23 Years of Yuletide Customs Told

By Janet Halladay

A CHRISTMAS without memories is like fish and chips without tartar sauce.

Although very few OSC students actually spend the Christmas holidays on the campus, still Christmas as it has been celebrated before vacations start are familiar memories to Miss Edith Wilkinson, who has been secretary to the dean of men for 23 years. She herself is probably a familiar memory to staters who attended school during those years.

Customs Change with the Years

Styles in Christmases change just like styles in hats: one year it is a chapeau and blue-light yuletide, the next a bonnet and steam pudding tradition. So it goes at Oregon State, Miss Wilkinson recalled.

One of the most beautiful pre-war events was the outdoor lighting by fraternities and sororities. Alums who had anything to do with the custom can justifiably swell with pride, they were that outstanding, she said. Most vivid in her memory was the huge Santa that "dashed" across the top of the Sigma Nu house. The Delts always lighted the tree on the south side of their house, and the Pi Phi's and Chi O's put lights around their doorways, to mention just a few.

Campus decorations were not as plentiful but those with good memories will remember the lights on the two trees east of the co-op.

Women in living groups will remember many an afternoon of practicing and finally the climax of Christmas caroling. Almost as traditional as Christmas itself was the cold, icy weather and heartwarming applause and notes of thanks.

The yuletide spirit pervaded Kent house as it annually threw open its doors for a faculty tea, Miss Wilkinson reminisced. Steamed puddings, decorated trees helped bring Christmas cheer to faculty and their wives whose Christmas consisted of a day or two. And the Sunday before exams Paul Petri's combined Madrigal and Glee club choruses relieved pressure with traditional carols.

Children's Parties a Tradition

Memories of past Christmases would probably include parties given for children from the farm home and other institutions. The Figi's, Miss Wilkinson recalled, had the children as guests of honor at dinner.

Christmas without snow is like OSC without Benny. Many alums remember only dripping skies, although a few cherish memories of ice skating down Monroe and sliding 'cross the Quad.

Dr. Franklin Zeran New Education Dean

Dr. Franklin R. Zeran, who last month accepted the position of associate dean of education at Oregon State college, is scheduled to take active charge of the school of education here at the beginning of winter term. His appointment to succeed Assistant Dean Carl W. Salser, who retired last July, is effective December 15.

Dr. Zeran comes to OSC from a counselling and guidance position in the United States office of education in Washington, D.C. He had been connected with this office off and on for seven years. After receiving his B.A. degree from the University of Wisconsin in 1930, Dr. Zeran obtained a master's degree there in 1932 and completed work for a Ph.D. degree in 1937.

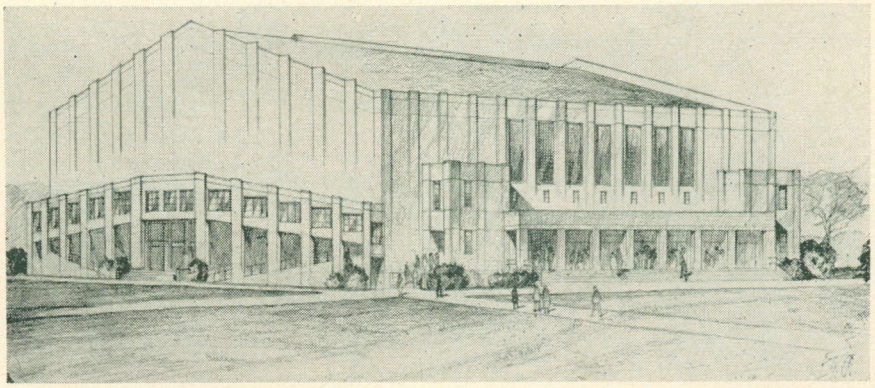
600 Season Tickets Available For 1947-48 Hoop Schedule

SIX hundred season basketball tickets, at $15 each including tax, will be sold for the 1947-48 basketball season in accordance with the policy set this year by the Oregon State College Intercollegiate Athletic Board.

These tickets will entitle the purchaser to a reserved seat on the main floor at all pre-conference games in Corvallis except December 1 and 2 against Linfield and Willamette, respectively, and to each alternate conference game in Corvallis.

Under the new policy, season ticket holders will attend conference basketball games in Corvallis on alternate nights, as the OSC student body did last year. The inadequate basketball facilities of 1946-47 made it necessary to limit admission to conference games almost entirely to students. Fans other than students were admitted just before the start of each game, if the gymnasium was not filled, and no season tickets were sold.

"After checking with the administration, fire marshal's office and the fire chief, it has been found possible to take care of the students in the same manner as last year and still sell a number of season tickets," reported Athletic Director Roy S. "Spec" Keene.



OREGON STATE COLLEGE basketball fans may look forward to next year and a 400 per cent improvement in the seating situation with this huge pavilion scheduled to be completed early in 1949. Preliminary plans have been approved by the building committee of the state board of higher education, and work will begin soon on the $1,500,000 structure. The building, two stories high of reinforced concrete with a basement, will feature 85 per cent of its 10,000 seats along the sides. It will be located at South 20th street, across from the college tennis courts.

This proposed pavilion will not be built through use of the state building fund, but will be financed by a bond issue backed by the student building fee and receipts from use of the structure. In addition to the court itself, the building will contain many athletic offices and facilities, plus showers and team rooms adequate for use when the adjacent new football stadium is constructed.

Policies, Preference Information Published

The new Athletic Board policies and information on ticket preferences were made available in printed form late in November. According to the published policy, each purchaser of season tickets will be limited to two tickets, and applications will be filled in the following order:

A—Buck O'Month members
B—Alumni association members and faculty
C—General public

In order to participate in the above preference, applications for tickets must be received in the Intercollegiate Athletic office by December 6, 1947. After this date all applications will be filled in order of receipt. No telephone applications or applications without proper remittance will be considered. Remittances should be made payable to the Intercollegiate Athletic Department at Oregon State.

Two sets of season tickets will be printed, the athletic department indicated. On every ticket will be printed the games and dates to which the purchaser is entitled to attend, along with the reserve seat location for each conference game. All applications will be alternated between white and orange tickets. Orders for two season tickets will be filled with both orange or both white.

The games covered by each set of tickets are as follows:

White ticket—Friday, December 19, Oakland Bittners; Saturday, December 20, Oakland Bittners; Monday, December 22, Sacramento Senators; Tuesday, December 23, Sacramento Senators; Monday, December 29, University of California; Tuesday, December 30, University of California; Saturday, January 3, Portland university; Saturday, January 17, University of Oregon; Saturday, January 31, University of Washington; Tuesday, February 17, University of Idaho; and Friday, February 27, Washington State college.

Orange tickets—Friday, December 19, Oakland Bittners; Saturday, December 20, Oakland Bittners; Monday, December 22, Sacramento Senators; Tuesday, December 23, Sacramento Senators; Monday, December 29, University of California; Tuesday, December 30, University of California; Saturday, January 3, Portland University; Friday, January 30, University of Washington; Monday, February 16, University of Idaho; Saturday, February 21, University of Oregon; and Saturday, February 28, Washington State college.

Pavilion to Relieve Limitations

Oregon Staters are now looking forward to the change in basketball seating capacity which should be present next year in the form of the new basketball pavilion.

Public interest in Oregon State basketball has by necessity been curtailed during the past two years of increased student enrollment. Facilities for basketball, concerts, lectures and other events were recognized several years ago as becoming increasingly inadequate in the present men's gymnasium.

Planning for the massive proposed pavilion is almost completed, and work on the structure should begin soon. As indicated elsewhere in this issue, although final state board approval may not be forthcoming at that body's December meeting, arrangements have been made for a special session by the building committee.

BEAVER Sports Roundup...

By Irwin Harris, Athletic News Director

WHEN this copy of The Oregon Stater reaches you, the football uniforms will have been packed away in moth balls until next year and the 1947-48 basketball season already will be underway. For the past month Coach Slats Gill has been in the midst of a tremendous rebuilding program. Gone from last year's Pacific Coast conference champions and consolation winner at the Western Division NCAA tournament are Lew Beck, brilliant all-American guard, towering Red Rocha, 6 foot, 8 inch three-time all-coast center; Morrie Silver, one of the slickest passers ever to wear an Orange suit; and Erland Anderson, rugged 6 foot, 4 inch forward.

With four starters gone, Slats is building from the ground up so it would be foolish to expect any miracles this year. Just how potent a ball club the Beavers will floor won't be known until some of the pre-season contests are out of the way. First game is against Portland university in Portland on Friday, November 28. One of the most extensive and attractive practice campaigns in history has been lined up for the Orange cagers by Athletic Director Spec Keene. A 15-game slate which appears elsewhere in this column will take the Beavers all the way from New York City's Madison Square Garden to San Francisco's Cow Palace before Gill's men open defense of their northern division title against Washington State in Pullman on January 9 and 10.

Used most consistently on the number one unit to date have been Alex Petersen, Cliff Crandall and Norm Carey, all lettermen from last year; and Ernie Neal, a letterman in 1946 but a member of the jaycee squad last winter. The fifth man on this quintet has alternately come from Dan Torrey, Dick Ballantyne, Frankie Roelandt and Ward Paldanius. Torrey and Roelandt are both letter winners while Ballantyne and Paldanius were mainstays of the 1947 junior varsity.

Crandall made most all-coast squads as a sophomore last year and is expected to be the sparkplug and steadying influence on this winter's club. He is a great dribbler and ball handler and a better-than-average shot. Petersen is another boy who saw lots of action last year and started just about as many games as Anderson. He handles himself well for a big man but is not heavy enough to be outstanding under the boards. However, he shoots well and his experience will be valuable.

Carey saw considerable action last year and may fill in one of the guard slots nicely. He is very fast but not too good a shot. Ernie Neal is probably the most improved player on the squad. He has taken off a great deal of excess weight and has looked very good in recent workouts.

Another boy who has shown lots of improvements and may be heard from before the season is well underway is Ballantyne, a hard driving left hander from Baker. He was an all-state performer in high school and if he continues to shine, may nudge some of the more experienced performers out of a starting role. Len Rinearson's work under the boards has caught the attention of everyone, and the lanky Oregon City sophomore shows real promise at either forward or center—the positions weakest at the moment.

Injuries have handicapped several men expected to make a strong bid for starting jobs. Tommy Holman, a letterman in 1943 who was just beginning to flash some of his former brilliance, has been bothered by boils. Whitey Konstad, a standout guard from the jayvees last winter, has been slowed up by shin splints.

Paul Sliper, a 6 foot, 6 inch transfer from Vanport, still lacks polish, but his height and effectiveness under the backboards stamps him as a potential comer. Jim Catterall and Bernie McGrath have looked promising on different occasions and Ken Storey from last year's jayvees is battling on fairly even terms with the bigger boys for a forward or center spot. It's still mainly a period of experimentation with Gill juggling his men around in an effort to find the strongest possible combination.

The competition in the northern division this winter definitely will be on the rugged side. Washington, under its new coach, Art McLarney, lost only Boody Gilbertson from last winter's strong club and is the pre-season favorite to displace the Beavers as champions. Oregon, with John Warren at the helm, has most of its squad back and will be a solid contender. Last year's runner-up, Washington State, also expects to floor another strong combination. This all adds up to another torrid race typical of Northern division basketball through the years.

KEN CARPENTER, one of the leading ground gainers in the conference, is a likely candidate for all-coast honors as the season nears its close. Shifted from fullback to left halfback this year, Carpenter took up passing and has proved effective as the right-handed threat in the Beaver optional pass-or-run offense.

As this column is written, two games remain on the Oregon State football schedule, the big one against Oregon at Eugene on November 22 and the intersectional finale against Nebraska in Lincoln on November 29. The Beavers have had a rather disappointing season although Coach Lon Stiner warned from the start that his club was greatly overrated.

The 1947 Orangemen have been in and outers. After being rudely upset by Utah at Salt Lake in the season's opener, the Beavers came back strong and whipped Washington and Idaho in their first two conference starts. Then disaster struck again. Southern California's still undefeated Trojans trounced our men 48 to 6 at Los Angeles. It should be pointed out that Oregon State played that one with three first string linemen, Paul Evensen, Bill Austin and Dick Lorenz, out with injuries.

Carpenter Injured

Back bounced the Orange the following Saturday at home to trounce Hal Moe's hapless Portland Pilots, 46 to 0. Stiner's men followed this up with another good performance at Palo Alto and defeated a downtrodden but inspired Stanford club, 13 to 7. Things were looking up again as the Beavers now had three league victories to their credit against a lone defeat and faced the defending champion UCLA Bruins in Portland. But the team was in for another "out" streak and absorbed a 27-7 licking from the Bruins. After holding a momentary 7 to 6 lead in the second quarter, the Beavers wilted before the superior Bruin manpower and were completely outclassed in the second half. The injury jinx stepped in again and took Ken Carpenter, star left halfback, out of the contest in the second quarter with a knee injury.

The following weekend in the Homecoming game at Corvallis on November 15 Stiner's hard luck kids dropped a 14 to 13 heartbreaker to a fired up Washington State eleven. Oregon State beat the pesky Cougars on statistics but a couple of careless errors on defense and a missed placement after the second touchdown cost the Orange the game.

Why the Defeats?

What's wrong with the Beavers and why didn't they live up to pre-season expectations? There are several good reasons. In the first place, Oregon State along with Stanford lost more men by graduation than any other school in the conference. Stiner lost 10 lettermen including such standouts as the brilliant Bill Gray, center; Martin Chaves, right guard; Ted Ossowski and Boyd Clement, tackles; Lee Gustafson, a great passer and heady field general; and Bob Reiman, line backing quarterback. In addition to being great football players, men like Gray, Clement and Gustafson and Chaves were also leaders who inspired the rest of the squad to reach beyond their normal ability. Most of the experts didn't take these losses into account.

A second major reason for the decline this fall is that more injuries have hit Oregon State than in any recent year. And to make matters worse, many of the injuries have been to key players. Already lacking in experienced depth, these casualties played ned with the line.

Hal Puddy, 218 pound left tackle, has been a mainstay in the forward wall all season. His playing has been

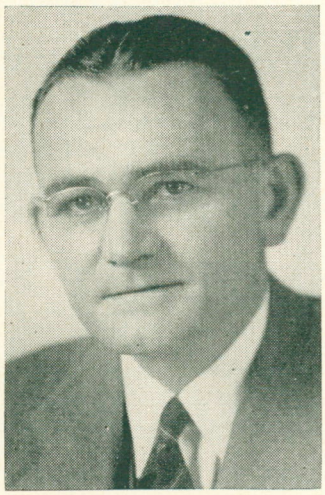
CLIFF CRANDALL, left, and Alex Petersen are the lone returning staters from last year's coast champion basketball team, around which Coach Slats Gill will build his hoop combination for the season already in progress. Crandall, star ballhandler and dribbler for last season's club, was mentioned on most all-coast teams. Petersen started about half of the games last year, alternating with Erland Anderson at forward, and is the tallest letterman now on the squad.

Tragic Death of Three Top State Officials Shocks Citizens of Oregon and Nation

OREGONIANS waited with shocked attention during the last days of October as radios and newspapers reported the crash of a four passenger Beech Bonanza plane which carried Oregon's three top officials, Governor Earl Snell, Secretary of State Robert S. Farrell, and Senate President Marshall Cornett.



Governor John H. Hall

A holiday of duck-hunting was planned by the trio when they flew from Salem to Klamath Falls that fateful Tuesday. They had planned to continue on to the 20,000 acre ranch of Oscar Kittredge which is located about eight miles south of Adel. Poor weather reports, however, stopped them. But after dinner at the Cornett residence in Klamath Falls they decided to make the trip. Lakeview was then reporting a 2000 foot overcast with lower clouds at 1000 feet and intermittent rain. The ceiling was 6500 feet at Klamath Falls with visibility of 30 miles. The party was last seen at that time.

Hall Succeeds to Governorship

Wreckage was sighted Wednesday afternoon by pilots Robert Adams and Wilbur Arnold in the lower Barnes valley between Klamath Falls and Lakeview and tentatively identified as the plane belonging to Cornett, which took off from Klamath Falls about 10 p.m. Tuesday night for the Kittredge ranch.

Rescue parties soon confirmed the death of the three passengers and pilot Cliff Hogue. Arrangements were made to remove the bodies at once.

Speaker of the house of representatives John Hubert Hall, as the result of a constitutional amendment passed in the last general election, November 1946, succeeded Snell to the gubernatorial chair. He took the oath of office Thursday, October 30.

Hall's term is effective until his successor is elected in the 1948 general elections. Whoever is then elected will fill out the unexpired term of Governor Snell, which runs until January 1951.

Snell at the age of 52 had behind him an active political career and one which held many potential possibilities. Born on an eastern Oregon farm near Olex, he entered politics 20 years ago with his election to the state legislature from Arlington where he operated an automobile agency. He served continuously in the lower house from 1927 until 1933 when he was elected speaker.

A "middle-of-the-roader," Snell was a strong drawing card for votes. After being elected twice as secretary of state in 1934 and 1938, he defeated Governor Charles A. Sprague, Salem publisher, for the republican nomination in 1942. He was reelected in 1946.

With very few exceptions Snell's climb in public life was a story of "local boy makes good." He was educated in eastern Oregon's public schools and at the Oregon Institute of Technology in Portland. His first job was in newspaper work. He established the Arlington Independent in Arlington, which was his home until, as secretary of state, he was obliged to move to the state capital.

Released from armed service in 1920 he married Edith Welshons of Condon, Oregon. She and their only child—Dr. William Snell, lieutenant in the naval medical corps stationed at San Diego—survive.

Farrell, Cornett on Upgrade

Farrell, who was 41 the Saturday before the crash, followed much the same political path as Snell. He was elected to the legislature and chosen speaker of the house. He became secretary of state in 1941.

Cornett, a native of Kentucky, entered the senate in 1940 and was reelected in 1944. He then became president of the senate.

Hall served in the house of representatives in 1933, was again elected for the 1939 session and has served in every session since. He was admitted to the Oregon bar in 1926 three years after his graduation from Oregon State college. He has practiced law in Portland since that time except for years during World War I when he served in the navy.

Oregon State Naval R.O.T.C. Offers Scholarships, Careers

91 Now Enrolled With Expenses Paid

THE ranks of Oregon State alumni may someday include Navy admirals and Marine Corps generals. Through the new "Navy Scholarship" program graduates of Oregon State college will start "joining the fleet" as regular officers of the Navy or Marine Corps in June of 1948. These Beaver alumni may pursue service careers on exactly the same basis as graduates of the U. S. Naval Academy at Annapolis.

The new Naval R.O.T.C. at Oregon State is a small organization, largely made up of carefully selected young men who are getting their higher education on a scholarship basis. Each of them receives fifty dollars a month living allowance and has his tuition, normal fees and textbooks paid for by the Navy. He is free to pick any school or course leading to a baccalaureate degree. If he is already in college when he enrolls in the Naval R.O.T.C. as a scholarship student, he will be sent to college for four additional years and may go after a post-graduate degree.

A minor in Naval Science each term, together with the requisite summer cruises, will lead a Navy scholarship student to a regular commission and a lifetime career as an officer. But if the young officer should decide that he is better fitted for civilian life, he may leave the naval service after two years of commissioned service and exploit the professional training of his school and major at Oregon State.

A few undergraduates (20 out of a total of 91 in the Naval R.O.T.C. this year) are "contract students." They are simply young men who wish to take four years of Naval R.O.T.C. and make one summer cruise in order to win reserve commissions. Aside from naval science texts and uniforms, contract students receive no special benefits except for "commuted rations" during their junior and senior years (about $24.00 a month at present rates).

Several of the freshmen who are contract students this year are planning to compete for navy scholarship appointments in order that they may continue their educations at Navy expense and receive regular commissions upon graduation. In such cases, the freshman year of Naval science is credited and only three years under the scholarship plan need be completed in order to earn regular commissions.

Appointments as regular students in the Naval R.O.T.C., which actually amount to four year scholarships, are awarded on the results of a nation wide college aptitude examination and a rigid physical. This year the examination is to be given in 550 cities throughout the United States and the Territories on December 13. Twenty-five hundred young men will be picked and started on their four year scholarships in the fall of 1948. Oregon State College expects a quota of about 50 of these incoming freshmen next year, and 51 other colleges and universities throughout the United States will receive the rest.

Though it is too late to apply for the competitive examination this year, alumni who are interested in guiding deserving young men to Oregon State in 1949 or thereafter may find it profitable to investigate the new Naval R.O.T.C. program. A letter to the professor of Naval science will bring full information on the Navy scholarships and the opportunities they offer.

Keeping You POSTED

By JOHN FENNER

FLASH! All reserved seat tickets for Oregon State football games played on Multnomah Field next year will be sold through the OSC ticket office according to an announcement just released by Spec Keene, athletic director. This will enhance the value of OSC ticket preferences to a considerable degree.

Homecoming was surely fun! If you couldn't make it to this year's Homecoming, plan all the harder to come next year because we've a Homecoming program which will guarantee you a good time. That's a sweeping statement, but we can back it up.

For those who came Friday night, there were house signs, rook bonfire, midnight matinee, and dances to entertain. Starting at 10:30 a.m. Saturday morning, there was registration, and then the highlight of the day—THE ALUMNI BARBECUE. Again we heard extravagant praise of the barbecue. The thousands who attended had fine visiting and tender beef. (Yes, and next year, we'll have salt shakers at strategic locations.) The game was a heartbreaker, but people kept up their spirits exceptionally well. After the game, the JAMBOREE was remarkably well attended. In fact, that 30 Staters Committee went through 70 gallons of coffee and grosses of doughnuts in the first 20 minutes. Another 20 gallons of coffee was rushed to the scene and saved the day. The Alumni Dance was fun and provided a chance to see more of friends.

Religion and football tickets—these are the two subjects most likely to create a chemical transformation and change the most matter-of-fact individual into a crusader. We know whereof we speak.

For some reason, feeling about football tickets reached a new high this fall. Of course, the football ticket department had no more tickets than they have ever had.

LETTERMEN of former years were introduced in traditional manner before the Homecoming game. Hal Mattice, Varsity O man, handles the microphone in this shot.

SIGMA ALPHA EPSILON'S clever house sign was adjudged the men's living group winner. For the girls, Alpha Phi sorority was tops in this department.

HAPPY HOMECOMERS were everywhere—but especially at the noon barbecue where this group was snapped in eating activity. Very noticeable for his 6 foot 7 inches is Ed Lewis, '34, former all-coast basketball player.

Homecoming Well Attended . . . Football Ticket Situation Draws Criticism . . . Preference System Discussed.

Actually, our preference situation is rather complex. Those who join the alumni association principally to exercise their preference to sit on the 50 yard line find themselves "some" distance from that hallowed ground. Why?

Buck-O-Month Comes First

The reason is easy. Because the OSC Buck-O-Month Club members have a higher priority. Why?

Let's start at the beginning.

1. We want to have good teams.
2. To have good material, we must offer athletic scholarships.
3. Scholarships cost money which can only be accrued through donations.
4. Buck-O-Month members donate money for which they receive first preference on tickets.
5. Second place in the preference list goes to alumni association members.

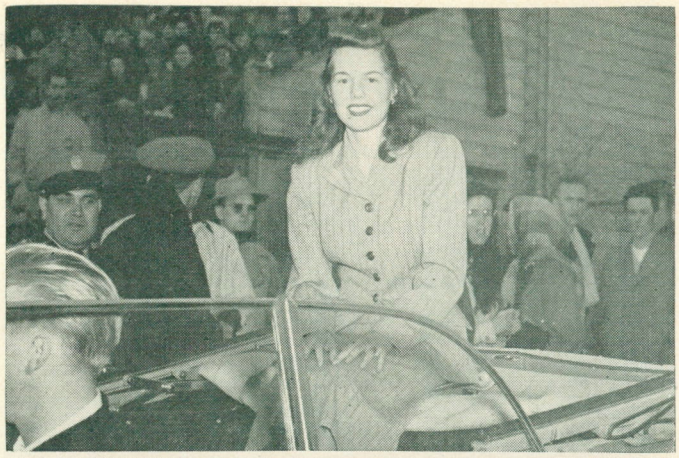
Experience has proved to most people that there are only some 3700 seats in the West stands at Bell Field and they understand why they get less desirable (that's a nice way to put it) seats.

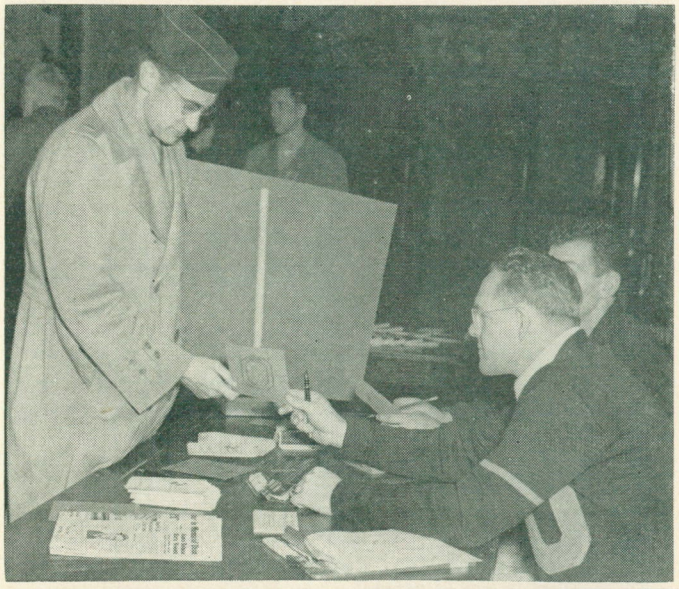
Multnomah Stadium No Better

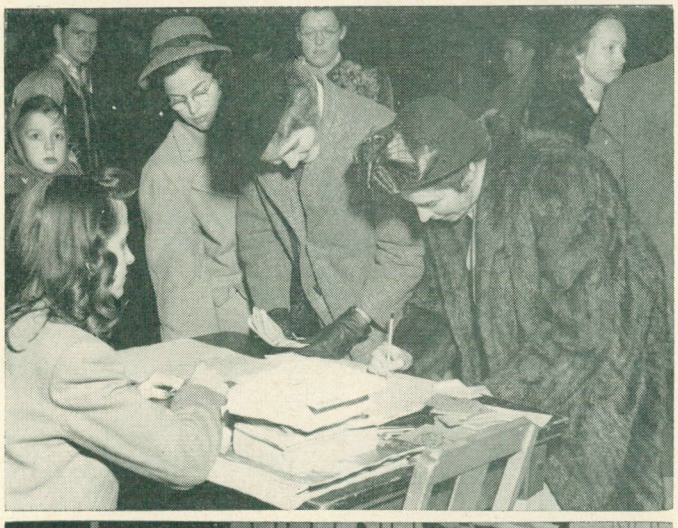
But why, they ask, do they get such undesirable seats at Multnomah Stadium with its large grandstand? Good question. Here's what Spec Keene, athletic director, says about that.

"OSC handled sections 6, 7, 8, 9, 10, 15, 18, 20, 21 and 300 scattered seats in sections 11, 12, 14, and 16. Buck-O-Month members with their No. 1 preference of 4 tickets took almost all the covered seats in sections 6, 7, 8 and 9 on the west side of the field. As far as was possible, the alumni and faculty applications with their No. 2 preference were filled under cover in the remaining sections with the general public applications filled last after October 18, which was the closing preference date. All applications were filled in order of receipt. After the preference closing date, tickets were sold over the counter.

"Why does Multnomah Club get so many choice seats? Some years ago when Multnomah Field was built, Portland firms and individuals donated large sums of money to build the stadium. For this they received ticket preferences. The above program is an outgrowth of this practice.





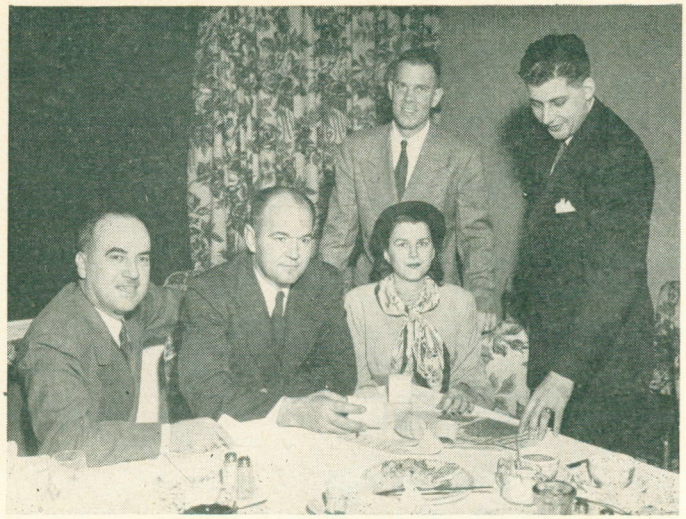


HOMECOMING QUEEN SALLY REYMERS was escorted around Bell Field between halves, via Buick convertible. Queen Sally is scheduled to fly to Hollywood this month to appear on several radio shows.

THE ARMY MAN registering at the Varsity O table is Dr. Bob Fischer, '44, former track star, soon to be stationed as a doctor in Europe. Explaining procedure are Chuck Nordstrom, nearest the camera, and Stan McGuire, both members of Varsity O.

ALUMS EVEN REGISTERED at the desk in the armory during the barbecue and jamboree, as shown in the picture next to the bottom.

ROOK AND ROOKESS COUNSELORS supervised most of the Homecoming registration in the M. U. though. Here Shirley Rowell, one of the counselors, is shown keeping the spirit high as well as providing information.



REVIEWING the alumni association membership campaign which was terminated at the Homecoming are Association President Claude Palmer, Football Coach Lon Stiner, Elaine Sewell, and Manager John Fenner and Bob Hirstel, standing. Both Mrs. Sewell and Hirstel are Multnomah county alumni association representatives.

Directors Discuss Foundation, Chapel

Reports on the Oregon State College Foundation, the membership campaign and other association activities highlighted the Homecoming meeting of the alumni board of directors Saturday morning, November 15.

Among directors attending were Joe Jarvis, who came all the way from Omaha, and G. A. "Gap" Powell, who stepped up from Long Beach, Cal., for the Homecoming celebration.

Foundation Now in Legal Position

President A. L. Strand announced that although some details are now being completed, the OSC Foundation is legally in a position to receive gifts to the college. More details will be forthcoming as they are determined by the Foundation board of directors, he said. In the mean time, any alumni or friends of Oregon State desiring specific information about the Foundation may write to President Strand or to the OSC alumni office. At a later date, printed detailed information concerning the Foundation will be distributed.

A group of friends of the late Wilbur Carl have sent in gifts to be incorporated into a Wilbur Carl Memorial to be administered by the Foundation.

A firm, which wishes to remain unknown, has just made a $2,500 gift to the Foundation, which gift was arranged by a very loyal member of the OSC Dads Club.

Dr. Strand also mentioned the appointment of Dr. Frank R. Zeran as associate dean of the school of education at Oregon State. Spec Keene, athletic director, and President Strand then teamed up to inform the board about the new basketball pavilion. Most important facts are that it will seat over 10,000 people and is timed to be ready for the 1948-49 basketball season.

Palmer Congratulates Homecoming Laborers, Announces Committees

Congratulations to the people of Oregon State and Corvallis. The 1947 Homecoming was heartwarming and complete.

Students, faculty, Corvallis alumni—all of you deserve credit for the thought, time, effort and money you expended to stage this annual spectacle.

From the unique, and in many cases, elaborate house decorations through the barbecue, jamboree, dance and concert, the weekend was highly successful in making us all feel at home and glad we came.

The list of alumni association standing committees for 1947-48 is here published for the first time. Additional names and perhaps new committees will be added from time to time. Working with the association directors, these alumni will provide the leadership of various alumni activities.

Please give them your ideas and your support in making this the biggest year of accomplishment in our association history.

From

OREGON STATE'S CAMPUS . . .

By John C. Burtner

President Strand, F. L. Ballard Honored with High Positions . . . Details of Zeran Appointment Disclosed . . . Unusual Adjustment Made in Vet Enrollment.

HIGH positions in the Association of Land Grant Colleges and Universities were given to President A. L. Strand and F. L. Ballard, associate director of extension, at the recent meeting held in Washington, D. C. President Strand was elected to a three-year term on the executive committee, while Director Ballard was named to a four-year term on the committee on extension organization and policy.

This organization is probably the most powerful association in this country having to do with higher education. It takes in all institutions that are the official state land grant colleges or universities, whether these are separate as in Oregon and Iowa or combined as in California and Wisconsin. A permanent office with an executive secretary is maintained in Washington, where constant contact is kept with congress and other governmental bureaus. The widespread activities of the extension service, experiment stations and related responsibilities of these colleges make them a national force reaching directly into every county and community in the country.

Education School Status Remains Unchanged

Announcement on another page of the appointment of Dr. Franklin R. Zeran as associate dean of the school of education will indicate to readers of this page that the long drawn out uncertainty concerning the future of that school is now ended. The matter was settled at the recent meeting of the state board of higher education.

An executive session of the board was held to consider the proposals which never had been placed before the board publicly but which, as discussed at several campus meetings, involved changing the school of education here to a department. President Strand attended this executive session with board members and central office officials.

At the regular open meeting of the board the next day, Chancellor Packer read a brief statement announcing that the board had decided to maintain the school of education as at present, with the head of the school at O.S.C. to be designated associate dean. Many of you will recall that under the unification plan adopted in 1932, degree granting schools were continued on both campuses, with the one at Eugene stressing administrative work, and the one at Corvallis counselling and guidance.

State Board Members Eagerly Await Pavilion

Head of the combined high school teacher training program was Dean J. R. Jewell, formerly dean here but then moved to Eugene where he served until his retirement last July. Head of the school here was C. W. Salser, assistant dean, who also retired last July. The new dean and director at the university is Dr. Paul B. Jacobson. He was speaker at a luncheon meeting of the O.S.C. faculty Triad club in November.

Members of the state board seemed to be as happy as the college representatives over the prospects of finally getting a pavilion built here for basketball and assembly purposes. They examined the preliminary plans closely, made a few suggestions, and then approved them with orders to proceed with final plans just as rapidly as possible.

Between Meetings Consideration Arranged

It is rather unlikely that they will be ready for final consideration at the December meeting, but arrangements have been made for the building committee to consider them between meetings if necessary, thus permitting going ahead with advertisements for bids. The architects believe bids early in the year will be within the estimated total cost of about $1,500,000. The contractor who is doing such a rapid job on the huge dormitory for women is interested in getting the new contract, as he would have his whole crew and management setup here ready to go ahead with the pavilion with no preliminary delay. The goal is completion by January 1949. Some think it can't be done, but everyone is "pushing and hoping."

Maybe some of you saw some press references to a "controversy" here involving a text book in economics that was objected to by an outfit calling itself the "National Economic Council." The head of this group wrote to President Strand practically demanding that the book be not used since it discussed theories deemed "unAmerican" by the council.

President Strand doesn't take kindly to such attempted interference or coercion from any group, and proceeded to say as much in a sharply worded letter that must have jarred the recipient. Thereupon the council attempted to get even—or maybe get Dr. Strand—by sending copies of his letter and of its review of the book to all board members and newspapers in this state.

OSC Not in Much "Danger"

The Barometer made quite a one-day sensation of the affair, stoutly defending President Strand, but the council attack fell flat. Since the book is used at a dozen leading institutions, including even the U. S. Coast Guard academy, no one could get much excited about the "danger" to O.S.C.

The discussion of registration on this page last month turned out to be slightly in error as to veteran enrollment. We now are down only 200 in vet totals compared with last year instead of 500 previously reported. It is peculiar how the discrepancy happened without any real error.

From Oregon State's Campus

A year ago the registrar's office took personal statements as to vet status when necessary, as the program was just getting started. This year a vet had to have his certificate of eligibility to avoid paying cash for his entrance fees, but could get a refund after the certificate came if he had paid. Well, after the first month's checks came in about 300 more certificates turned up and were presented for refunds. With the adjustment the total is now 4169 compared with 4364 last year at this time.

President Marks Passes

Just as this issue is going to press word has come of the sudden death in Albany of Willard L. Marks, for 14 years president of the state board of higher education. There is not space in this issue to give proper recognition of his long and important contribution to higher education in Oregon, but that will be done in the January number.

Mr. Marks had been in rather poor health for several years but only once or twice did he let personal considerations interfere with his duties on the board. He suffered a severe stroke Thursday, November 13, and died Monday, November 17. Funeral services were at Albany the following Friday.

Beaver Sports Roundup

consistently good. Evensen and Austin have been out so much with injuries that they haven't had a chance to come up to their performances of last fall. Bob Grove has done a good job of filling in for Lorenz, who has seen practically no action since the Washington game.

Mast Presents Top Receiving Mark

In the backfield Ken Carpenter has been a standout all fall. He has made a number of beautiful runbacks of punts and kickoffs as well as completed a good percentage of passes and piled up plenty of yardage running the ball. Right half Don Samuel has one of the best passing marks on the coast, but his offensive value has been partially offset by his poor defensive play at times, especially on pass defense. Duane Moore, a sophomore from Astoria, has ousted Dick Twenge from the starting fullback job and has looked good. Quarterback Don Mast has the top pass receiving mark on the coast as this is written.

Beaver fans can gain some solace from the fact that the Rooks whipped the Oregon Frosh twice this year, 27-19 and 12-0, and have some very likely looking varsity material on their squad. Such first year men as Arvid Niemi, big and rugged tackle; Don Nibblett, pass snagging end; Allen Gray—brother of Bill—and Don Sandvig, centers; Duke Byers, right half; Walt Kelly, left half and a nifty passer; and hard running Ron Barrett, fullback, are likely to be heard from on the varsity in the future. There are others, too.

Homecoming Registration 1947

Isolated sheets removed from the official OSC alumni registration book may still be floating between the Memorial Union and the armory on this campus. But any way in which one views the "Fun, Friends, Football" Homecoming celebration November 15, it seems evident that most all alums who were able to attend also managed to write, print or X their names somewhere.

This year's Homecoming registration attracted a few less Staters than the 1946 "Reunion After Tokyo," but those who returned for the annual mass get-together found no reduction in the quality of the entertainment, food, drink, and fellowship.

From the time the first wave of returning Beavers hit town Friday night until most left Saturday night or Sunday, the Oregon State campus resembled downtown Chicago at noon. The armory was packed during both the noon barbecue and the alumni jamboree, which have become traditional Homecoming events.

But, as always, highlight of the day was the meeting of old classmates and friends. For those who couldn't make it to Corvallis to review old times in person, the reading of the names of those who did arrive may strike the lost chord. A few maiden names were missing on our registration sheets, but as one spry young alum aptly said, "It's been so long ago I don't remember who I was." We hope you will excuse translation and deciphering errors in the following:

Did You Know?

By Marilyn Hill

Freshman girls living in Madison hall moved out last month into the other women's dorms, and men from Adair Village are now claiming Madison for their residence. The newly-settled men gave a donut and cider open house for the ex-Madison girls, who had wept so bitterly at moving time.

Morris Plans New Radio Series

A new series of Campus Headlines broadcasts has been planned for the 1947-48 season by James M. Morris, KOAC program manager. The series will portray life on the campuses of Oregon State and the University of Oregon. The programs will be released over commercial radio stations KUGN, Eugene, and KOAC, Corvallis, on Tuesdays from 9 to 9:30 p.m. Transcribed broadcasts may be heard over KEX, Portland, each Saturday night from 6:30 to 7.

"Miss Oregon" to OSC

Jo Ann Amorde, Oregon's representative in the recent "Miss America" contest, will register at Oregon State in January. She will complete her major in history, using the $1000 scholarship award she earned at the Atlantic City pageant.

Play School Opens at Adair

Little Beaver play school at Adair Village opened November 15 with over sixty children in attendance. Fathers organized to build swings, slides, sand boxes, and other necessary equipment for the school. The Corvallis Kiwanis club donated a load of toys and children's books.

409 Education Graduates Placed

The school of education placed 409 teachers in the placement season that has just closed. The largest number received positions on the west coast. In Oregon 215 teachers were placed in senior high schools, junior high schools and grade schools, and 16 in college positions. Many more calls for teachers were received than the school was able to fill.

Dr. Thurman Speaks Here

Eleven speakers, each representing a different denomination, were presented for Religious Emphasis Week, November 2 to 5. Dr. Howard K. Thurman from the People's Church in San Francisco spoke on "Quest for Fulfillment" at a convocation.

Drive Collects $5000

"Once and for all," the campus chest drive which combined the march for dimes, community chest, cancer fund, and the world service fund, collected over $5000. Faculty members were auctioned off to the highest bidders and worked for the living organizations which won their services. A special publicity event was the landing of the Journal helicopter in the middle of the quad.

Directors Hear Reports

Approximately 250 new members was the goal reached in this year's alumni association membership drive. Co-chairmen for the drive were Irene Brye Carl and Ursel Narver.

Chairmen Appreciate Cooperation

Speaking on behalf of the co-chairmen, Irene Carl said, "We certainly appreciate the work done on this drive by the county chairmen and their committees. There's a real sense of satisfaction which can be achieved when one realizes that helping to build a strong alumni association is truly helping to build a stronger Oregon State."

About 200 Oregon Staters gathered to hear Lon Stiner, Spec Keene and John Fenner at the alumni meeting held in Pasadena October 17, reported "Gap" Powell, board member from Southern California. Highlighting the program was the showing of the 1946 OSC-USC football movies.

An interim report on the status of planning for the Memorial Chapel was made by J. H. Gallagher, Sr., who also presented Joanne Lindberg, student member of the chapel committee. Joanne discussed student feeling about the chapel and reported that she felt that the students recognized that there is a definite place for the chapel on the Oregon State campus.

WAGNER'S

"Intellectual improvement arises from leisure"—SAMUEL JOHNSON

Why housekeeping gets "lighter" all the time

"...Woman's work is never done."

True enough. But today's homemaker—aided by her modern refrigerator, range, water heater, vacuum cleaner and other appliances finds more time for family and for leisure.

And what helps these "automatic servants" operate so dependably? Better materials for one thing.

Materials on the inside—the unseen working parts of household standbys. Such as alloy steels, new plastics, carbon brushes in motors... lighter, more compact materials that make appliances stand up longer and handle with ease.

Materials, too, that you can see... as those stainless steel surfaces so easy to clean. Or the chemicals in more enduring waxes and polishes, varnishes and plastic finishes.

Yes, today's housewife enjoys new leisure, new freedom from drudgery... thanks to better materials.

Producing these better materials and many others—for the use of science and industry and the benefit of mankind —is the work of the people of UNION CARBIDE.
