Alma Mater

Within a vale of western mountains
There's a college we hold dear
Her shady slopes and fountains
Oft to me appear.
I love to wander on the pathway
Down to the Trysting Tree,
For there again I see in fancy,
Old Friends dear to me.

(Chorus)

Carry me back to OSU,
Back to her vine-clad halls;
Thus fondly ever in my mem'ry
Alma Mater calls

Welcome to OSU

At Oregon State University, people come together to make a positive difference in the world. Our faculty, students and alumni are enhancing quality of life, preserving natural resources and driving innovations that spread prosperity.

Founded in 1868, Oregon State is the state's Land Grant university and is one of only two universities in the U.S. to have land, sea, space and sun grant designations. OSU is one of two universities in Oregon to have earned the Carnegie Foundation for the Advancement of Teaching's top-tier "very high research activity" designation, as well as the Carnegie Foundation's "community engagement" classification.

As Oregon's largest public research university, with a record $275 million in external research funding in 2009-10, Oregon State's impact reaches across the state and beyond. With 12 colleges, 15 Agricultural Experiment Stations, 35 county Extension offices, the Hatfield Marine Sciences Center in Newport and OSU-Cascades in Bend, Oregon State has a presence in all of Oregon's 36 counties, with a statewide economic footprint of $1.5 billion.

OSU welcomes a diverse student body of nearly 24,000 students from across Oregon, all 50 states and more than 80 countries. The university offers more than 200 undergraduate and more than 80 graduate degree programs, including more than 20 degrees offered online.

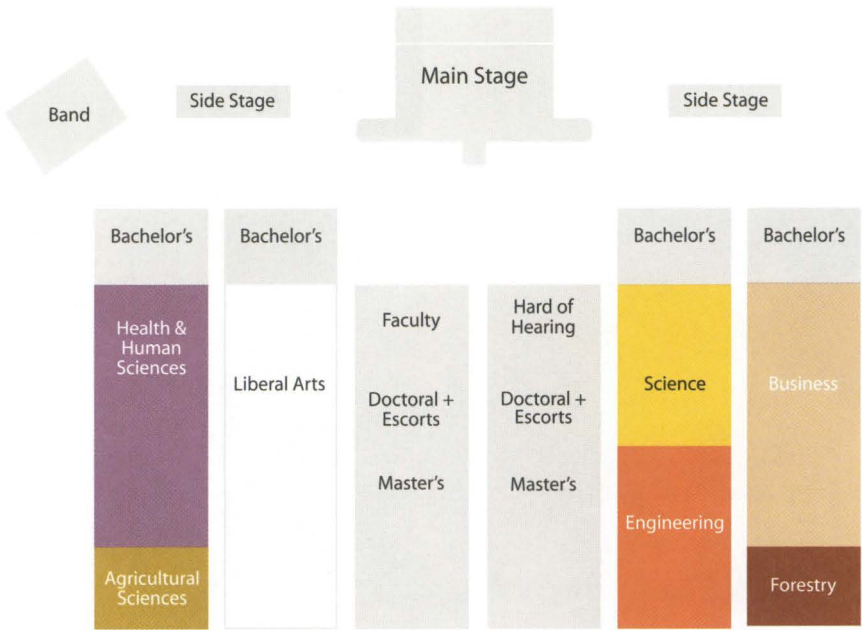

Oregon State University is where discovery, innovation and application meet challenges, solve problems and turn ideas into reality.

Candidates for Baccalaureate Degrees

Diploma Distribution

Doctoral degree candidates cross the main stage one at a time to receive their degrees. Candidates for the master's degrees cross the main stage in two lines to receive their degrees.

Bachelor's diplomas for the Class of 2011 will be distributed at the two small stages to the left and right of the main stage.

Distribution of diplomas to the small tent to the RIGHT of the stage will be in the following order: College of Forestry, College of Science, College of Business, and College of Engineering.

Distribution of diplomas to the small tent to the LEFT of the stage will be in the following order: College of Agricultural Sciences, College of Liberal Arts, and the College of Health and Human Sciences.

Academic Costume

Academic regalia represent a tradition that comes down from the universities of the Middle Ages. At that time they were a common form of dress and were retained by the clergy when the laity adopted more modern styles. The caps, originally round, later became square mortar boards. The hoods attached to the gowns were originally cowls which could be slipped over the head for protection from the weather.

The significance of the academic regalia is indicated especially by the sleeves and hoods. The bachelor's gown has pointed sleeves; the master's gown has long, closed sleeves; and the doctor's gown has bell-shaped sleeves and velvet trimmings.

The colored velvet border of the hood indicates the field of study to which the degree pertains, as do the tassel colors on the mortar board.

The colorful lining of the hood indicates the institution from which the wearer received his or her degree. The lining of the Harvard University hood, for example, is crimson; Yale, blue; Wisconsin, bright red; California, gold; Washington State, crimson above grey; Oregon, lemon yellow and dark green; Stanford, cardinal; Oregon State, burnt orange.

Distinguished Service Award

ROBERT R. FOSSUM

In his long and distinguished career in private industry and the Department of Defense, Robert Fossum made contributions to the national security of the United States that continue today.

After serving in both the U.S. Navy and the U.S. Marine Corps, Fossum used his experience in radar and communications to launch his career as a research scientist with GTE/Sylvania in California, where he worked for future Under Secretary of Defense William Perry. Much of their work there remains classified, but Fossum was credited for helping to develop national satellite-based reconnaissance systems for monitoring enemy aircraft that are still in use.

Perry later appointed Fossum, who earned his doctorate in statistics at OSU in 1969, to serve as director of the Advanced Research Agency Projects, or ARPA, and directed him to test the merits of a bold new project to make aircraft immune to attack by radar-guided and infrared-guided missiles.

Wrote Perry in a letter in support of Fossum's nomination: "Within six months, the project team had a successful flight test of a prototype aircraft, which served as convincing proof of principal." Within four years, this new stealth technology led to the emergence of the F-117 fighter-bomber, which Perry credits in part to Fossum's leadership.

As director of ARPA, Fossum also oversaw some of the greatest growth and technological advancement for national security in the nation's history. Under his leadership, the agency developed airborne ground-moving vehicle tracking radar, powerful chemical lasers, stealth technologies with applications for ships, aircraft and missiles, and even internetting protocols, which served as the foundations for the present-day Internet and Web.

After leaving ARPA, Fossum joined the faculty at Southern Methodist University, where he was professor of electrical engineering and dean of the School of Engineering and Applied Science until his retirement in 1998.

Officials say it is difficult to detail Fossum's contributions to national security because they are both complex and classified. But his legacy, they say, is enormous. He was making contributions as early as the 1962 Cuban missile crisis, and later was credited with developing the Canyon Intercept System for intercepting foreign radio signals from a satellite. His later work with stealth aircraft and signal processing systems completed a remarkable portfolio of work that truly advanced national security for the United States.

Commencement Speaker and Honorary Doctorate

JON DEVAAN

As senior vice president of Windows Development, Jon DeVaan manages the engineering team responsible for creating the core components and architecture of Microsoft Windows.

DeVaen is a 25-year Microsoft veteran, and his extensive experience and knowledge have established him as a respected leader in the technology industry. DeVaen has held a variety of executive and management positions while at Microsoft. His most recent position was senior vice president of the Windows Core Operating System Division, managing the engineering team responsible for creating the core components and architecture of Microsoft Windows. Prior to joining the Windows division, he started the Engineering Excellence Initiative, which spans across all Microsoft products.

Previously, DeVaen managed the TV Division at Microsoft, responsible for the UltimateTV service and the Microsoft TV software platform. DeVaen co-managed Microsoft's Consumer and Commerce Group, where he helped design and initiate the turnaround strategy for MSN. DeVaen led Microsoft's Desktop Applications Division, growing the business to $7 billion in annual revenues. Responsible for the Microsoft Office family of applications and advanced application technologies, DeVaen led the initial design of Microsoft Office 2000, setting the direction of the product to seamlessly integrate Internet technologies and make them easier to use. In addition to serving as vice president of development and director of development for Office 95 and 97, DeVaen worked in various capacities ranging from Excel software design engineer to development manager. His leadership and experience provided essential management of cross-platform technology and helped pioneer the development processes used to create Microsoft products. DeVaen has been a guest speaker at many events on the topic of software engineering and in the interactive and cable TV industries. Most notably, DeVaen served as a panelist with United Nations Secretary General Kofi Annan at the 2000 United Nations' World Television Forum to discuss the convergence of TV, digital technology and the Internet.

DeVaen holds bachelor's degrees in mathematics and computer science from Oregon State University, and holds patents in the area of simplifying user interface elements in PC applications. DeVaen serves as a trustee of the Oregon State University Foundation, as a technical advisor to the Oregon Innovation Council and as an ambassador for United Way of King County.

Advanced Degrees

THE GRADUATE SCHOOL

Brenda McComb, Ph.D., Dean

Oregon State University's Graduate School serves more than 3,000 students from all 50 states and nearly 100 countries. Students can choose from more than 80 graduate programs in fields such as engineering, forestry, oceanography, agriculture, life sciences, liberal arts, health and human sciences, environmental sciences, business and education. As Oregon's largest public research university, OSU attracts more research funding than any other institution in the Oregon University System, a record $275 million in 2010. Faculty and graduate students pursue a wide range of research projects addressing significant issues at the state, national and international levels.

Oregon State University offers the following advanced degrees:

Doctor of Education (Ed.D.)	Master of Engineering (M.Engr.)
Doctor of Philosophy (Ph.D.)	Master of Fine Arts (M.F.A.)
Master of Agriculture (M.Agr.)	Master of Forestry (M.F.)
Master of Arts (M.A.)	Master of Health Physics (M.H.P.)
Master of Arts in Interdisciplinary Studies (M.A.I.S.)	Master of Medical Physics (M.M.P.)
Master of Arts in Teaching (M.A.T.)	Master of Natural Resources (M.N.R.)
Master of Business Administration (M.B.A.)	Master of Ocean Engineering (M.Oc.E.)
Master of Business and Engineering (M.B.E.)	Master of Public Health (M.P.H.)
Master of Education (Ed.M.)	Master of Public Policy (M.P.P.)
	Master of Science (M.S.)

Thesis: Predicting Mechanical Instability of a Cylindrical Plate under Axial Flow Conditions

Elizabeth Frances Martin

MS 2002 Ohio University
Major: Botany and Plant Pathology
Major Professor: Robert J. Meinke
Thesis: Reproduction, Demography, and Habitat Characterization of Astragalus peckii (Fabaceae), a Rare Central Oregon Endemic

Maciej Bozyslaw Maselko

BS 2005 University of Alaska
Major: Molecular and Cellular Biology
Major Professor: Manoj K. Pastey
Thesis: Molecular Characterization of an HIV-1 Drug Target and Antiviral Compound Development

Casey Allen Matney

BS 2000 Oregon State University
MS 2004 Oregon State University
Major: Rangeland Ecology and Management
Major Professor: Tamzen Stringham
Thesis: An Assessment of Plant Community Structure, Herbivory, Soils, and State-and-Transition Theory on a Winterfat (Krascheninnikovia lanata [Pursh] A.D.J. Meeuse and Smit) Ecological Site

Sean Erick Matson

BS 1996 University of Washington
MS 2000 University of Washington
Major: Animal Science
Major Professor: Howard H. Meyer
Thesis: Development, Evaluation and Application of a Mixed-family Selective Breeding Method for the Pacific Oyster (Crassostrea gigas)

Brent Searle Matteson

MS 2008 Oregon State University
Major: Chemistry
Major Professor: Alena Paulenova
Thesis: The Chemistry of Acetohydroxamic Acid Related to Nuclear Fuel Reprocessing

Terry D. McGlasson

BS 1992 California State University-Fresno
MA 1997 Western Seminary
Major: Counseling
Major Professor: Deborah J. Rubel
Thesis: A Phenomenological Study of the "Coming Out" Experience for Gay Men Raised in Conservative Christian Environments

Carol J. McKiel

BS 1999 Indiana University

MS 2007 Northeastern State University

Major: Education

Major Professor: Chris L. Ward

Thesis: Instructors as Learning Managers:

College of Oceanic and Atmospheric Sciences

Mark R. Abbott, Ph.D., Dean

The College of Oceanic and Atmospheric Sciences advances the understanding of complex processes in the Earth system — and their relationship to one another. The college provides the essential knowledge for making effective decisions and developing sound policies for a sustainable Earth and international economy. As one of only a select few universities in the country studying the Earth as an integrated system of oceans, atmospheres and continents, the college offers undergraduate opportunities for research internships as well as graduate programs in ocean/atmosphere/earth sciences and marine resource management. Students and alumni become leaders in the study of global-scale environmental issues and their impact on our economy and society.

All of the degrees offered through this college are doctorates and master's degrees and listed in the preceding pages.

College of Pharmacy

Mark Zabriskie, Ph.D., Dean

The College of Pharmacy is Oregon’s only fully accredited, publicly funded pharmacy program, promoting a healthier, higher quality of life through graduate education and research. The professional doctor of pharmacy (Pharm.D.) degree is awarded jointly by OSU and Oregon Health & Science University (OHSU) in Portland. OSU pharmacy graduates score in the top 10 percent on national licensing exams, and both faculty and alumni are recognized worldwide for their contributions to new drug discovery, defining mechanisms of drug action, creating new drug dosage forms and assessing the effect of public policy on the use and cost of medications. College faculty rank in the top third of pharmacy schools nationwide for research funding and are second at OSU for invention disclosures and patent applications.

College of Veterinary Medicine

Cyril Clarke, Ph.D., Dean

The College of Veterinary Medicine offers a four-year course of professional veterinary medical education, including one year of clinical training that encompasses all basic aspects of veterinary medicine. The Doctor of Veterinary Medicine (DVM) program emphasizes the importance of core training in comparative biology and medicine. Graduates are prepared for careers in a variety of areas, including animal health and disease prevention, public health and food safety. The college also participates in interdepartmental programs such as the Molecular and Cell Biology Ph.D. program.

Graduation with Academic Distinction

Graduation with Academic Distinction is conferred by the Faculty Senate on those candidates for the baccalaureate degree who have maintained high scholastic standing in their respective colleges and who have been in attendance at Oregon State University for at least two regular academic years. The designation Cum Laude is conferred upon students graduating with a cumulative GPA of 3.50 to 3.69; the designation Magna Cum Laude is conferred upon students with a GPA of 3.70 to 3.84; and the designation Summa Cum Laude is conferred upon those students with a GPA of 3.85 or better.

Those who are graduating Cum Laude are wearing orange honor cords; students graduating Magna Cum Laude are wearing gold honor cords; and those graduating Summa Cum Laude are wearing white honor cords.

University Honors College

Daniel J. Arp, Ph.D., Dean

The University Honors College offers high-achieving students a small college environment and collaborative learning community. One of a handful of degree-granting honors colleges in the U.S., the UHC awards the Honors Baccalaureate, OSU's most prestigious undergraduate degree. Admission to the UHC is competitive, and the student population compares favorably with the best universities in the nation. Students can pursue multiple topics through undergraduate research, often winning research grants and publishing their findings well before they graduate. Through classes and a senior thesis project, they build mentoring relationships with leading faculty from across the university. UHC graduates are prepared to think creatively, solve problems and make positive contributions in their careers, their communities and beyond!

International Degree

Sunil Khanna, Ph.D., Associate Provost for International Programs

Oregon State University offers a unique dual-degree program in International Studies for students in all undergraduate fields, giving them the opportunity to gain international experience, become proficient in a foreign language and explore the international dimensions of their majors. Students earn two degrees: a bachelor's degree in their chosen major and a Bachelor of Arts in International Studies. The program includes a four-year sequence in a foreign language, study, internship or research abroad, cross-cultural coursework and a thesis that places the major in an international context.

College of Agricultural Sciences

Sonny Ramaswamy, Ph.D., Dean

The College of Agricultural Sciences provides fundamental education, research and service to support sustainable agriculture, food systems, environmental studies and natural resources management throughout Oregon. The college ranks third in the U.S. and tenth internationally for the frequency its research is cited by peer scientists in published studies. The college offers more than 25 undergraduate and graduate degrees in Corvallis, at Eastern Oregon University in La Grande and online through OSU Ecampus. Graduates pursue diverse career paths, including plant genomics, marine resource management, international business and trade, vineyard operations, golf course management and many others.

College of Business

Ilene Kleinsorge, Ph.D., Dean

The College of Business provides an internationally recognized, research-based education, producing profession-ready graduates and future business leaders. The college serves more than 3,000 undergraduate and 110 MBA students each year, offering degrees in accounting, entrepreneurship, finance, international business, management, business information systems and marketing — the most in the Oregon University System. The growing MBA program combines foundational concepts with collaborative, hands-on learning, providing graduates with focused skills in entrepreneurship, innovation and technology commercialization. Students can also take advantage of experiential learning through internships as well as the Austin Entrepreneurship Program, Austin Family Business Program, Business Solutions Group, Close to the Customer Project and Arthur Stonehill International Business Exchange Program.

College of Education

Sam Stern, Ph.D., Dean

The College of Education prepares teachers, counselors and educational leaders for careers in schools, colleges, communities and workplaces. Built on a culture of creativity, connection and caring, the college offers a variety of bachelor's, master's, doctoral degrees and licenses to students preparing for careers in early childhood, elementary, middle and high school education, as well as organizational and human resource education, college student services, community college leadership and counseling. Through the innovative Education Double Degree program, undergraduate students earn two degrees concurrently – one in their specialty and another in education – and are qualified to teach upon graduation. The college works in close partnership with schools and community colleges throughout Oregon to support student success.

College of Engineering

Ronald L. Adams, Ph.D., Dean

The College of Engineering produces extraordinary engineers, incubates powerful new ideas from research and fuels innovation to support economic growth and prosperity in Oregon and beyond. Offering one of the largest undergraduate engineering programs in the U.S., the college serves approximately 4,200 undergraduate and 800 graduate students, awarding at least 30 doctoral degrees each year.

Academic programs include bioengineering, chemical, civil, ecological, environmental, industrial, manufacturing, mechanical, nuclear engineering, computer science, construction engineering management, electrical and computer engineering, energy engineering management, materials science and radiation health physics. Its graduates have introduced world-changing advances in technology, business and the sciences.

College of Forestry

Hal Salwasser, Ph.D., Dean

The College of Forestry offers world-class undergraduate and graduate education in the conservation, management and use of forest resources. The college is ranked the top forest resources research program in North America and the number one forest ecology program.

Through eight undergraduate and three graduate programs, the college gives students the technical expertise to sustainably manage forest resources, as well as to communicate effectively, think creatively and solve challenging multi-faceted problems through collaboration and effective teamwork. Its graduates are leaders, scientists, managers and stewards of the world's natural and renewable resources, helping society use innovation and science to achieve the dual goals of healthy and prosperous people living on a healthy planet.

College of Health and Human Sciences

Tammy Bray, Ph.D., Dean

The College of Health and Human Sciences is taking care of life through education and research in all aspects of human health across the lifespan: nutrition, physical activity, child and family development, aging, bone health, public policy, access to health care and our designed environments. The college serves more than 3,000 students, offering programs in public health, nutrition and exercise sciences, human development and family sciences, and design and human environment. The college also serves Oregonians statewide through Extension programs in family and community health and 4-H youth development. College research centers include the Hallie Ford Center for Healthy Children and Families and the Center for Healthy Aging Research.

College of Liberal Arts

Larry Rodgers, Ph.D., Dean

The College of Liberal Arts is the educational heart of the university, where every OSU student benefits from Baccalaureate Core courses in the arts, humanities and social sciences. More than 3,000 students major in liberal arts programs, including anthropology, art, economics, English, ethnic studies, French, German and Spanish languages and literatures, history, liberal studies, music, new media communications, philosophy, political science, pre-elementary education, psychology, sociology, speech communication and theatre arts, and women studies. The college also offers certificate programs in applied ethics, Latin American affairs, peace studies, Russian studies, language and culture, religion and culture, and women studies.

College of Science

Sherman H. Bloomer, Ph.D., Dean

The College of Science leads OSU in discoveries and innovations in basic science that fuel economic opportunity and social improvement. Students can major in biochemistry and biophysics, biology, chemistry, earth science, environmental sciences, geography, geology, mathematics, microbiology, physics and zoology, along with pre-health professional options, which include dentistry, medicine, clinical lab science, nursing, occupational therapy, optometry, osteopathy, pharmacy, physical therapy, physician assistant, podiatry and veterinary medicine. Advanced degrees are offered in most disciplines and in molecular and cellular biology, science and mathematics education, and statistics. Special programs include the Professional Science Master's program and the teacher licensure program in the Department of Science and Mathematics Education.

FOR MY STUDENTS

You arrived at the university on a brilliant fall day, with your bike in a box. I watched your mother carry the desk-lamp, trailing its cord, and the laundry bag of clean clothes, watched her wrestle the box of shoes and surge-protectors up the stairs. She looked at you with confidence and pride, and when she looked away, her face tightened against tears.

You arrived in spring on a day of rain-showers, alone and wary, unimaginably far from home. From open windows in Benton Hall, a trumpet climbed the musical scale, up and up. Rhododendrons bent under heavy buds; maybe you knew the weight of that expectation. Maybe you had seen those same shining leaves on the other side of the ocean, trembling to a different musical scale.

In a September rain-squall, you arrived with your brother and a photo album you protected under your coat. Students with name-tags crowded to meet you. They swept you up, loading your stuff onto a pushcart. When you disappeared through the door of the dorm, your brother shrugged and drove away, turning up the volume on the stereo. Then you were back in the doorway again, watching him go.

Maybe you're surprised how closely your professors watched you come and, now at graduation, how intently we watch as you leave. Do you have any idea how desperately we believe in you? If there is hope to be found for this beautiful, bewildering world, it will be in your decisions.

Wherever you go, may you find good work of real substance — not to buy your dream car, because that will not satisfy you or your obligations — but to be creative and caring, so that when you come to the end of your time, you can say, this life was a great gift to me and I have returned the gift in full.

May you be completely, incurably, joyously curious. May you live with an open mind and an open heart, understanding that there are many ways to come to know, many ways to be a human being, many ways to love the world.

May you be delighted by other people's joy and saddened by the sorrow of strangers.

May you have the courage to make your life an expression of what you believe is true and good and beautiful, resisting what is easy, resisting what others press on you, rejecting what is degraded and shameful. When the time comes, as it will, may you have the strength to say, this is not the way I live.

May you be generous and just, knowing that your personal well-being depends on healthy communities and inventive cultures, knowing that your life depends on thriving ecological systems — the winds and rivers and fresh fields that sustain us, body and soul.

May you take comfort in the constancy of the earth, daylight and moonlight, meadow and forest, the healing water, the reliable return of frogsong and soft rain. May you be forever surprised by its mystery and grace.

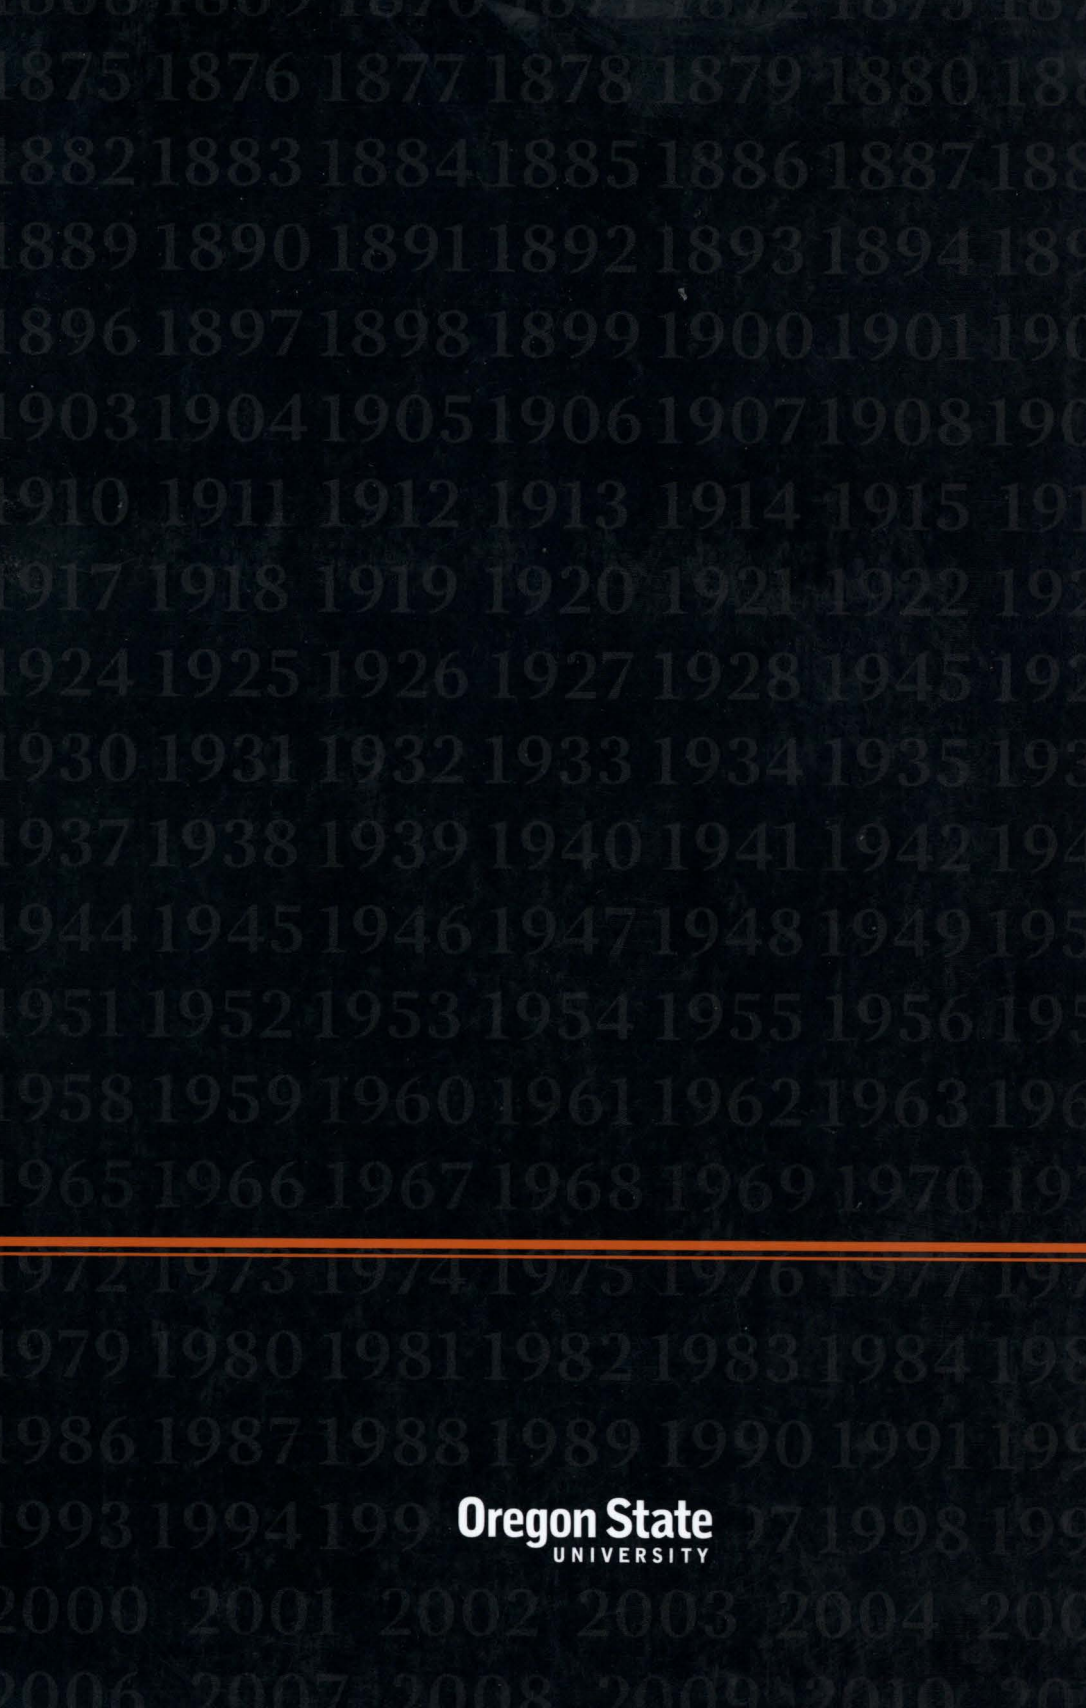

May you be grateful and glad.

May you live responsibly, knowing that your decisions, large and small, shape the future for people you will never meet, creating a new world where children will dance in the doorway or cower in hunger and fear.

The world cries out. May you be one who answers.
