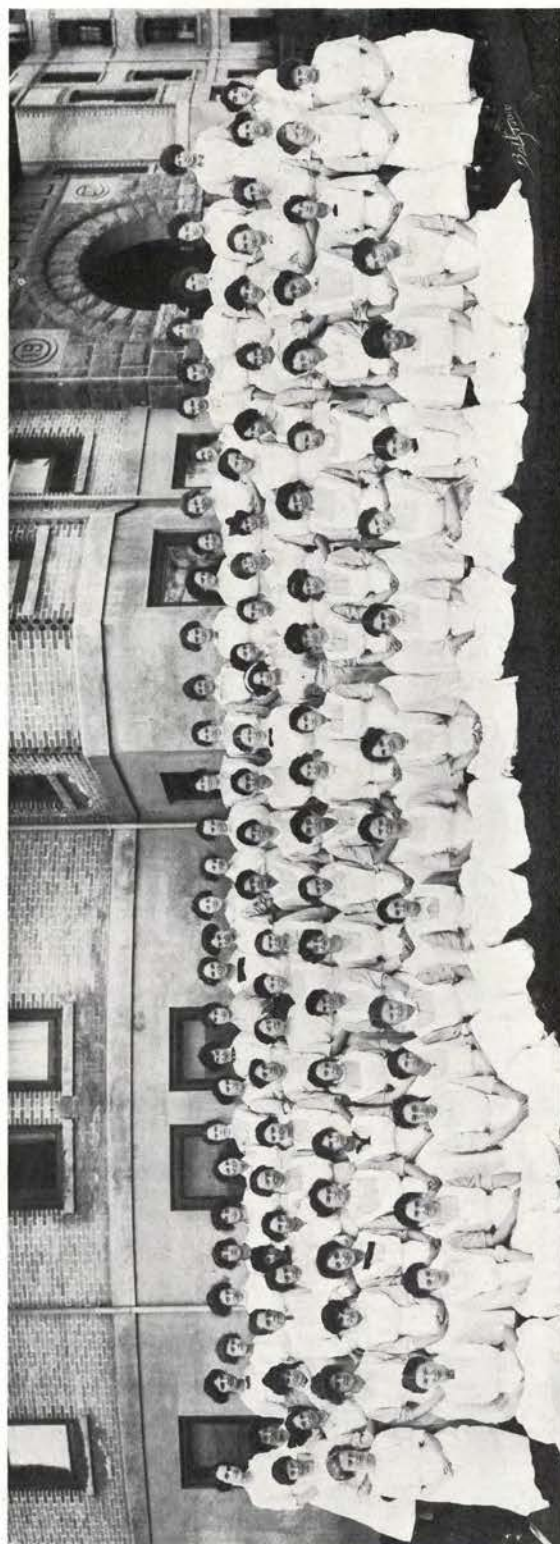

THE HOME ECONOMICS CLUB

THE Home Economics Club of the Oregon Agricultural College is an organization which represents the departments of Domestic Science and Art. Its purpose is to promote an interest in Domestic Science and Art and to bring the faculty and students of this school into closer relationship. Through this relationship of the students and faculty, they are banded together with the one mutual aim, which is to advance further efficiency in this work.

The club was organized this year, and it is hoped that it will grow in popularity. Any faculty or student of the Domestic Science and Art School may be members of this club. The two chief functions for the year are the customary party with the Agricultural Club, and the Agricultural Domestic Science Fair. The dean and the faculty of the School of Domestic Science and Art are the advisors of the club.

THE MUSICAL ART CLUB

THE Musical Art Club is an organization of students who are registered in the School of Music, and who have attained full college standing. The club purposes to act as a medium of social intercourse as well as an incentive to further musical study among its members.

While the club is yet in an early stage, having been organized within the present year, strong interest and enthusiasm are shown by the members. Meetings are held every two weeks, when musical subjects are discussed and programs rendered by the members. The club had several delightful social functions during the early Spring days.

THE Mask and Dagger, the O. A. C. dramatic club, was formed in the Winter of 1911-12, by the combination of the Philadelphian Literary Society, a man's society, and their sister society, the Feronian Literary Society. Previous to this union the principal activity of the two societies was along the line of dramatics, and in these efforts they had been highly successful.

The year 1911-12 resulted in the disappearance of many of the old-time literary societies because of their inability to follow out the lines for which they were created and the starting of societies with specialized purposes. The need of a club with nothing but dramatic tendencies had long been felt and the two above mentioned societies united to accomplish this purpose.

In the two old societies, membership was subject to election, but in the Mask and Dagger it has been the desire to get together a group of men and women with more or less dramatic ability. To further this purpose a try-out is held each semester, to which all bona fide students of the college are eligible. It is required that each contestant memorize his or her piece and give the best interpretation before judges from among the members of the faculty who are deemed capable of acting as judges. However, the club retains the privilege of voting on all contestants passed by the judges in order to keep out all persons that may become disturbing factors.

The Mask and Dagger has been highly successful so far, due to the excellency of the cast and the high efficiency of the coaching of Mrs. Carter in "Mary Jane's Pa," and Miss Thayer in "The Rivals." The grade of acting has been very high for amateurs and has always received high praise. An excellent start has been made, and a high prestige of efficiency set that bodes well for future success.

THE Eastern Oregon Club is an organization of students from all the counties in Oregon east of the Cascade Mountains. The object in organizing was to bring the people of that section in closer touch with the college by a systematic effort. That the club has done some effective work is shown by the increase in the registration of Eastern Oregon students.

At the meetings of the club, entertaining and instructive programs are given. Talks are given by students from each of the courses taught at the college. In this way the club becomes familiar with what the college offers to the young men and women of Oregon. Members also give talks upon the industries and resources of their respective counties, thus familiarizing the club with all parts of the eastern section of the state. The club gives parties, dances and picnics. The announcement of any social function by the club is always an assurance of a good time for all who attend.

The following are the counties from which students are eligible to membership in the club; also the number registered from each county during the first semester of the 1912-13 term: Baker, 8; Crook, 15; Gilliam, 33; Grant, 3; Harney, 10; Lake, 8; Hood River, 20; Malheur, 51; Sherman, 11; Umatilla, 31; Union, 25; Wallowa, 21; Wheeler, 3; Wasco, 14; Klamath, 6.

The students registering during the second semester makes a total of 265 Eastern Oregon students. The club is a real live organization, with a lot of that Eastern Oregon spirit which makes for success in whatever it undertakes to do.

EASTERN OREGON CLUB

THE Hood River Club was organized in October, 1912, by the students from the Hood River Valley. The purpose of the club is to provide a means of getting together for social functions, as well as to discuss matters of interest in the college in relation to home interests; also to do a little boosting at both places.

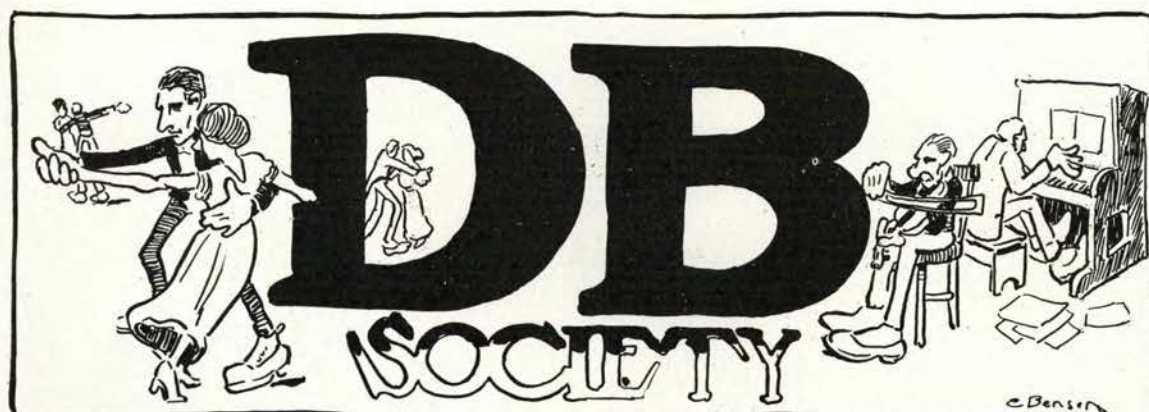

During the Christmas holidays the Hood River Club, in conjunction with the O. A. C. Club at Hood River, gave a dance, which was a decided success and which aroused quite an interest in the college.

PIERIAN OUTDOOR CLUB

PEARLY in the Fall of 1912 the girls of the Pierian Literary Society, finding a lack of interest in literary work, reorganized into the Pierian Outdoor Club. The object of the organization is to stimulate an interest in sports and outdoor exercise and to bring the members together in a way to promote health and good fellowship. Tramps in the country and picnics have appeared on the program, as a trip to "Baldy" before breakfast, and a supper at the Gates farm, four miles northwest of town. Many more outings are being planned for the delightful Spring days, and it is the ambition of the members to include canoe trips and teams for various outdoor games in the plans for the coming year.

ORGANIZATIONS may stand for much or little in college life. Those which deal with vital subjects are of most importance to the students interested in their activities. The Young Men's and Young Women's Christian Associations are groups which take up subjects of deep interest to all students. Through the associations, the college men and women are given opportunities for active service to their fellow students and inspirations for their college duties.

Each association has an administrative body known as the Cabinet, headed by a general secretary.

 NE of the most interesting features of the O. A. C. is the dormitory life of the college women. This is agreeably enjoyed by over 200 lively and enthusiastic co-eds, who spend nine happy months under the roof of Waldo Hall.

The hall itself is a large, spacious building, with beautiful parlors for entertaining, and the individual rooms show the fine type of girls abiding there. The completion of the large fireplace, given by the Portland business men, made a pleasing background for the crowds who attended the annual reception. The reception was made possible by the generosity of Mrs. Clara Waldo, the big sister of all Waldo Hall women.

One of the many innovations of 1913 is the "big sister movement," instigated by Dr. Anna Zou Crayne, dean of women. Each Freshman girl has chosen for her big sister a Junior woman for counselor and advisor. Both classes have entered into the plan with great enthusiasm, and it is sure to prove of great benefit to both Freshman and Junior women.

WALDO HALL CLUB

STUDENTS who have never been members of the Cauthorn Club can have only a vague idea of the social and educational values of the club life. Some of the rokiest rooks, who have been fortunate enough to become members of the club, have developed in a very short time into shining lights of society.

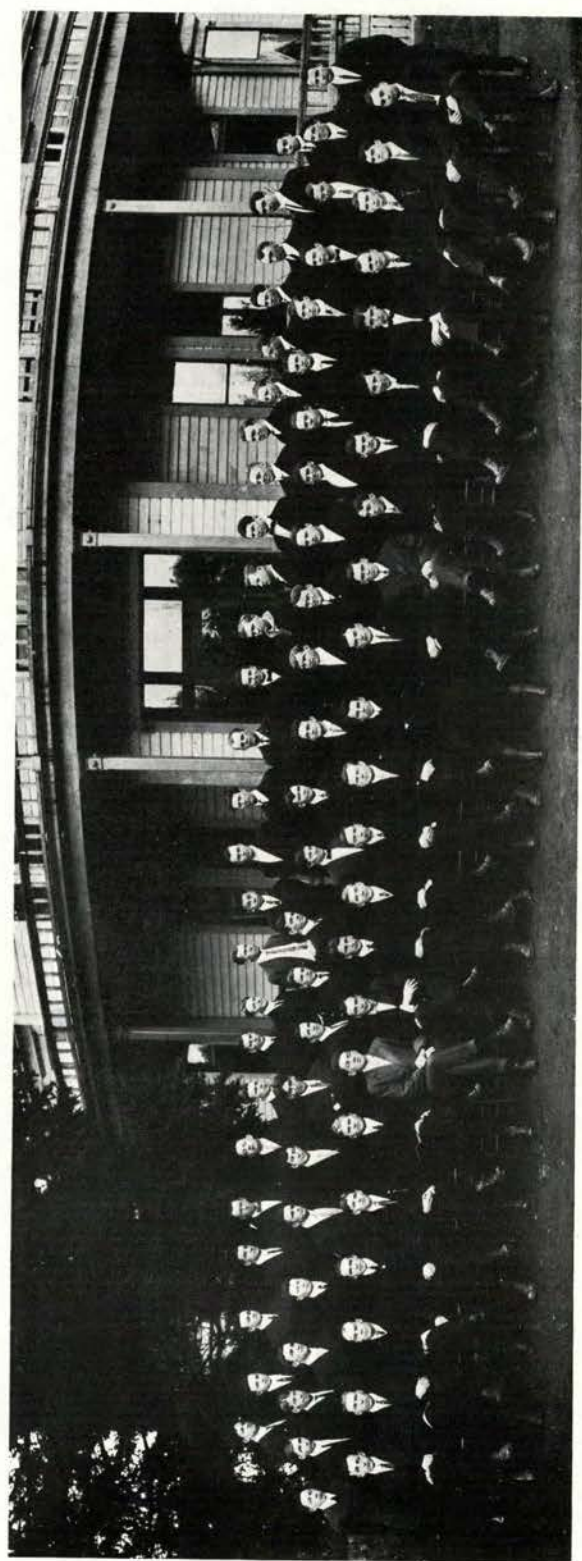

An O. A. C. graduate has well said that of his college career he considered the experiences of his two years' stay at Cauthorn Hall a very essential part of his education.

It is the custom of the club when visited by a former member to call on him for a short address, and without an exception, the opening sentence of his speech is: "I am glad to be back." This is proof positive that they affirm the statement made in the above paragraph.

The history of Cauthorn Hall as a club is very short, extending over only about five years, but as a home for students its history is more extended. In tracing up the history from the early days of the hall, it is found that under the emperial rule the two rulers of note are Jacky B. and Don Fero-lo Whisker-andos, and under the republican form of government the succession is as follows: J. E. Hanny, P. C. Zimmerman, R. S. Loosley, M. A. Nickerson and the present dean of men is LeRoy McKenzie.

Breakfast came, and there was a

At Waldo: "Where is Lela this morning?"

Noon and lunch is served and still there is a vacant chair at the Oxford.
"Where is 'Metz'?" "Oh, he is fussing. He is always fussing at dinner time."

Two o'clock—the manager walks into "Metz's" room, notices a trunk is gone. All of a sudden he becomes animated, filled with feverish excitement. Tables are searched, closets looked into, bureaus examined, and everywhere there is the desolation of vacancy. He raises the cry "Metz has put one over on us."

The denizens of the club rush thither pell-mell. During a hubbub of exclamations and grotesque gestures the truth dawns upon them. In one breath the exclamation breaks forth "He has eloped."

"Telegram! telegram!" All rush to the door. Every one waits breathless while the book is signed and the seal is broken.

"Portland, Oregon.

Waldo is called up. "Metz."

forth. "Miss Shahan left this

NINETEEN years of journalistic endeavor, on the part of the students, has seen a slow but great evolution of the Barometer. The enterprise was launched by the literary societies in March, 1894, with the publication of a small monthly pamphlet. After a series of changes, the present semi-weekly, four-page news organ has been produced.

This year for the Barometer has been a prosperous one. Under the able direction of R. B. Thompson, editor, and E. W. Curtis, manager, an efficient, well organized staff has gathered and edited the news of the students and of the college in a most praiseworthy manner. Criticism, an element to contend with in any venture, has been noticeably scarce and this has been taken as an indication of the satisfaction and approval of the student body. Financially, also, the year has been a good one, a goodly sum of money over running expenses for the remainder of the year being on hand at the middle of the second semester. The management this year will endeavor to turn a neat sum into the student loan fund.

The staff has published several special editions during the year, including the Football "Pink" and the ten-page Christmas Edition. This latter was a model of college journalism, well arranged and well written, and the state-wide praise it received was more than a payment for the labor upon it.

Volume 19 of the O. A. C. Barometer covers the nineteenth and best year in the long, successful history of the publication.

THE Oregon Countryman is now in the fifth year of its existence, and under the efficient editorship of J. C. Cooter and the able business management of D. Brooks Hogan, has had a most prosperous year. The paper was started for the purpose of trying to "bring the college to the farmer," and it is rapidly beginning to realize that purpose.

This year several new features have appeared. The Special Dairy Number for March and the Poultry Number for February are editions for which the editors of these departments, Mr. Dryden and Mr. Thompson, may well be congratulated. In response to the increasing calls for assistance in the boys' and girls' industrial work throughout the state, a new department has been organized, the Boys' and Girls' Industrial School Department.

The paper is published by the Agricultural and Domestic Science and Art students of the college, but only those articles which meet the approval of the faculty are published, for it is the aim to make the information reliable.

THE "STUDENT ENGINEER" is a monthly magazine, published by the Associated Engineers of O. A. C. It began its existence in the Spring of 1908, under the name of the Northwest Journal of Engineering, and in the Autumn of 1909 it was given its present name. The body of the magazine consists mainly of articles written by students, faculty and alumni members, with an occasional contribution from some prominent engineer who is interested in the progress of the paper. The articles cover a wide range of subjects and are of such a nature that they form a valuable addition to the students' course of instruction. Besides this, each student is given the opportunity of contributing something, thus giving him practice which cannot fail to aid him in his future work. Every effort is made to have these articles illustrated in the best possible manner by means of photographs, diagrams, curves, etc., which aid materially in understanding the facts set forth.

In the Spring of 1910 an electrical show was held for the benefit of the "Engineer," and was such a success that it was repeated the next year. In 1912 the scope of the show was increased, and it was known as the Engineering Show. This same policy was followed in 1913, with each department aiding and making it a great success.

THE C-P JOURNAL, started last year by the students of the departments of Commerce and Pharmacy, has passed safely through its second year. The publication contains articles written by students, faculty and alumni members of the two departments. As a special feature of the publication, the student directory does all that the promoter in the beginning anticipated that it would do—it fills a long-felt need at O. A. C. This feature makes the C-P Journal of interest to all the students, as well as to the faculty and townspeople.

The two departments, especially the School of Commerce, have grown so rapidly in the last few years that their large enrollment warrants their entering into such activities. Through the columns of the magazine the students in the Commerce and Pharmacy courses have an opportunity to express their ideas and opinions regarding the different phases of their work and to comment upon the work of the departments, all of which tend to strengthen each department.

TOAST TO THE TEAM

Here's to the men we know and love,
Beavers, tried and true.
Here's to the men of the Orange line,
Who are wiping the ground with you.
Up with the glass and pledge them, lads,
Flashing its amber gleam,
While deep in our hearts the toast shall be,
Here's to old O. A. C.

Rr-r-r-r, Beavers!

A REAL yell leader," some one has said, "must possess lungs of oxhide, vocal chords of high carbon steel and the temperament and enthusiasm of a Mexican general inciting a new revolution."

If the foregoing be true, O. A. C. has had a real yell leader, in every sense of the word, at the front of her rooting section for the past year, as Walter L. Dutton combines all the given characteristics with still others of his own invention. He has, in large quantities, that element most necessary to the success of a college yell leader, namely, personal magnetism. Almost any college man of ordinary ability can stand in front of a bunch of rooters and wave his arms up and down in time with a yell, but something else is needed to keep five hundred rooters cheering fiercely on the bleachers during a driving hail-storm. This "something" is what "Dut" possesses and uses to marked advantage over his opposing yell leaders. Dutton's work through the year was ably seconded by Guy D. Cronemiller, first assistant yell leader, who originated many of the novel "stunts" which were pulled off in parades and on the field.

TO THE CHORUS OF "EVERYBODY'S DOIN' IT NOW"

Watch the Beavers kill 'em off,
Rip 'em up; tear 'em up!
Watch the Beavers kill 'em off,
Knock 'em down; drag 'em out.
See that great big fellow over there,
Watch our captain throw him in the air,
Our whole team is goin' on a tear—
See 'em go! See 'em go! See 'em go now!

Watch the Beavers kill 'em off,
Rip 'em up; tear 'em up!
Watch the Beavers kill 'em off,
Knock 'em down; drag 'em out.
Watch O. A. C. handle that ball,
Whitman has no chance at all;
Poor old, sad old Whitman team,
Watch the Beavers kill 'em off now.

THE fans at the home athletic contests this year witnessed, for the first time in the history of O. A. C. "rooting," the spectacle of a co-ed leader directing the songs and yells of a well filled section of the grandstand which was occupied by girls alone.

Miss Ruth Shepard is the name by which the fair co-ed is known and her praise is being sung on every hand. The novel idea of a girls' rooter section originated with her and she carried it out with happy results. The girls' rooting was a big feature of the Whitman game and one which was by many declared to be worth alone the price of admission. A song or yell from the girls always provoked an added outburst from the men, and enthusiasm ran rampant.

Mention must also be made of Miss Vivian Root, who ably seconded Miss Shepard in her leadership. We hope that this feature of the rooting will be long continued at O. A. C.

THE SEASON'S COACHES

SAM DOLAN

To James Arbuthnot belongs the credit of turning out three championship teams in the four years he has coached wrestling at O. A. C. This is a record which speaks for itself and one which is in every way most enviable. We have had not only championship teams under Jim's coaching, but the majority of the northwest individual championships as well.

JIM ARBUTHNOT

DR. STEWART

No man at O. A. C. is more universally liked and respected than Samuel P. Dolan. To him belongs the credit of establishing the graduate coaching system at this institution and of causing it to be held in its present state of high esteem.

Coach Dolan's success with raw material is wonderful and any one with the slightest hint of varsity calibre in his make-up is sure of speedy development under his watchful eye.

Doctor Stewart has been with us for over a year now, and numbers every man in college as his friend. He has the confidence, not only of the school as a whole, but of the men on the teams as well, for the former know him to be capable of producing teams that can "furnish the goods" and the latter have implicit faith in his "dope" and his system of coaching.

We believe "Doc" to be capable of coaching anything, from polo to ping-pong, but he makes track and basketball his specialties.

REVIEW OF THE SEASON

CONFERENCE statisticians announce, as the result of their computations, that the final resting place of the Beaver football team is at the bottom of the percentage column. In support of which they quote the scores of four Conference games,—O. A. C. 9, W. S. C. 10; O. A. C. 3, Washington 9; O. A. C. 20, Whitman 3; O. A. C. 0, Oregon 3.

Figures do not lie,—but sometimes they sadly misrepresent things. The percentage column indicates that the 1912 season was a failure, from an O. A. C. point of view, while, in truth, it was quite the opposite. A successful football season is one during which the team gives the college the best it has, plays hard, clean football, and fights to the last whistle of every game, and during which the Student Body supports the team faithfully and loyally,—through victory and through defeat. This being the case, O. A. C.'s football season in 1912 was a big success. In the face of unfortunate circumstances, with the odds against them in every game, Coach Dolan's boys battled valiantly, and as much honor is due them as though victory had rewarded their efforts in every contest.

At the opening of the season, Coach Dolan found on hand eleven men who had won the block "O" during previous years,—Captain Sitton, Chrisman, May, Moore, Kellogg, Reynolds, Evendon, Shaw, Robertson, Rasmussen, and Richardson,—and a mass of new material which yielded three men of 'Varsity caliber,—Blackwell, Hofer, and Dewey. The Alumni game was the first gridiron contest of the season, and was won by the 'Varsity. The annual game with the Multnomah Club of Portland was the second of the year's games. The Club was victorious,—9 to 0.

The first Conference game was with the Washington State College. The fates were against us, and we lost by one point. A week later the Beaver team reached the zenith of its career, and held the Washington squad to one touch-down. Six hundred O. A. C. students journeyed to Portland to see the contest.

On November 16, Whitman came to Corvallis to meet Dolan's team, and returned home decisively defeated. This was the best game of the season. Then came the sad affair at Albany, and once more our rivals from Eugene were victors. Injuries to Evendon, Blackwell and Robertson greatly weakened the Beaver team. Whether our defeat was due to this misfortune, or to over-training, or to stage fright, matters not—we lost the big game and the state championship.

The sting of this defeat was partially removed by success of the Thanksgiving invasion of California, during which the crippled O. A. C. team defeated Occidental, the proud champions of California, by an overwhelming score of 23 to 6.

Two men from the Beaver team were honored with positions on the All-Northwest eleven—Don Kellogg, right end, and Ira Blackwell, right half. Bob Chrisman, center, Jim Evendon, fullback, and Everett May, right tackle, were selected for the second all-star team.

Great credit for the success of the season is due to Coach Dolan. Dolan gave the team all he had. It was his untiring efforts, his unswerving loyalty and his faithful service that inspired the team to fight as they did against overwhelming odds—to battle against difficulties—to “not flinch, not foul, but to hit the line hard.” Here's to Sam Dolan—football coach, good fellow, gentleman and friend.

OLIVER B. HAYES.

CAPTAIN OTTO SITTON, '13 GUARD

To lead a team such as the O. A. C. produced last season was a great honor, to say the least, and to a certain individual by the name of Otto Sitton belongs this distinction. "Cap." Sitton holds an enviable record of four successful years of intercollegiate football and his loss to the team next year will be sorely felt. Otto only tips the beam at 160, but not one of his heavier opponents has ever "had anything on him." His aggressiveness and steady words of encouragement to his mates helped to make the impenetrable line for which O. A. C. was noted.

JIM EVENDON, '13 FULLBACK

Jim has rounded up a rather brilliant fours years of conference football, and his berth on the team will be hard to fill. Jim captained the '09 Varsity, was out of school for two years, then returned in 1911. At the first of last season he was used at tackle, but Coach Dolan was later forced to place him in the fullback position. This change probably cost Jim a position on the All-Northwest team, as he was a regular demon on the line. Evendon is right in the game all the time, and helps dish out "pep" to his brother warriors. Jim, besides being a great football star, is also noted for his wonderful powers of oration.

CHARLES REYNOLDS, '13 QUARTERBACK

"Shrimp" has played the position of quarter on the Beaver squad for four years, and has always been indispensable to the team. His lack of weight, together with a bad knee, has kept him on the sidelines a greater part of this last season. However, in the Occidental game he showed he had not lost any of his former ability. He weighs only 126 pounds, is fast, slippery, and uses his brain to good advantage. He is small, but oh, my!

"RASTY" RASMUSSEN, '13 FULLBACK

"Rasty" won his second "O" this year in the game against W. S. C. He filled in Hauser's place at fullback and held down that position like an old-timer at the game. He afterward filled Evendon's berth in the Oregon and Occidental games. "Rasty" has a healthy kick and next year should develop into a regular first team man.

"TOOTS" RICHARDSON, '13 HALFBACK

"Toots" returned to the fray this season, after a year's rest, and showed up to be a wizard at carrying the ball. He replaced Blackwell in the Oregon game and proved to be the only member of the Orange and Black that could advance the pigskin against the Oregon defense. "Toots" was the bright and shining light in the Occidental game and it was his wonderful offensive playing that made the scoring possible.

THOMAS EVERETT MAY, '14 TACKLE

If there ever was a gamer man than Everett May the Beaver supporters would like to meet him. May, during his three years of Varsity football, has been injured repeatedly, but has stuck to the game so firmly and never given up that he has won the hearts of all and now is one of the greatest tackles in the Northwest. In the Oregon and Occidental games he was sick and should not have been used, but in both these battles he showed up to good advantage and was picked as tackle on the second all-star eleven.

CAPTAIN-ELECT JAMES N. "HUNKY" SHAW, '15 RIGHT HALF

"Hunky," a two-year-old on the Beaver squad, hails from that great football material producing town of Aberdeen. His wonderful speed and ability to pick holes in the opponents' line won him the position of leader of the Orange and Black eleven for the season of 1913. "Hunky" is rather light, but his great offensive and defensive playing more than offsets this deficiency. Shaw owns a lot of grit and that is what goes to make up a football player. In the game against Whitman, in which the Aberdeen boy was the bright and shining light, he played through the whole last half with a broken nose. With "Hunky" at the helm and some good material, the prospects for next year assume a rather high aspect.

DONALD KELLOGG, '14 END

Don, best known around the campus by his skinned nose, has just completed three successful years of football, this last season being selected as All-Northwest end. Any opponent that tries to slip around Don's end has a job on his hands. Kellogg is noted for his open-field playing, his hard tackling and great ability at breaking up plays. The star end has yet another year with us and will be a strong contender for All-Northwest honors next season.

"BENNIE" ROBERTSON, '15 END

"Bennie" Robertson, a demon at gathering forward passes out of the atmosphere, and often known as the speed kid when it comes to running down punts, is a great offensive and defensive player, a constant menace to his opponents. Benjamin is greatly admired for the pluck he showed by playing against Oregon when he had such a badly burned back. Bennie is eligible to two more years of Conference football and great things are expected of him before that time is up.

FRANK MOORE, '15 TACKLE

"Prunes" Moore, although he got a slow start this year, showed up to be one of the strongest men on the O. A. C. line. In the Washington and Whitman games, he used his 190 pounds to advantage. He broke through the line and tackled his opponents for large losses a number of times. "Prunes" has had two years' experience with the gridiron sport, and next season ought to place him on the All-Northwest aggregation. "Prunes" has won two official Orange "O"s.

BOB CHRISMAN, '15 CENTER

"Chris," another O. A. C. warrior to earn a position on the All-Northwest team, is the greatest center that has been seen in the Northwest circuit for some years. He weighs 185 pounds, is an accurate passer, aggressive, and in the game from start to finish. A cause of much anxiety to the opposing quarter, Bob was the only lineman that "showed up" in the Oregon game. "Chris" has two more years with the Varsity and we are expecting great things of him in the future.

"GLOOMY GUS" HOFER, '16 TACKLE

Hofer is noted for his ability to pick a scrap, is the sensation of the rooks, making the Varsity with ease. He hails from the town of Salem. "Gloomy Gus" is a regular stone wall, and woe be to the opponent that tries to scale it. He has brought many an ambitious opponent to the ground with a sickening thud. Hofer should develop into All-Northwest material if he sticks with the game his remaining three years.

"ADMIRAL" DEWEY, '15 QUARTERBACK

Dewey came to O. A. C. last Fall from Purdue University and developed so much class at the quarterback position that even when "Shrimp" returned from the East he still kept the signal calling job. Dewey has about 150 pounds of beef to his credit to "Shrimp's 125, is equally fast and heady and is a shark at running back punts. The Admiral scored touchdowns in the W. S. C. and Whitman games. He is eligible for three more years, but only expects to attend school one more year. He will be a great factor in the hoped for championship team of 1913.

"FATTY" BLACKWELL, '16 HALFBACK

Blackwell is another football artist that hails from Aberdeen and proved to be the sensation of the season. With four years' experience on the Aberdeen eleven, "Blacky" came to Corvallis and gained a position in his freshman year on the All-Northwest eleven. His trusty toe that saved O. A. C. from a shut-out in the Washington game and his wonderful aggressive work carrying the ball have gained for him this coveted position. He is fast and bucks the line like a young piledriver. "Blackie" has a brilliant career before him in Conference football.

LARSEN, END

This is Larsen's third year of football at O. A. C. and in it he has unquestionably made good. Two years ago he played on the Freshman team and last year was one of the most dependable "subs." It was this year, however, that he won fame and a monogram by his thrilling touchdown in the Whitman game and his stellar performance at Occidental. He plays equally well at half or end and his port-wheel spirals are always puzzlers to the opposing team.

McKENZIE, '13 GUARD

McKenzie fills both center and guard positions to good advantage, but shows up better at the former. This is "Mac's" third year of O. A. C. football and his playing won him a well earned monogram. For the previous two years he was the mainstay of the subs, filling in efficiently at almost any line position. "Mac" graduates this year and the team will deeply feel his loss.

BASE

BALL

SEASON OF 1912

THE baseball season of 1912 opened very auspiciously in the practice games. The boys played with pep, and showed excellent early season form. But this spurt was brief. The boys seemed to have the necessary material, but at no time could they develop the spirit of fight.

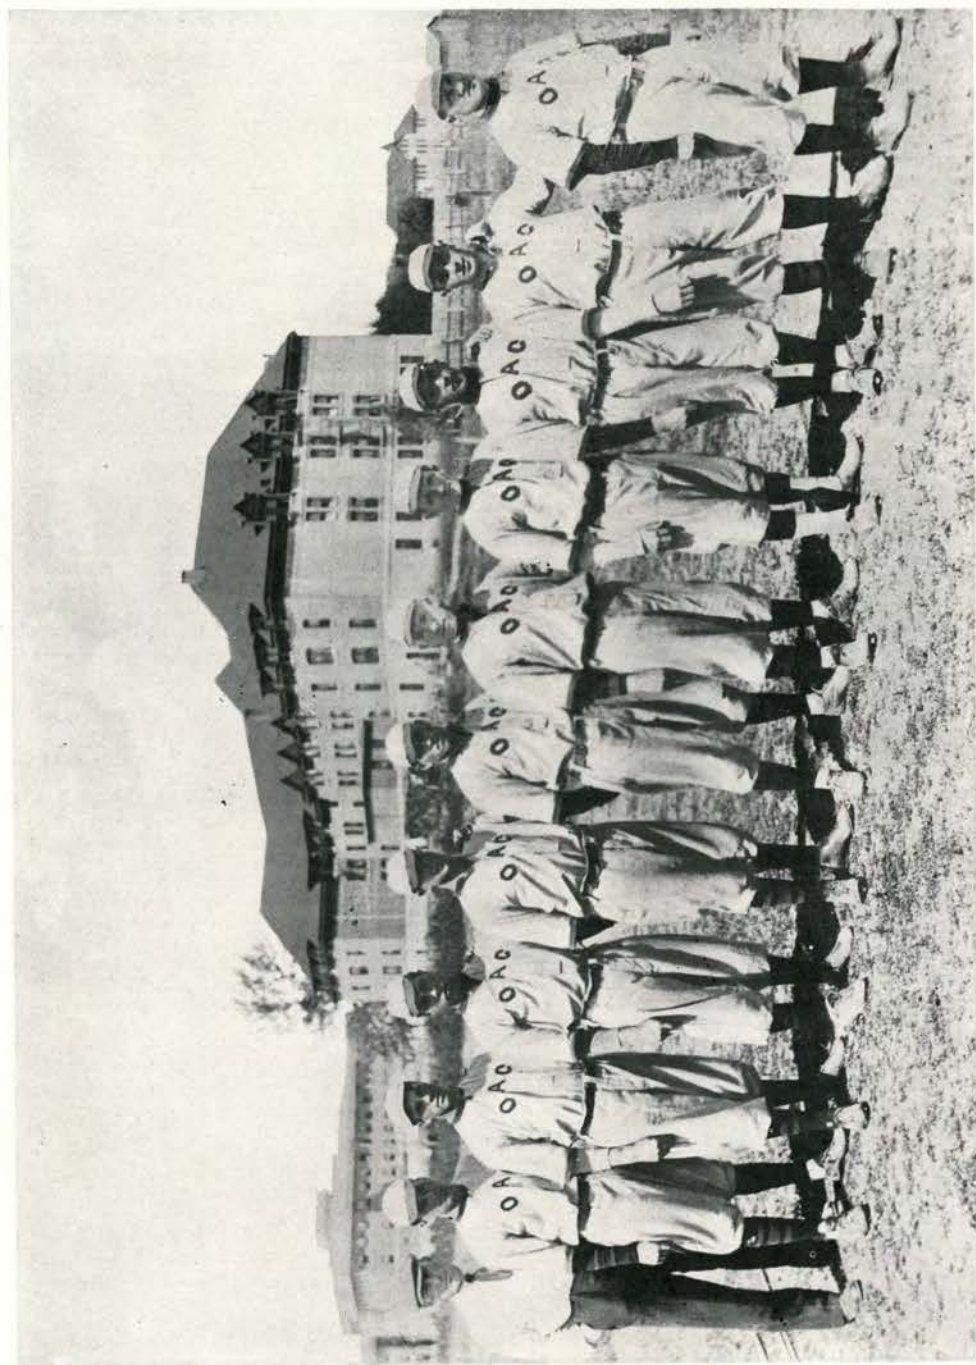

The battery was good. George Rieben pitched the game of his life, and was ably supported by Phillips on the receiving end of the battery. Culver was Rieben's equal, filling in his place when called upon. But at no time did this battery have the reliable support of their team-mates. The team early developed into one in which the battery was practically the sole asset.

The shortstop position was particularly weak, this one position giving Doc Stewart more trouble than the rest of the team positions. The only man who ever held this position acceptably was Pedro Duarte, who late in the season was called in from center field. But Duarte was an athlete, and could have been called upon to fill almost any berth on the team.

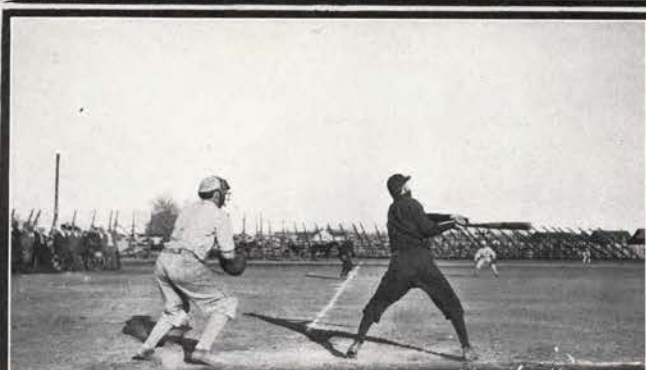

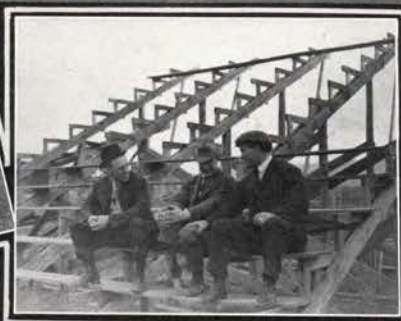

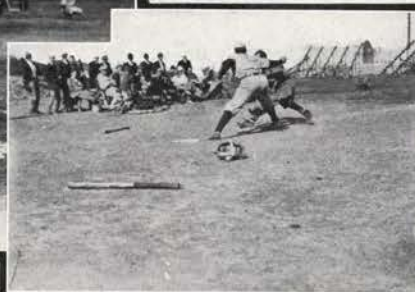

Of the whole team, Cooper was the star, playing a cool, careful, accurate game, taking chances and getting away with them. In the stick work he was among the leaders. In the team, Duarte was easily the second man with the stick. He was an erratic sticker, but a heavy hitter, and could be expected to do the unexpected and knock out a two-bagger, a three-bagger or a home run when needed. "Red" Walters comes next in the list of players.

The best series of games played by the team was with Oregon, who in actual strength were no more than our equals, but they possessed the spirit of fight and were on the lookout for chances and took them when they presented themselves.

Doc Stewart is to be commended for his work on the team throughout the entire season. At no time could any blame be placed on him for the condition in the team. He gave the team his best, which is the most that any man can do.

TRACK

ALL things considered, the track season of 1912 was fairly successful. The team was small in numbers, but fairly well balanced and composed of excellent material. Under the able tutelage of Doc. Stewart, they certainly proved themselves a credit to the college, even though they were not the intercollegiate champions.

The first meet of the season was the Columbia indoor meet, which was won by the University of Oregon. In this meet the O. A. C. took third place. Of the representatives of the College, the following men were the point winners: Walters, Baker, Powell, Williams and Weatherford. The relay team made an excellent showing, but lack of knowledge in passing on the relays nosed them out of first place.

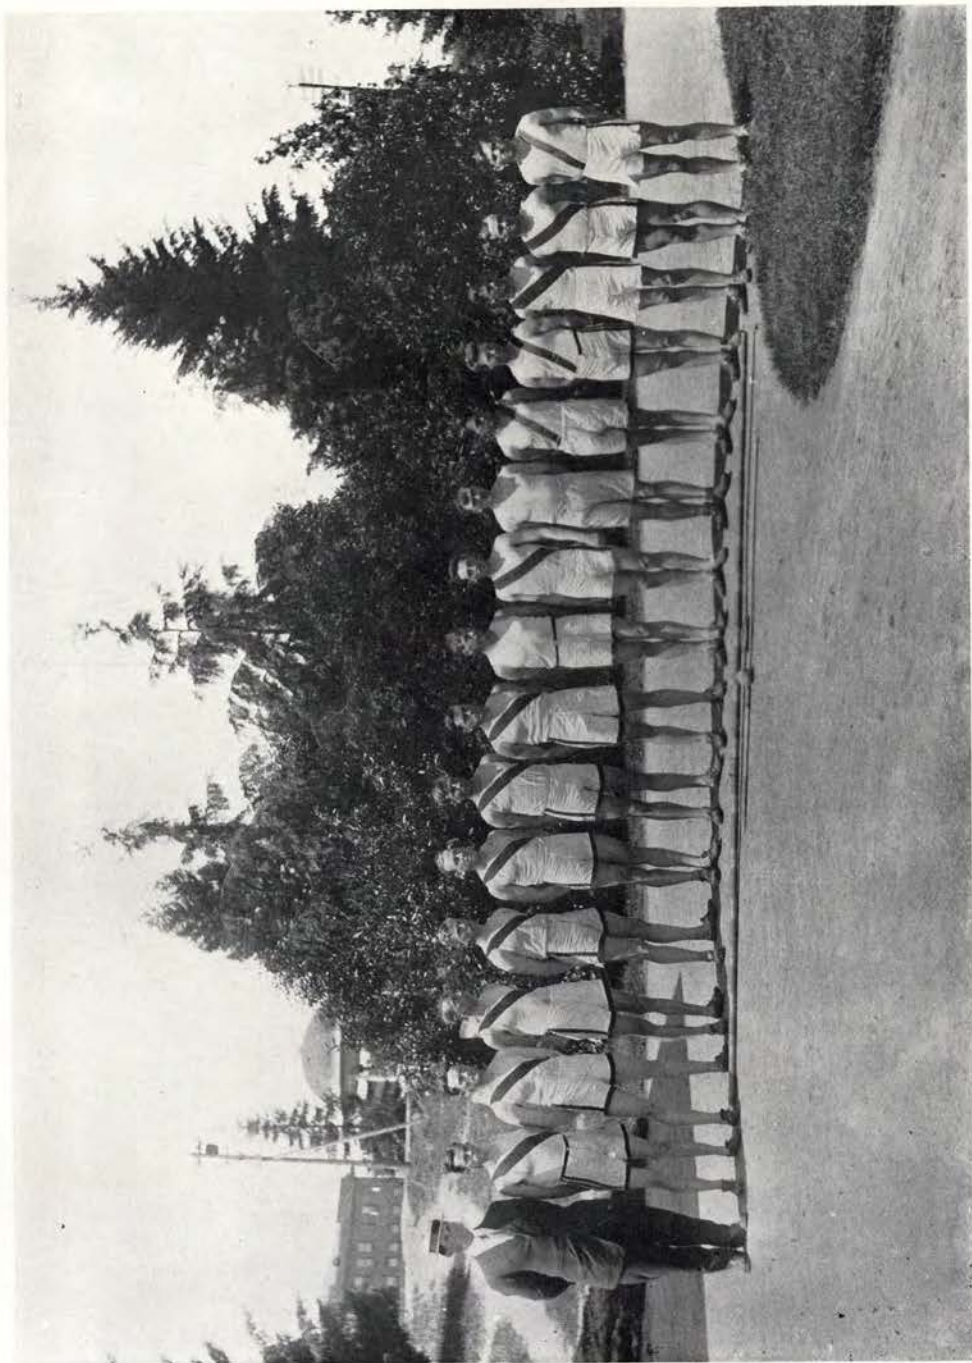

The next meet was with the U. of O. The Eugene institution won out easily, the final score being 97 1-3 to 42 2-3. In this meet Rube Williams ran McClure off his feet and established a new record for the College of 4:31-3, McClure's record being 4:26. "Rook" Smith surprised every one by his excellent showing in the 880, running a good second to the Oregon man.

The Multnomah meet gave every member of the team a chance to score, though no phenomenal work was done. O. A. C. won by a score of 86 to 44. The stars for this meet were Bellah for the clubmen and John Baker for the College.

The final meet was the Conference meet, held in Portland. The O. A. C. team was composed of the following men: McKenzie, Walters, Baker, Williams, Crouchley, Allen Burdick and Burt Burdick. The surprise of the meet came in the 100-yard dash, when Johnny Baker nosed out Ira Courtney, Olympic choice, running the distance in 10 seconds flat, tying the College record. McKenzie also established a new record in the discus throw.

1. At Eugene.
2. Powell in the high jump.
3. Burdick clearing the bar.
4. At 5-9.
5. Baker winning the 100.
6. Nickerson in the broad jump.

REVIEW OF THE 1913 BASKETBALL SEASON

AT THE close of the 1913 Conference basketball season, the Washington State College five, a team of fast, consistent players, headed the percentage column with a record of twelve games won and four lost, and to the Pullman institution was awarded the championship pennant. Washington University was a close second, being only one game behind Coach Bohler's quintet, and two games behind Washington was O. A. C., whose record of nine victories and seven defeats entitled her to third place on the Conference ladder. The Beaver average of 562 points gave the Orange and Black team a comfortable lead over Oregon—the Rival of Rivals—whose team had finished with a percentage of 370 points. Idaho was this year at no time a contender.

The series with Oregon, the crowning feature of the season, which was expected to determine the State Championship, resulted in a tie, each team winning two games. Inasmuch as O. A. C. led her rivals from the South by 198 points in the Conference rating, and as Willamette, the strongest non-Conference team in the state, had been defeated by Dr. Stewart's five, the claim of O. A. C. to the title of 1913 Champions of Oregon seems well founded and has not been questioned.

When Dr. Stewart issued his call at the first of the season, three 'varsity men responded—Captain Burdick, Cooper and May. Darling and Jordan, on the second string last year, also reported, and a wealth of new material appeared regularly for practice. Among these candidates were Dewey, a new man, and King, ineligible last year, both of whom won berths on the 'varsity team.

The Conference season opened with the Beavers playing in hard luck. The opening games, played in Corvallis, were with Idaho. O. A. C. won the first game easily, but in the second scrap, with Cooper and Jernstedt on the injured list, the pastimers from Moscow were the winners, taking the game with a sensational rally in the last half, the final score being 21 to 20.

Nothing daunted by this handicap, the team embarked on the Inland Empire trip and twice defeated Idaho on her home floor. The price of these victories, however, was the re-injury of Cooper and the exhaustion of the remaining members of the squad, and the two following games with W. S. C. were won by the Pullman team. The first of these games was closely fought, W. S. C. winning by a score of 21 to 20. In the second game, the tired Beavers were outplayed by Bohler's team.

To summarize in a few words, the playing of the six men who won their letters—Captain Burdick, Cooper, May, Darling, King and Dewey—is not an easy task. The playing of all the men was characterized by an abundance of "pep"—a desire to put forth their best efforts to win. Every man fought his hardest in every game.

Captain Burdick, the 112-pound leader of the squad, led in the scoring of field goals, and played a fast game throughout the season. He is an excellent dribbler, a consistent guard and an accurate shot, and will be sadly missed next season.

Everett May, captain-elect, was chosen on the All-Northwest five because of his offensive ability and of his clever guarding.

Harry Cooper, who has finished his last year of Beaver basketball, is valuable because of his steadiness, his dexterity with the ball, and his consistent converting of fouls. Cooper was chosen by several authorities for the All-Northwest team.

Darling is the best jumping center in the Conference. He has improved wonderfully under "Doc's" tutelage, and, with two more years before him, should develop into a sensation.

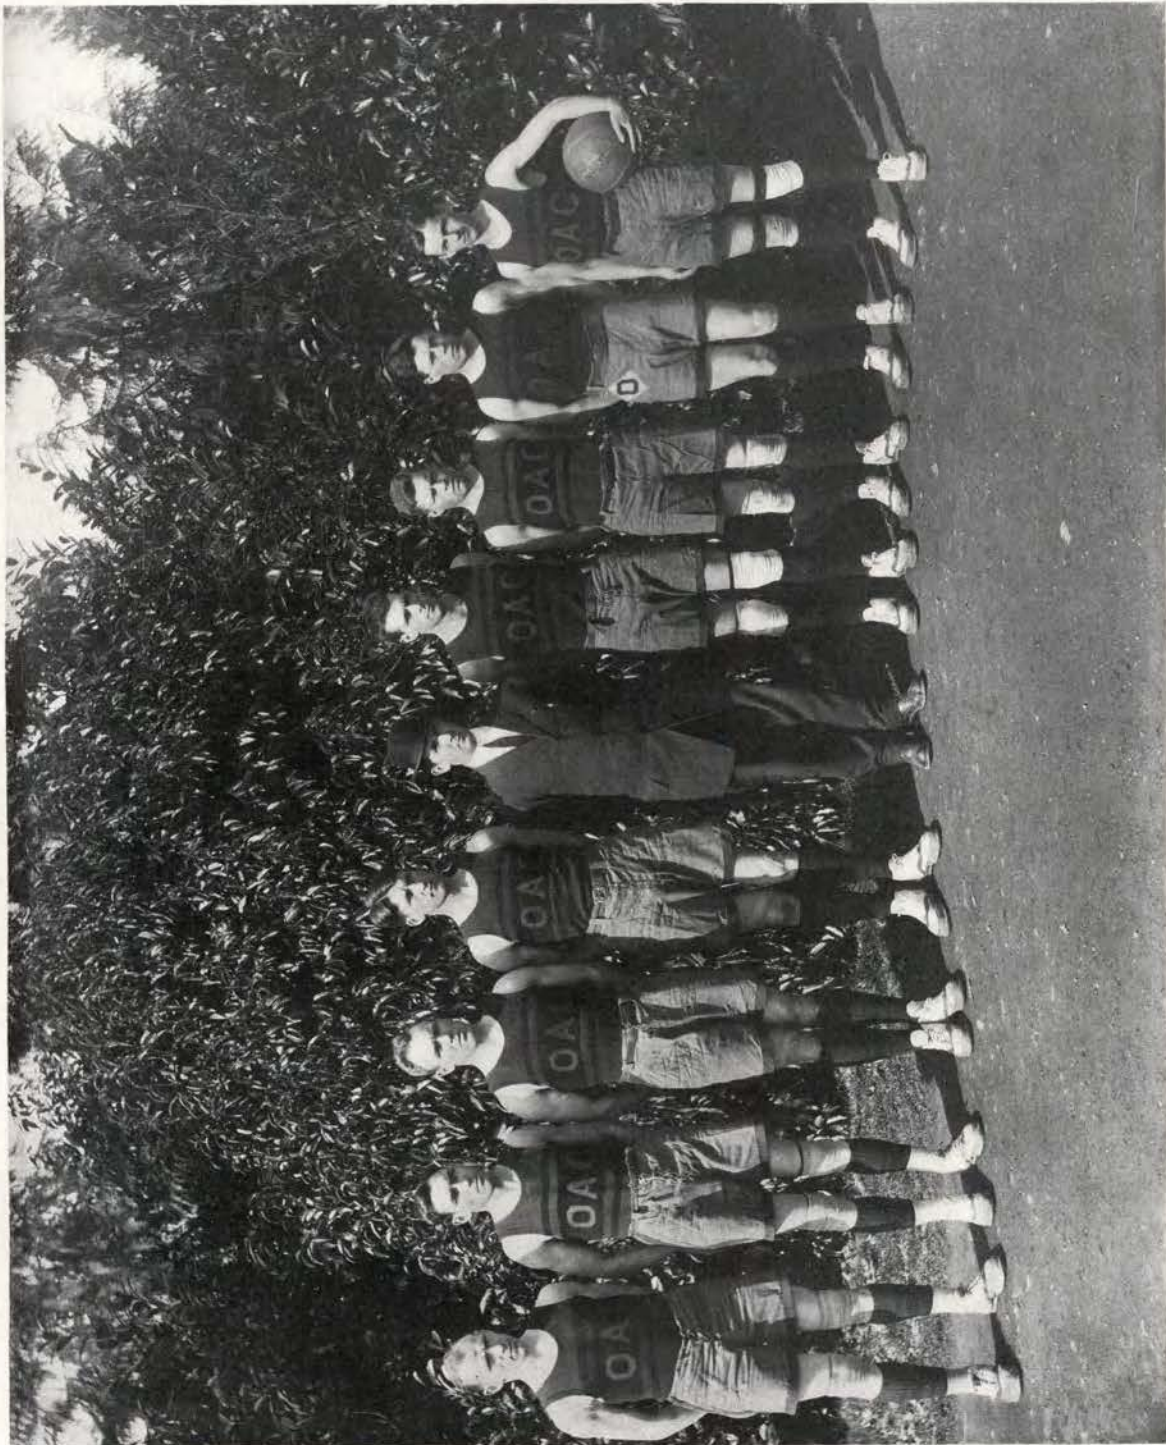

Dewey is a clever shot and a hard-fighting guard, and plays a fast game from start to finish. Two coaches placed him on the All-Star quintet.

King is a fast, husky player, who won his letter this year for the first time. He starred in the Oregon games, playing sensational offensive ball throughout the series.

In Jernstedt, Jordan, and Johns,—substitutes,—O. A. C. has three good men. To them, and to the "scrubs" and Freshmen, is due largely the credit for the success of the season.

Regarding Coach Stewart, be it sufficient to say that he is the best basketball trainer in the Northwest, and that as long as he is at O. A. C., the Orange and Black will never be far from the top in Conference basketball circles.

Wrestling

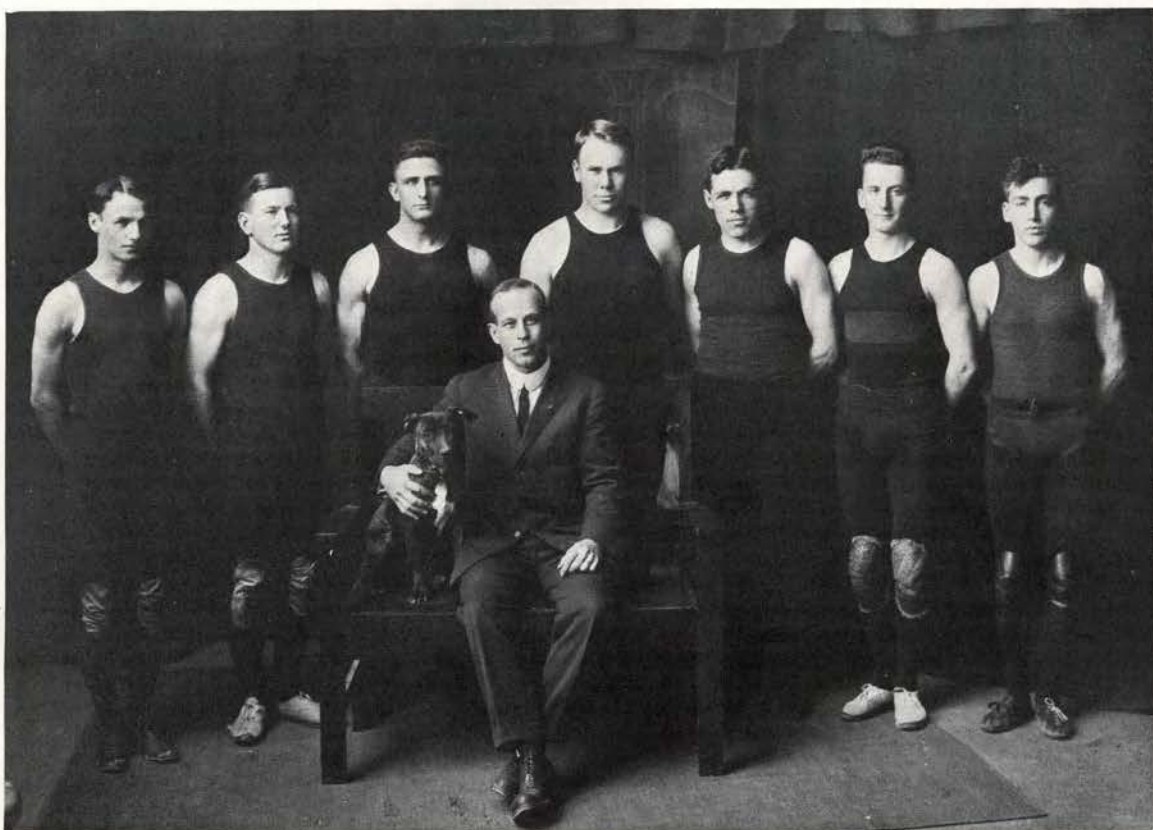

CAPTAIN KELLY

THE wrestling season opened as usual with the mats overcrowded with aspirants. Only four of last year's team were in college. Captain Kelly, 145; Freydidg, 115; Amort, 125, and McBride, 175. Some of the hardest fought bouts of the season were between the old team men and those trying for the varsity.

Captain Kelly held his place on the team against a very strong competitor, and lost the championship only because his opponent in the last meet played a defensive game. Muck easily won his place on the team and the championship of his weight by defeating all contestants in the 158-pound class. Percy won his place from Freydidg in the 115-pound weight in one of the hardest contested bouts of the season. Perhaps the greatest of our grapplers is Paul Amort of 125 and 135 pound weight. He was the only man in the Northwest who won the championship of two weights this year. His wrestling is that of a clean-cut sport and a great career awaits him as a mat artist. Laythe, though losing this year, is a fast grappler and only needs a little more training to make good his claim in the heavyweight division. McBride of the 175 class, has worked hard for his position and would no doubt have won over his opponent but for a bad bruise which he received in the first bout. He was unable to work and showed a fine spirit in returning to the mat the second time. In the 135-pound class, there were many contestants and it was after much hard work that Pelland won his place on the team. He took part in the University of Washington meet but lost by a small margin. He was kept out of the Pullman meet on account of an infected arm.

The result of this season gives the Beavers four championship teams in five years of intercollegiate wrestling. Every team needs the directing efforts of some one other than the participants and the honor should by no means be given wholly to the team men. Without "Jim," the faithful coach, the team would have been at a great disadvantage, and with him they were imbued with a winning spirit. He has made a success in everything he has undertaken and all honor is due him for the splendid results.

INTEREST in class athletics, which ebbed low during the spring of 1912, seems to have gained a new lease on life during the past year. This result was probably brought about, in a large measure, by the offering of the Barometer Cup, a splendid trophy which is awarded to the class obtaining the highest number of points in athletics and forensics. The athletic events for which points are awarded comprise football, baseball, basketball, wrestling and track. The stimulus afforded these sports has been welcomed by coaches and students alike as a much needed change from the lack of interest shown in previous years.

FRESHMEN FOOTBALL TEAM

JUNIOR FOOTBALL TEAM

Class athletics are of inestimable value to coaches and trainers in picking material of varsity calibre for the several teams. A striking instance of this fact which occurred in our own college was the discovery of the Sitton brothers who played football on the class team in their freshman year.

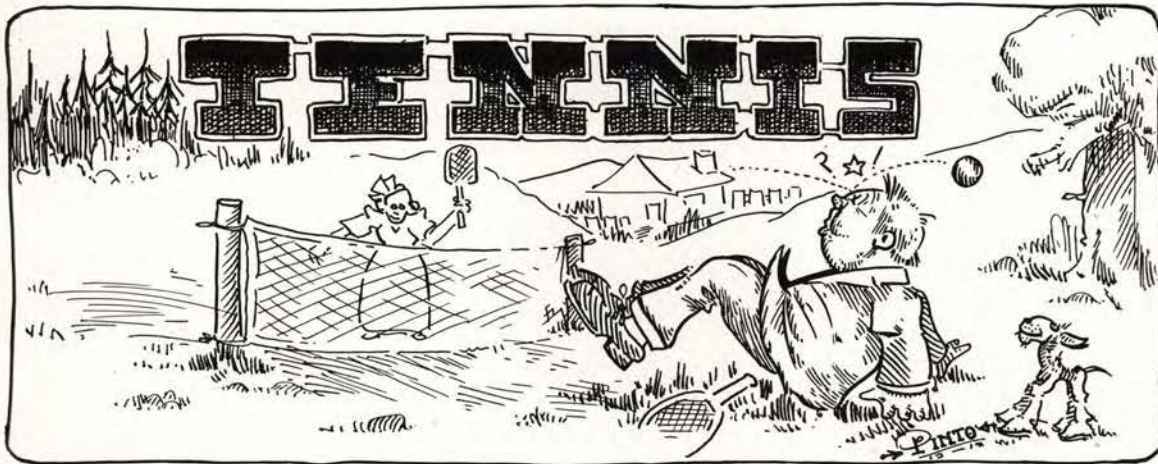

The interclass baseball of last year started and ended with the Junior-Senior game which was won by the Seniors, 13 to 8. The late season and inclement weather conditions were largely responsible for the postponement and subsequent "calling off" of the other games.

Interclass track and field events fared even worse, not a single meet being held, although at least one was scheduled. An inter-company meet and an inter-battalion meet, however, partially filled the place of class meets and gave the coaches a fair line on the ability of the new material. The inter-company meet was won by Company D, while the Second Battalion succeeded in annexing the inter-battalion contest.

In class football, only three games were needed to decide the championship, the Juniors losing to the Seniors, the Rooks taking the Sophomores into camp and the final and deciding game between the Seniors and Freshmen, being won by the "wearers of the green," thus giving them the championship.

In basketball, a rather complicated schedule was arranged, each team played one game with each of the other teams. This schedule was strictly and faithfully adhered to and the final game landed the Rooks in first place, while the Sophs, Seniors, and Juniors landed positions in the order named.

On the whole, the past season might be termed a successful one as far as class athletics are concerned and the next year, it is thought, will be even better.

LAST Spring tennis took a sudden spurt, the courts at Cauthorn and at Waldo became scenes of flanneled enthusiasts and eager onlookers.

With the progress of the season enthusiasm grew and soon the courts were in demand at all hours of the day. Class and college championships were decided, the season closed a pronounced success.

At the close of the season the Tennis Club was organized with a membership of 125 men and women. Through the efforts of the club the attention of the Athletic Board of Control was called to the necessity for better accommodations for those desiring to participate this Spring, but owing to the lack of available sites nothing was done in the way of building new courts. Consequently enthusiasm ebbed and as a result no schedule for inter-class events has been arranged.

However, prospects for the coming year are bright; sites have been secured and several cement courts are assured for next Spring's work. The tennis season should be successful and before another year O. A. C. will undoubtedly be enjoying not only interclass events but intercollegiate as well.

THIS has been an exceedingly active year in public speaking. There has been held a series of interclass debates, an interclass oratorical contest, and an interclass declamatory contest, and intersociety debate series, and a local oratorical contest to choose the O. A. C. representative in the state oratorical. Besides these there are left the local Peace Oratorical and two intercollegiate debates. All these contests held have been very successful, both from the standpoint of forensics and of attendance, and since this is only the first year of these interclass events, still better results can be expected in the future.

Liberal prizes are awarded in all these contests. Besides the Barometer cup, which is awarded the class winning the interclass championship in both forensics and athletics, and the Orange "O" cup, which is presented to the best athlete in the class winning the championship, and the Shakopean cup, which is presented to the best man in forensics in that class—besides these there are given each year cash prizes in debate, oratory and declamation amounting to nearly a hundred dollars.

The participants in these contests all deserve the highest praise. They have been diligent and thorough. They have worked hard and made a good fight. They have won the admiration and respect of their fellow students and, better still, they are striving to add to the glory of their beloved Alma Mater.

SENIOR HISTORY

LEST the wondrous deeds and accomplished feats of so illustrious a class as the '13s be forgotten, it becomes necessary that the history of the class be given. By virtue of the fact that we are the class of 1913, some superstitious people, during our first year, predicted that we would be unlucky and unsuccessful in all our undertakings. But by the energy, loyalty and enthusiasm of the individual members, not by certain signs and outward indications as unlucky numbers and jinx, is the success of a class measured. That we have proved a success is a recognized fact.

When we were "rooks," it was said that we were an unusual class—that we seemed more verdantly green and blissfully ignorant than our predecessors. We bravely overcame these qualities in a few weeks when our class was organized and officers elected with the help of the Juniors. The Sophomores opened their eyes when we so completely won the Bag Picnic. The championship of class baseball was bravely earned with Maxmeyer in the box.

Our Freshman party was the social event of the year. We entertained the whole student body, invited and uninvited, inside and outside the gym. Although some of the guests (inside) proved obnoxious and others (outside) became too strenuously affectionate and demonstrative, our party was a great success with games, sideshows and "eats." During that year we adopted a class insignia consisting of a '13 set in a horseshoe and chose our class colors, Yale blue and gold.

Our arrival upon the campus the second year was loudly proclaimed by the appearance of bright blue class sweaters. Mingled with the bright red of the '12s, a very pleasing contrast was afforded. We distinguished ourselves as Sophomores by convincing the Freshmen that we were not their natural enemies; by tying with the '11s for the football championship and by overcoming the "Rooks" in the push ball contest.

In order to replenish our treasury, we staged a minstrel show. "The Sunny South Minstrels," the first minstrel show (and last also) ever given at O. A. C. was a great success—financially.

The dreams of our "Rooky" days were realized when we entered our duties as Juniors. Now our energy, loyalty and enthusiasm was called into full play. The editing of the "Orange" was ably met and accomplished. We claim the distinction of starting the movement toward a self-supporting annual. Our "Orange," although not self-supporting, is the first step in the placing of the Junior publication on a paying basis.

Junior week-end was the gala time of the year. Our play, "The Lady from Brazil," was an exceedingly successful production from every standpoint. We proved ourselves dramatic artists of considerable ability. The following night, the Prom, surpassing all those previous, displayed the Juniors' originality as entertainers.

Our party for the Seniors consisted of a jolly picnic in the afternoon on the banks of the Willamette and a very informal dance in the evening at the gym. "Delightfully original," inadequately expressed our guests' sentiments.

Junior Flunk Day was the day of all days—the day when pleasure and excitement was at its height. A thrilling battle was fought with savages of marauding intentions in which the would-be plunderers were subjected and branded.

During our Senior year we have placed the finishing touches on our education. We have tried to lead the underclassmen "in the way they should go" and pride ourselves that we have been fairly successful. We will leave our alma mater a living monument—a group of American elms planted around the band stand. This will be a monument which will be a credit to the class of 1913, for the trees will become more beautiful and useful each year.

Our four years at O. A. C. are nearly completed. It is with regret that we leave our work, our pleasures and enjoyments here; yet we are eagerly waiting for the chance to do something practical, to carry out our theories with the energy and enthusiasm and originality characteristic always of the class of 1913.

JESSE RAY FLEMING, BAKEOVEN, OREGON.

AGRICULTURE.

Little, but oh my! You think he is a solemn grind until you see his eyes sparkle when a rough house starts. Expects to do dry(?) farming in Eastern Oregon. Started his fussing career at the Shack Party in his Senior year, but started so fast that he shocked Dean Crayne and many of the girls.

G. O. C.; Agricultural Club; Cauthorn Hall Club, Secretary; Editorial Staff, Oregon Countryman (3); Class Track (3).

YOSHITARO FUJIHIRA, WAKAYAMA, JAPAN.

ELECTRICAL ENGINEERING.

"A little brown man of Japan." "Fugie" is a good mixer, a good scholar, and a shark in "juice."

Engineers' Association; Cosmopolitan Club; Y. M. C. A.; G. O. C.

HAROLD ROLAND GLAISYER, FOREST GROVE, OREGON.

AGRONOMY.

Nobody loves a fat man.

"Is this a hat pin I see before me,
Its business end pointing toward my anatomy?"

Gamma Delta Phi Fraternity; Varsity Baseball (4); Glee Club.

JUNE GRAY, EUGENE, OREGON.

DOMESTIC SCIENCE.

"The roses make the world so sweet,
The bees, the birds have such a tune,
There's such a light and such a treat
And such a joy in June."

Waldo Hall Club; Sorosis Literary Society; Home Economics Club.

FRANK M. HARRINGTON, CRESWELL, OREGON.

HORTICULTURE.

A worker, always attending to other people's affairs, as well as his own. Always looking for a "Top-notch" or game of "500." Acts as guardian for "Lewie" when not engaged in writing letters east of Albany. Has quit the fussing game, but still gets six letters a week from different parts of the universe. Beware! This is not Utah.

Second Lieutenant (Battalion Quartermaster); Agricultural Club; Lewelling Club; Delta Theta Sigma; Cauthorn Hall Club; Rocky Mountain Club; Assistant Manager, Oregon Countryman.

HARRY C. HETZEL, CORVALLIS, OREGON.

AGRICULTURE.

"A great man's smile ye ken fu' well,
Is aye a blest infection."

Orator and debater. No ladies' man—don't believe in it. The proud uncle of "Puddle-foot." Popular as a member of the Student Council, and some there on gathering evidence.

Charter Member of Shakopean Society, President (4); Student Council (3-4); Philadelphian Literary Society Debating Team (2); Varsity Debating Team (2-3); President, Oratory and Debate (4); Delta Theta Sigma; Sphinx Honor Society; Gamma Delta Phi Fraternity; Lewelling Club.

D. BROOKS HOGAN, CORVALLIS, OREGON.

AGRONOMY.

"Mine are no hirelings trained to fight,
With cymbal and clarion glittering and bright;
Men firm as their mountains."

Open the window and give me a chance to throw out my chest!!!

GRACE E. HOBBS, EUGENE, OREGON.

DOMESTIC SCIENCE.

"Here's to a good girl,
Not too good, for the good die young,
And we don't like dead ones."

Sorosis Literary Society, President, '13; Waldo Hall Club; Home Economics Club; Graduate of University of Oregon.

THOMAS POWERS HAWKINS, TOLEDO, OREGON.

PHARMACY.

The direful art,
To taint with deadly drugs.

An enthusiastic G. O. C. Can always be depended upon to be at hand to help punish the Rooks; also likes refreshments afterwards. The leading student of the Pharmacy Department, as well as the leader of the association.

G. O. C.; Pharmaceutical Association, President; Cauthorn Hall Club; Class Football (3-4).

MARY ELIZABETH HARTING, EUGENE, OREGON.

DOMESTIC SCIENCE.

"Now the rosy morn appearing
Floods with light the dazzled heaven
And the schoolgirl groans on hearing
That eternal clock strike seven."

Sorosis Literary Society; Home Economics Club; Waldo Hall Club; Senior Basketball.

GEORGE CLAY JONES, PORTLAND, OREGON.

CIVIL ENGINEERING.

"G. Cly." The sweetest hours that e'er I spend
Are spent among the lasses, O!"

President and star member of the Krabbers' Klub—kan krab most artistically, and yet withal good humoredly. An excellent student and good debater. No slouch at fussing, but give him a high school girl any day, rather than a co-ed.

Zetagathean Literary Society, Recorder (3); Captain, Company C (4); Shakopean Society; Engineering Association; Civil Engineering Association; Zetagathean Debating Team (3); Senior Debate Team (4); Gamma Delta Phi Fraternity; Sigma Tau Fraternity.

FREDERICK CARL JERNSTEDT, CARLTON, OREGON.

MECHANICAL ENGINEERING.

"Jedrick" or "Jerny" is one of Doc's husky basketball players whose loss will be felt by the team. His scholarship has not suffered by his taking part in athletics. Jerny is a man everybody must look up to. Not only that, but he is the only man in the Shack with an extension on his bed.

First Lieutenant, Company D; Engineering Association; Associate Editor, Student Engineer (4); Cauthorn Hall Club; Class Football (3-4); Class Baseball (3-4); Class Basketball (2-3-4); Class Track (2-4); Varsity Basketball (4); Sigma Tau Fraternity.

LEO EDWIN JOHNSON, CARLTON, OREGON.

MECHANICAL ENGINEERING.

Larry Johnson and his other half, Jernstedt, make up the entire Senior Mechanical Class. He is the pride of the Engineering Faculty when it comes to Experimental Engineering, but in Miss Kuney's estimation—well, you can tell by his name he is no Spaniard. Larry is a true Engineer. He would rather plot curves than sleep.

Sergeant Major, First Battalion (3); First Lieutenant, Company F (4); Architectural Club; Cauthorn Hall Club; Engineering Association; Class Football (2-3-4); Class Wrestling (1-2); Cross Country Team (1); Sigma Tau Fraternity.

ANNA MARIE JOHNSON, ALBANY, OREGON.

DOROTHY KEATLEY, CASTLE ROCK, WASHINGTON.

DOMESTIC SCIENCE.

"The song of art is ever
Song of the human soul.
Within herself it never Is perfectly made whole."

Waldo Hall Club; Y. W. C. A.

GLENN C. KELLY, PORTLAND, OREGON.

AGRONOMY.

"Yon Agric. hath a lean and hungry look; he thinks too much; such men are dangerous."

Orator—if you don't believe it, recall his speech at the student body meeting. He loves his one love and her alone. Is one of those sly parlor fussers, but never shy.

Class Treasurer (2); Second Lieutenant, Company I (3); Captain, Company I (4); Agricultural Club; Senior Editor, 1913 "Orange"; Gamma Delta Phi Fraternity.

DON GILBERT KELLOGG, HOQUIAM, WASHINGTON.

HORTICULTURE.

"From North to South, he won much fame,
And for himself has won a name,
All-Northwest end he got to be
By playing games for O. A. C."

Strong, determined, faithful, indolent, lazy, lovable—hateful; all the characteristics that can be found in man, exist in this one being.

Lewelling Club; Delta Omega Fraternity; Varsity Football (1-2-4); All-Northwest end (4); G. O. C.

LEONARD HUMPHREY KISTLER, PORTLAND, OREGON.

ELECTRICAL ENGINEERING.

"Kis-me." "Among the rest I well could spy, one gallant, graceful(?), martial boy."

A great student who never fussed until he was a senior, and then started with an engaged woman. Now he wishes he had not waited. Is some soldier, but is patterned for the cavalry.

Zetagathean Literary Society; Student Engineer, Assistant Manager (3), Manager (4); Business Manager of Engineering Show, 1913; Engineering Association; A. I. E. E.; Gamma Delta Phi Fraternity; Sigma Tau Fraternity; Class Football (4); Class Baseball (3); Class Basketball (3-4); Captain, Company M.

LAURENCE LEON MCBRIDE, EDDYVILLE, OREGON.

AGRICULTURE.

"The more honest a man is, the less he affects the air of a saint."

A handsome man in a football suit, and a half dozen incisors removed.

LEROY RODERICK MCKENZIE, SUMMERVILLE, OREGON.

COMMERCE.

"Some men are honored for how they act, but few have the honor of holding the 'Shack's' pack."

Began his college career in the engineering department, not having enough time to fuss, he changed to commerce? When it comes to fussing, "Mack" is not selfish, but shares all good dates with his room-mate. Had a girl once, but she is married now.

Regimental Sergeant Major; Battalion Adjutant; First Lieutenant; Student Council (4); Sphinx Honor Society; Cauthorn Hall Club; "A" Frat.; Eastern Oregon Club (Treasurer); Class Football (1-2); Varsity Sub (3); Varsity Football (4); Class Track (1), Varsity (2-3-4); Class Wrestling (1-2).

ROBERT RODERICK MCKENZIE, LOSTINE, OREGON.

ELECTRICAL ENGINEERING.

A pot of good double beer, neighbor; drink and fear not.

A happy-go-lucky sort of a chap, but a good student. Firmly believes that high school girls should attend college functions. Loves a midnight meal and a "high jinks."

G. O. C.; Cauthorn Hall Club; Eastern Oregon Club; A. I. E. E.; Associated Engineers.

BENJAMIN HENRY McNAMEE, PORTLAND, OREGON.
CIVIL ENGINEERING.

"Is not lord of all he surveys yet, but his talents lead those who know him to think he will be some day."

Aspires to be a consulting engineer on a steam peanut roaster.

Engineering Association, President (4); Class Football (1-2-4); Corporal, Company D (2); Sergeant, Company A (3); Captain, Company L (4); Art Editor of the 1913 "Orange"; Sigma Tau Fraternity.

VIRGINIA RHOMEYN MESCHER, SILVERTON, OREGON.
COMMERCIAL.

"Coquet and coy at once her air,
Both studied, though both seem neglected.
Careless she is with artful care
Affecting to seem unaffected."

Mask and Dagger; Waldo Hall Club; Commercial Club; Eastern Club; Captain, Junior Basketball.

GEORGE MILNER, OKAMULGEE, OKLAHOMA.
ELECTRICAL ENGINEERING.

"Calm was his brow, his eyes serene,
His thoughts flowed on in voiceless stream."
An avowed bachelor, but was once seen at Waldo in a dress suit.

Ahneek Club; Engineering Association; A. I. E. E.; Class Baseball (4); Grand Old Cadet.

CECIL PAUL MOFFITT, JUNCTION CITY, OREGON.
AGRICULTURE.

"Keep those hands down."
"Will you again unknot, this churlish knot of all—abhorred war?"
Loves "Harmon-y," and should never be without it. A man of stern discipline and undaunted purpose.

Class President (4); Class Play Manager (3); Zetagathean Literary Society, Recorder (3), President (4); Sphinx Honor Society; Y. M. C. A. Cabinet; Student Council (4); Agricultural Club; Colonel of Cadets.

ERWIN JONES MONTAGUE, MONTAGUE, OREGON.

COMMERCE.

"Monty" needs no eulogy; he speaks for himself. As Judge of the Cauthorn Hall Kangaroo Court, "Monty" administers justice tempered with mercy. Says the Shack is the only Democracy in existence with only one court. One of the Glee Club's warblers. Aside from that he is all right.

Hesperian Literary Society, President (3); Second Lieutenant (3); First Lieutenant (4); Battalion Adjutant; President, Commercial Club (4); President of Glee Club (4); Hesperian Debater (2-3); Class Football (2-3-4).

GEORGE MILLAGE MONTGOMERY, ALHAMBRA, CALIFORNIA.

Lewelling Club; Southern California Club; Amicitian Literary Society; Junior Prom Committee; Captain, Company G; Delta Omega Fraternity.

MARGARET CHADSEY MOREHOUSE, EUGENE, OREGON.

DOMESTIC SCIENCE.

"Not warped by passion, awed by renown,
Nor grave through pride,
Nor gay through folly.
An equal mixture of good humor
And sensible soft melancholy."

Pierian Literary Society; Margaret Snell Club; Y. W. C. A. Cabinet; Oregon Countryman Staff (4); Waldo Hall Club, Secretary (4).

KAHUKI OKAMOTO, KAMAMOTO, JAPAN.

DAIRY HUSBANDRY.

"My country is the world, my countrymen all mankind."
Can tell what he knows better than most native sons, and he knows a great deal more to tell.

Agricultural Club; Cosmopolitan Club, Treasurer (2), Secretary (3); G. O. C.

MARGARET MEAD OSBURN, NEWPORT, OREGON.

DOMESTIC SCIENCE.

"All kin' o' smily round the lips,
An' teary round the lashes."

Waldo Hall Club (2-3); D. B. Club; Pierian Club; Oregon Countryman Staff (4); Girls' Barometer Staff (3).

EARL PEARCY, PORTLAND, OREGON.

HORTICULTURE.

"His grace looks cheerful and smooth this morning."

There's some conceit or other. Like him well, when he bids "Good morrow" with such spirit. Loves drill and loves to fuss equally well.

Lewelling Club President (4); Delta Theta Sigma; Oregon Country Staff; G. O. C.

DESINE JOSEPH PERARD, TOPPENISH, WASHINGTON.

PHARMACY.

"Frenchy" says:

"The hen produces eggs and things,
The ox produces glue,
Herpicide may save it,
But I don't care, do you?"

In other words, Frenchy is bald but happy. His roommate says he would rather live with a musician than Perard, because an artist gets up at night to sketch out his ideas. He turns out some good drawings, even if they are dreams.

Sergeant, Company F (3); G. O. C. (4); Pharmaceutical Association; Annual Staff (3); Business Manager of C. P. Journal (4); Cauthorn Hall Club.

EDGAR TURNER PIERCE, HARRISBURG, OREGON.

COMMERCE.

"Believe me, fellows, I am still on hand."

Promotions are still bestowed upon me, still I can't help forgetting to wear my leggins. Once went to class with his eye shade on. Has a new song hit, "U. B. My Daisy." Had the honor of graduating from C. H. S. in Senior year—took Geometry.

Zetagathean Literary Society (2-3); Kappa Sigma Nu Fraternity, Vice Chancellor; Assistant Manager, C. P. Journal (3); Canoe Club; President of Class (3); Commercial Club, Vice-President (3); Student Council (3); Major, Third Battalion (4).

DELIA JEANETTA PURVES, SEATTLE, WASHINGTON.

DOMESTIC SCIENCE.

"'Tis easy enough to be pleasant
When life glides by like a song,
But the girl worth while
Is the girl who can smile
When everything goes dead wrong."

LANCE READ, PORTLAND, OREGON.

ELECTRICAL ENGINEERING.

Read made himself famous as the Chief Engineer of the 1913 Engineering Show. In fact, he is a typical "juice shark." He attributes this to the fact that his diet consists mainly of alternating current pie. The recipe for this pie is here published for the first time.

Alternating Current Pie.—First a current, then a fly.

Grand Old Cadet; A. I. E. E., President (4); Chief Engineer, O. A. C. Engineering Show (4); Student Engineer Staff; Engineering Association; Cauthorn Hall Club; Sigma Tau Fraternity.

CHARLES H. REYNOLDS, LA GRANDE, OREGON.

PHARMACY.

"Woman, why art thou so fickle to me?"

Made a trip to a suburb of Portland, but forgot to return. Seems to be satisfied in this world, in his travels. "Ever Ready" is his "Strong Heart."

Amicitian Literary Society, Secretary (3); Class Minstrels; Annual Staff (3); Kappa Sigma Nu Fraternity, Chancellor; Pharmaceutical Association, Vice-President (4); Orange O Club; Sergeant, Company D (3); Varsity Football (1-2-3-4); Class Track (1-2); Class Basketball (3-4).

S. WHITLEY RICHARDSON, SALEM, OREGON.

"So much a man can do that does both act and do."

Got rather Huff-y during his Junior year.

G. O. C.; Mining Association; Second Vice-President, Student Body (3); Manager, Junior Prom (3); Auditor of Athletics; Student Council (4); Member of Athletic Board (4); Varsity Football (2-4); Class Football (1-2-3); Class Baseball (1-2-3-4); Class Basketball (1-2-3); Class Track (1-2).

LOUIS SAWYER, SALEM, OREGON.

AGRICULTURE.

"Apparently not a fusser, but appearances are often deceptive."

Has great expectations, but is undecided whether he will locate in Idaho or become a missionary in some foreign land. Likes the vicinity of West Stayton. Is a regular visitor at Waldo Hall. Was heard to say over the phone: "Hello! Which one of the family is this?"

G. O. C.; Agricultural Club; Cauthorn Hall Club; Cauthorn Hall Tennis Club; Rocky Mountain Club; Easterners' Club; Delta Theta Sigma; Oregon Countryman Staff; F. H. P. Club; Class Wrestling (3).

EUGENE HERMAN SCOVILLE, GRANTS PASS, OREGON.

CIVIL ENGINEERING.

He is a good-natured fellow and is well liked by all who know him. Has high ambitions as an engineer. He never goes to Waldo, but he has secret designs on the ($35). Watch him.

G. O. C.; Cauthorn Hall Club; Civil Engineering Association, President (4); Engineering Association; Class Football (3-4).

HOMER HARRISON SHAKE, PAYETTE, IDAHO.

ELECTRICAL ENGINEERING.

"My only books are women's looks,
And folly's all they've taught me."

A favorite at both Waldo and Cauthorn. King of the Schwiltz family. The mainstay of the Senior football team. Is as wise as his name implies. Has a sunny disposition that wins for him many friends.

Athletic Manager (3); Sergeant (3); G. O. C. (4); Class Football (2-3-4); Class Basketball (2-3-4); Class Baseball (3).

OBIL SHATTUCK, KLAMATH FALLS, OREGON.

AGRICULTURE.

"A little rough house now and then,
Is relished by the best of men."

During the first part of the year "Bill" was a member of the Non-Fussers' Club, but he has been a backslider and again joined the rest. Has the motorcycle fever.

Second Lieutenant (Battalion Quartermaster); Agricultural Club; Lewelling Club; Eastern Oregon Club; Cauthorn Hall Club; Merry Makers, Secretary; Class Football (1-2-3-4); Class Baseball (1-2-3); Class Track (1907-8); Varsity Track (1909-10).

FRANCIS WILLARD SMITH, PORTLAND, OREGON.

CIVIL ENGINEERING.

An excellent student whose friendship is sought by all. He is an authority on sports and was never known to miss an athletic contest. Handsome, good-natured, an excellent conversationalist, he could easily be a lion among the ladies—but, alas! he never fusses(?). We have high hopes for Willard.

Philadelphian Literary Society; Civil Engineering Association, Secretary-Treasurer (3); Cauthorn Hall Club, President (4); Y. M. C. A., President (4); Editor, Student Engineer (4); Associated Engineers (4); Captain, Company A (4); Sigma Tau Fraternity.

Turns his pencil to many uses—it is even rumored that he does all his love-making by mail.

CARL ALLISON STARKER, PORTLAND, OREGON.

AGRICULTURE.

"Never leave any doubt as to your gender."
Really belongs at Waldo.

OSCAR BRENT STAUFF, COOS BAY, OREGON.

AGRICULTURE.

Brilliant, wonderfully brilliant, and can talk enough English to express it. "He bane a good feller." Footnote (Viking ancestry).

VICTOR HUGO STAUFF, COOS BAY, OREGON.

AGRICULTURE.

"Victor Hugo," the dwarf of Coos Bay. You never wrote a book; don't think you could—but passing fair for a Swede.

CHARLES VIRGIL STRANG, MEDFORD, OREGON.

PHARMACY.

A mild mannered youth. The "white hope" of the Junior basket ball team???

MYLIUS SUMMERS, FRESNO, CALIFORNIA.
DOMESTIC SCIENCE.

" 'Tis joy to believe in the truth that lies Far down in the depths of those sweet brown eyes."
Is a great basket ball enthusiast.

GILBERT THAYER, PORTLAND, OREGON.

"Pleasures may come and pleasures may go,
But work goes on forever."

Hobby: Taking all new girls into her care. Chief fireman at Waldo.

FLORA WHITELY, ST. JOHNS, NEWFOUNDLAND.
DOMESTIC SCIENCE.

Is the only Junior girl brave enough to wear a waist of her college colors. We admire your loyalty.

CHESTER WILCOX, PORTLAND, OREGON.
AGRICULTURE.

Simply a case of still water running deep. But a ripple now and then would help some.

MILDRED WILSON, SALEM, OREGON.
DOMESTIC SCIENCE.

"A little Miss who knows what's what."

Is full of class spirit, a good worker, and Assistant Treasurer of the Class.

LOIS WILSON, SALEM, OREGON.
DOMESTIC SCIENCE.

"But to see her was to love her,
Love but her and her forever."
Has a "near-ness" for fussing.

EDWIN WOODCOCK, CORVALLIS, OREGON.
COMMERCE.

Nearly killed once by a train of thought passing through his mind. A fine musician.

FRED BYRON YOUNG, COLLINS, WASH.

SOPHOMORE PARTY

SOPHOMORE SECTION

COMPILED BY E. G. BATES

WHO'S WHO IN O. A. C.

THE Freshmen, or the 1916 students of this institution, are looked upon and honored as the promising foundation for the school's future success. It is upon them that our school bases its enlargement and broader scope of education. Without them the school would practically be as dead as a pool of stagnant water. They being bright-eyed, quick-witted, thoughtful and energetic students; but as they appear upon our campus, I will now attempt to tell you in just a few plain words straight from the shoulder how they appear to the 15's.

You measly bunch of unsophisticated babbling babes, or the class of 1916. We, the class of 1915, advise you (THE SCUM OF THE EARTH), to be aware. Ye blithering, bone-headed, beetle-brained, slimy, ugly, degrading, cock-eyed, pigeon-toed, knock-kneed, long-haired, rubber-collared, sapheads; you greasy, gummy, gum-eaten, gobbling, gabbling, God-forsaken, gomp, gudgeons; you simple, scabby, scrubby, skurkish, scummy, crusty class of hyenas. You woggle-eyed lemons have dared to appear upon our sanctified campus wearing insignia of your former high school days, when a safety pin would have been more appropriate. So WE proclaim that you obey our rules or your oriferous, boney, worm-eaten, fungus-diseased, drunken, drowsy, discreditable, infected, disgraceful, clumsy, club-footed, brainless, bleeding, battered, hammered down, sawed off carcasses of humanity will be covered with lime and hauled to the bone pile by No. 9, who wants a job, and under the directorship of the 1915 Class.

THE 1915 STAG PARTY

On the night of February 14th there occurred at the Julian Hotel a good old-fashioned stag party at which the following speeches were rendered by prominent classmen.

"The Freshman Initiation," by M. Jordan (yell leader).

Well, you see, fellows, it was like this, you know I was sitting in the house studying, when all at once I heard the 15's signal for volunteers, so I jumped from my desk, put on my oldest clothes and ran as I had never run before, toward the fountain and found all my classmen there. We waited only a few minutes in order to see the victims coming hastily toward their fate, they numbering approximately 300, against our 125.

When the first attack was made the 16's decreased 100 per cent, but the rest journeyed down town trying to serpentine several times but were soon stopped by the 15's handful of mighties. After a few petty scraps we all returned to the fountain and it was here that we obeyed the law which reads, "It is greater to give than to receive," so we proceeded and when all the remains of the 16's were gathered and records checked the figures showed 47 spoils of 40 bubbles each and one-half pint of H₂O remaining.

"THE BAG RUSH"—By H. Grimshaw, Captain

Say, fellows, do you know when Jim shot the pistle our bunch of fellows went into the Rooks like an army of fierce, firey, fanged, fongoes, fighting furiously for the fray, and do you know we had it all over them and could have cinched all the bags if we would have wanted them, but we decided before the affair that we only wanted six, therefore we kept up the name of the class by getting what we went after. Well, we just had them outclassed and all our men did their best, and I can see no reason why we were not awarded the victory, even though you heard the upper classmen say we deserved the bacon, but when the second shot was fired we were only awarded the honor of a tie match.

"THE 15-16 FOOTBALL GAME"—By P. Cochran, Captain

It was on the 14th of November when we tackled those measly, scrubby rooks and our team was lined up as follows: Loughery and Groce (L. E.), Millikin (L. T.), Hubbard (L. G.), Struve (C.), King (R. G.), Darling (Q.), Olmstead (R. T.), Manners (R. E.), A. Jordan (L. H.), Doyle (R. H.), Blakely (F.). Referee, Reynolds. Umpire, Dolan. Ten-minute quarters.

We had a swell crowd of loyal supporters but I was unable to play because of a dislocated shoulder received one night before our game while in a stiff scrimmage with the varsity team. The mud was not less than ten inches deep in any one place or not over three feet deep in any two places. When the game was half over it was practically dark and soon commenced to rain so we were unable to demonstrate our scientific and heady plays, therefore being forced to line plunges entirely, and every man starred in his position at various times. One thing which helped us to do our best was the spirit shown by our yell leader, M. Jordan, when he burned the 16's hook in the middle of the field between the halves, and I congratulate my fellow classmen in their speedy destruction of the 16's serpentine, although due to some unknown ill-luck we scored only 9 points against the Freshmen's 16.

"OUR PARTY"—By W. Koenig, Toastmaster

Upon my arrival at the gymnasium that night, which was the 16th of December, I was informed of my position as toastmaster and that the affair should start at 8 o'clock. The people were all there but had not gone through the old custom of a receiving line, so by the time that was accomplished the watch said, 8:45, and when the entertainment part of the program was finished it was 9:45. The refreshments were then served in a neat manner, and talk about fine, well, I should say the committee on that job was certainly "there," and everybody did have their fill. By the time the dance started it was 10:15, just 45 minutes late on the schedule. The decorations were also the most elaborate I have ever seen in the gym and the workers deserve much credit. The programs were also the finest ever presented at a sophomore party. In all, the committees composed of Miss Tagg, Miss Robbins, Thomas, Miller, Bates and Crouchly deserve the highest compliments of the class upon the success of the affair. At eleven o'clock we all happily departed on our homeward way.

"BASKETBALL"—By J. A. Wilson, Captain

The team being represented by Wilson, Polk, Olsen, McGinnis, Krantz and Whitehouse, started out with only one practice and on the night of February 30th we held the freshman to a score of 5-5, due chiefly to the long distance baskets by Polk and heady team work by McGinnis.

The next Thursday night we went up against the confident seniors and humbled their pride by our victory of 11-4.

On March 8th we easily brought home the bacon by defeating the juniors by a score of 11-3. This victory was accounted for by the exceptionally good team work of our big five. In this game Olsen and Whitehouse showed their knowledge of the game by outplaying their opponents and shooting baskets continually from all angles. Thus we now hold the class championship, unless it can otherwise be proven by the embryonic rooks who claim the title only in words.

We are expecting this record duplicated by the girls basketball team of our class, composed of Misses Rutledge (Captain), Shepard, Elvia and Verna Tagg, and Coon. In practice the girls are showing exceptionally good team work and no doubt will be able to compete successfully with all the other class teams.

"1915 WIT AND HUMOR"

If O. A. C. rings are Silver,
What is the Price?

If Ballhorn is president,
Will he ever reach the Whitehouse?

Our class is well blessed—we have in our

FRESHMAN SECTION

Compiled by KENNETH L. FOX

Notice: Freshmen who thought the Annual Box was a slot machine, may have their pennies back by applying to the editor.

THE SIGN OF THE "SUB"

It was a grimy sub-rook,
That grieveth us full sore;
He entereth our college ranks,
And proveth such a bore.

There is no way to ditch the mutt,
He hangeth steadfast on;
He cometh to our doingses,
And stayeth late and long.

We ask him gently to depart,
But still he lingers near.
He looks as though he understands,
It's a mistake, I fear.

They cannot tell him from our ranks,
He wears a cap of green;
And struteth proudly down the walk
Our emblem on his bean.

Now to distinguish him from us,
We hit upon a plan:
A great big yellow button
Shall decorate his can.

And if he weareth not the sign,
'Tis very sad, but true,
A voice will murmur, "Little Sub,
The fountain yawns for you."

A fare-thee-well and this I tell,
O Little Sub, hike home.
He liveth best who weareth first
The sun-beam on his dome.

A ROOK GOING THRU

HEARD IN CHEMISTRY 100

Oxygen Atom—Hello, Nick; how's your valency this afternoon?
Nickel Atom—Hello, Oxy; say, are you going to the effervescence tonight?
O. A.—No; I've sworn off getting saturated. Say, Nick, does H₂O you anything?
N. A.—Yes; he does Oxy; he owes me four corpuscles.
O. A.—There goes old Tin Atom with Miss Mollecule, his affinity, you know.
N. A.—I thought they had separated.
O. A.—No; the trouble between them seems to have been digested.
N. A.—Have you seen Ar-senic railway yet?
O. A.—No; did Cal-ci-um?
N. A.—No; but Al did.
O. A.—Al who?
N. A.—Aluminum.
O. A.—Let's go into the cafe and have the waiter fetch some phos-phor-us.
N. A.—All right; where does Io-dine?
O. A.—At Cobalt's, I think; let's go there.
N. A.—All right; their orchestra plays Sulphurious, though. I heard a good song last night.
O. A.—Who sang it?
N. A.—Didymium, the Carbon Atom.
O. A.—What was the name of the song?
N. A.—Chlorine, My Chlorine, Come Nauseate With Me.
O. A.—How did the prizefight come off last night?
N. A.—Kid Lead precipitated Young Iron in the fourth reaction. The Cop-pers stopped the action.
O. A.—Well, here comes my Zirconium; so long.
N. A.—Just Tell-urium that you saw me, Oxy. Good-bye.
Try putting a little oily waste in your pillow at night. It will be found that it will help you to slip off to sleep very easily.

EXCUSES

Monday	F-elt too tired to study.
Tuesday	L-ost my lesson on the way.
Wednesday	U-sed up all my paper.
Thursday	N-o; I really couldn't say.
Friday	K-new it once but have forgotten.

And so it goes 'til marks are shrunk,
And you realize in sorrow—
F-L-U-N-K spells Flunk.

MENTAL FERMENT

As the dusk was slowly deepening,
And the wee stars faintly shone;
With my sad heart loudly beating,
I sat on that bench of stone
That rests by the campus pathway,
Which so many feet have trod
In their tireless search for knowledge,
Of that cry, "Back to the Sod."

And as I sat there thinking,
A hand on my shoulder was laid;
I looked up rather startled,
And saw—A Rooky Maid.

She sat down close beside me,
As if she were my own;
She flung her white arms round my neck,
She kissed me on the cheek, by Heck,
She gently smoothed my tangled hair,
She looked at me with eyes as blue
As heaven when the sun peeps through.

I scarce could speak, I was so dazed,
In fact, I think I was bewitched;
I made to grasp her tiny hands—
But Holy Moses, how she lands
A blow upon my muddled head.

I would like to tell you what she said,
But just then I awoke—in bed.

GENEROSITY

I one day was struck
With a generous fit;
I gave away paper,
Not caring a bit.

To everyone near me
I handed a sheet;
For pure generosity
I couldn't be beat.

I took some myself,
But alas and alack,
While I reveled in paper,
The owner came back.

She gave me a glance,
And the paper she took;
So frightened was I,
That I trembled and shook.

Whenever, my friend,
You see fit to loan,
Don't give away paper
That isn't your own.

JOYS OF O. A. C.

Verily, he who goeth to O. A. C. is oftentimes sorely oppressed. He findeth the shops have their vices. Yea, he even squeezeth his fingers therein and raiseth his voice to high D.

He spilleth ink on his fingers in Mechanical, and also blackeneth both the floor and his innermost thoughts. He burneth his hands in Forge. He saweth his knuckle and smiteth his wrist in Shop and howleth with the ache thereof. He then sitteth on the benches and is made to desist therefrom by the boss.

He loseth his fee slips. He breaketh his model. He lendeth a tool to a neighbor and getteth it not back.

He coloreth his countenance with shellac. He submergeth his digits in grease. He annointeth his hair with glue. His leeward optic becometh filled with sawdust till he squinteth like a dried apple.

He discovereth cold mercury down his neck in Physics and danceth about, even as a wild Comanche. He splasheth nitric acid in his ear in Chem. He getteth sprayed with fixatiff in Freehand. Of a verity he endureth much and complaneth little.

He kisseth the lips of the Queen and batheth in the fountain at her feet, but she turns towards him a heart of stone.

Verily it may be said that his troubles are many and his pleasures few. Yet question him as to this and he will strongly aver that never had he more joy in his life; and in thy heart of hearts, thou'lt know that he speaketh the truth.

THE FRESHMAN COOK BOOK

SPOON KAKE

- 1 glowing grate at Waldo Hall.
- 1 divan in a cozy corner.
- 1 cadet.
- 1 pretty Waldo girl.
- 2 heads that look as one.
- 2 pair of eyes that speak volumes.
- 2 hearts that beat as one.
- 2 blinks of the electric lights.
- And the kake is done.

Colonel Moffitt rushed to the bridge and saluted:

"Commandant Hennessey," he shouted—for the roar of the artillery was deafening—"the enemy has got our range."

Hennessey frowned. "Curse the luck," he exclaimed, "Now how can the cook get dinner?"

So Mr. Bevan gave you an "E," did he?

Yes, but I'll get even; the next time he tells a joke I won't laugh.

What is the first meal of the day?

Freshman (who lives at Cauthorn)—Oatmeal.

Fussers, fussers, I've been thinking,
What a sad thing it would be,
If all the Waldo girls would leave us,
And go to live in Albany.

Dewey—Hair cut, please.
Barber—Shall I singe the end of your hair?
Dewey—Do I look as if I had hair to burn?

Two in a canoe
Went out to view
The scenery.
A little breeze
That stirred the trees,
Began to blow
Unmercifully.
The girl was cold,
The lad consoled;
The story old,
Catastrophe.

TO LITTLE EDGAR

There was a boy called Edgar Pierce,
To college he did go,
And now he is a Senior lad,
Sometimes called a "beau."

When Edgar was a little tad,
He took geometry,
But somehow thru a great mistake,
He flunked book No. three.

It seems that this had been forgotten,
Until one sad day,
The registrar looked on his books
And this to dad did say,

"If you expect to graduate
From this big O. A. college,
You'll have to make this baek work up,
For you will need the knowledge."

R. B. Thompson, editor of the state's biggest dailies, was in the Y. M. C. A. one day. A fire insurance agent, who was pestering him, aroused our editor's ire.

R. B.—"What are you sticking around me for all of the time?"

Agent—"I want to sell you some fire insurance."

R. B.—"You poor tool, I don't belong to the Y. M. C. A."

Waldo Hall: Blest be the hicks that we uster take but can not any more. (Sung to the tune of "Everybody Used to Be Doing It Then.")

"Two inches."

Turlay—"Well, then how wide?" (Note the depth.)

NOLAN'S

Department Store

WE call this your store for the reason that you are at liberty to come and go as you please, whether for sight seeing, rest, recreation or shopping. We believe that a store like this one owes something to the public beyond the mere gathering and selling of merchandise.

In the old days the shopper had to have a good bit of Yankee shrewdness, had to know whether things were good or clever shams--or else she paid the penalty of buying inferior merchandise. We believe that the big store of today has no business of selling poor goods, no matter whether the buyer has discerning judgment or not.

We believe that it is the duty of a store to make sure its goods are worthy before they reach its customers. We have carried this principle to the extreme, perhaps. Few stores are as careful that "wool" shall mean all wool, that clothing shall be made as well inside where it doesn't show, as it is outside where it does show. These things are carried to the extreme here. Some makers still tell us that we are foolishly careful; that our care is useless; that the public doesn't appreciate the difference between the best and the "almost as good"; that we might just as well take the little extra profit that comes from selling the second grade. But we know that our care is appreciated. We know that the people everywhere have learned that buying here is safe; that they can depend on whatever comes from NOLAN'S STORE; that the NOLAN standard means something. We handle over forty Nationally advertised lines.

Red Chrisman on going over his laundry found three handkerchiefs that belonged to Ann Rutledge. Now how Red became acquainted with Ann's laundry mark is still a mystery—anyway, he sent Babe up to the house with the bits of lace. Babe gave them to Mrs. Rutledge and the horrified mother exclaimed, "Why, Ann scarcely knows Chrisman."

"Mine is indeed a sad story," remarked the wayfarer. Van—"Sorry, old top, but we can't use it."

Why is Physics like a lover?

Ans.—The lower the gas the greater the pressure.

Fussy old man to Bert Burdick, who was in charge of his dad's drug shop—"Aren't you rather young to be left in such a place? Have you a diploma?"

Bert B.—"Why—er-no, sir, but we have a preparation of our own that is just as good."

Edythe Brunquist (to chum, after an evening with her boy friend)—"No, Ruth, he is not crazy about me and I am not crazy about him." (How often is this said at Waldo on a Sunday night.)

Mrs. Young (to the Dean)—"How is my daughter, Edna, getting along in school?"

Dean—"Well, what time she can spare from the adornment of her appearance, she devotes to the neglect of her duties."

Whitman was running thru some signals at the lower end of the field. The Beavers were splashing their tails around in front of the grandstand. Otto met the Whitman captain in the middle of the field; they shook, flipped the filthy lucre; the Whitman captain won the toss. "What do you want?" asked Otto. The Whitman captain replied, "We'll kick with the tide."

On a certain Friday evening in the early Spring, two very happy young people, hand in hand, were headed for the depot. This was the night of the big dance in Albany and these clever young schemers had fond hopes of evading the public eye and making their escape unseen.

It happened, however, that this same evening was the date of the military tournament and orders came from headquarters that every man report for duty.

Just as the train was approaching the depot, a loud commanding voice was directed at our hero: "Anderson, if you do not report for duty tonight, you lose your commission." A great lump arose in the throats of both of our would-be aspirants and poor Andy slowly directed his footsteps armoryward, while a very disappointed young lady boarded the train—alone.

P. S.—Andy arrived in Albany at 11:10 P. M.

Commandant (in war class, to Durkheimer)—“What is the difference between Space and Distance?”

Durkheimer—“Forty inches.”

Some one asked Geo. Morris what he was doing in school this year, and the Gent from Punxetawny replied that he was taking Horticulture.

“Horticulture?” asked the astonished interrogator.

“Yes,” said George; “just now we are pruning alternating currents.”

She—“Why is it that you have never proposed to any girl?”

Speidel—“I am wedded to myself.”

She—“Then, why don't you get a divorce and resume your maiden name?”

He (at a band informal)—“I could dance to heaven with you.”

She (hurriedly)—“Would you mind reversing?”

SALEM SEWER PIPE

MANUFACTURED IN SALEM

The new kind made in Oregon. A process of two of sand to one of cement, machine tamped, ninety pound blows and four hundred strokes per minute. The kind of pipe that has broken the back of the old Terra Cotta Clay Trust. They are selling cheaper now, but would they if it had not been for a new process of much stronger material?

Rook—"Say, how many people work on the Annual?"

Senior—"About half of them, my boy."

O. B. Hayes—"Father, when I graduate from college I am going to follow a literary career—write for money, you know."

The Rev.—"Ollie, my boy, you haven't done anything else since you have been in college."

"They say that it takes Mike Hayes just twenty-two minutes to arise to recite."

"Sure, you don't expect to unravel a carpet in one second, do you?"

Time—11:30 P. M. Place—Back room at Waldo, first floor.

From the outside a small frightened voice cries, "Elsie, Elsie, come to the window."

Silence from Elsie.

"Elsie, please wake up and let me in."

Still silence from within.

A hammering ensues and further shouting at Elsie. At last a sleepy, dazed, little, white figure appears at the window and wants to know if the Hall is on fire.

"You silly; I am only locked out and I want you to help me get in. Find a rope quick and be quiet."

After some time Elsie finds a rope and lowers it to our little friend in the dark. Much pulling and tugging follows, but finally a frightened but thankful little rookess is hauled into the window and falls in Elsie's arms and sobs, "Next time you are locked out I will help you in." (It is mean to tell it, but what a good one.)

Mrs. Hofer—"It just goes to show how youngsters of this generation fail to take advantage of their opportunities."

Mr. Hofer—"What's the matter now?"

Mrs. Hofer—"Why, when Paul was at home I used to try to make him take the mop and bucket and scrub up the halls. He would pay no heed, and now he writes that he is on the 'scrub team' up at college, and he doesn't know a thing about scrubbing."

The advertisement is a black and white illustration within a rectangular frame. At the top center is a tall, multi-story building with many windows, identified as the Journal Building. To the right of the building is a statue of a woman standing on a rock, holding a torch aloft. Below the building and statue, the text 'OREGON ENGRAVING CO.' is printed in a bold, serif font. Below that, 'JOURNAL BUILDING PORTLAND, OREGON' is printed in a similar font. Further down, 'Artists Photo-Engravers Photographers' is written in a smaller, sans-serif font. Below that, 'TWO THREE AND FOUR COLOR WORK ILLUSTRATIONS FOR ALL REQUIREMENTS' is printed in a bold, sans-serif font. At the bottom of the frame, there is a landscape scene with a body of water, a bridge, and a mountain in the background. A circular logo with stylized letters is positioned in the bottom right corner of the frame.
