As We Go to Press

THE beauty of nature combined with the work of man makes the study of the northeast entrance to the campus, the cover design of this issue, one of rare charm. Today an artist would be unable to produce the scene, as careless motorists have demolished the two entrance pillars, leaving only one of the three which made up the gift to the college by the class of 1917. Replacement of the pillars would restore one of the traditional beauty spots to the campus.

Coach Schissler and his squad left Wednesday, October 1, for Los Angeles where the first conference game against the powerful U. S. C. Trojans will be played Saturday. The Gonzaga Bull Dogs offered stubborn competition in the second and final pre-season battle Saturday night, September 27. The Beavers emerged victorious, 16-6, after trailing 6-2 at half time.

A week earlier the Beavers initiated night intercollegiate football on the coast, defeating Willamette university 48-0. Six days later, September 26, Oregon downed the Willamette squad 51-0, indicating that the two ancient rivals are, at this stage, of comparatively equal strength. Record crowds at both pre-season games testify to the success of football under the flood-lights.

Orientation of one of the largest freshman classes in the history of the college was completed September 27, following a week filled with varied activities. For the first time the reception by President and Mrs. W. J. Kerr honoring the freshmen was held in the Memorial Union main lounge. The second annual Freshman mix was held this year in the armory. Pictures of every member of the class were taken and will become a part of the permanent records.

General registration was begun Saturday, September 27. "With registration incomplete my predictions of a normal college enrollment apparently will be realized," said E. B. Lemon, registrar, relative to attendance this year.

The glow of the new campus lights, flashed on for the first time during freshman week, warmed the welcome of returning students. Mounted on tall, stately pillars, they will add much to the nocturnal beauty and safety of the campus. The lights surround the west quadrangle and are the first in the project for a complete campus lighting program.

KING FOOTBALL RESUMES REIGN

By Art Taaffe

ALTHOUGH any prediction as to the outcome of the Orange team on the gridiron this season cannot be made at this time nevertheless the situation on the whole looks promising and every Orangeman is looking forward to a much better season than Coach Schissler's men experienced last year. Coach Schissler himself, who, as a rule, has very little to say regarding the possible outcome of his charges, confides he is looking forward to a good season but he qualifies his statement by adding, "that is if a few of the sophomores and un-tried varsity reserves I am banking on come through as I expect."

One thing is sure and that is the Orangemen are bucking up against a real tough schedule this year. In fact, the toughest teams in the conference will be faced before the season comes to a close. Southern California which will be played at Los Angeles October 4 is generally conceded as having the strongest team in the conference this year. The Orangemen and the Trojans have always put up a great battle and this year's game will be no exception.

Even though the Trojans have lost some of the greatest football players in the country among them being Francis Tappan, who was all-American end last year, Russell Saunders, Harry Edelson, Frank Anthony and Clark Galloway, the Trojan lineup will again be graced with such stars as Marshall Duffield, quarterback; Ernie Pinckert, right half; Jimmy Music, fullback; Garrett Arbelbide, right end; Don Moses, fullback; and Marget Aspit, left half. These are just a few of the outstanding lettermen who are in the Trojan lineup this year.

A young prospect from last year's freshman squad by the name of Orville Mochler is reported as being one of the best quarterbacks to be seen in Los Angeles for some time and room will have to be made for him somewhere in the lineup.

With this array of material Southern California should have another whale of a team this year and the Orangemen will have a big job on their hands to overcome them.

The week after the Southern California game the Orangemen have what some people call a breathing spell when they meet California Aggies in Corvallis in a night game October 10. But this so-called breathing spell has proved in the last few years to be more in the class of a real tough battle.

Coach P. J. Schissler who this year enters his seventh season as varsity coach.

The California Aggies under the leadership of "Crip" Toomey, ex-California star, have always been primed to knock over the Orangemen. The game this year will be another battle.

After the California Aggie game the Orangemen take another trip to California where they meet Stanford at Palo Alto October 18. As many of the Orange followers remember, Pop Warner's Cardinals proved to be a real tough outfit last year. This year the Cardinals are expected to be even stronger.

Pacific university now coached by Eldon Jenne of Washington high school of Portland fame, will meet the Orangemen in a night game in Corvallis on October 25. Eldon Jenne established a wonderful reputation while coaching the prepers in Portland and is expected to turn out a strong team at Pacific this season.

ELABORATE PREPARATIONS HERALD HOMECOMING

THINK of a ten letter word that signifies the culmination of dreams, weeks of planning, a trip by road or rail, meeting and mingling with friends, hoarse cheering as teams line up to do battle, sleeping double in one man bunks (or not sleeping at all), thrills and heart-throbs. Correct. The word is Homecoming. Nowhere between the two covers of Webster could be found so small a word with such a prodigious meaning.

A tribe of Hindu magicians could not conjure up a setting more thrilling than that around which the Homecoming for this year will be staged. The traditional clash with the Lemon-Yellow is, in itself, sufficient impetus to cause Tom, Dick and Harry to pack his bag, turn the key and hop a rattler for Corvallis. But, important as it is, the annual classic is but one of the numerous super-attractions being planned for this year. The stage is set for the greatest Homecoming of all time.

Committees began working early in the fall, some long before the season for vacations and sun-burn was passed, and many of the features of the festivities are well along toward completion. Student chairman, Edward Efteland, is toiling night and day to see that nothing is left undone in the way of campus decorations, athletic events and other items which go to make the week-end complete.

One of the outstanding features this year will be midnight matinees in the two Corvallis theaters. Bob Chrisman, '14, is in charge, and assisted by the Varsity "O," is seeing to it that they will not be "pink tea" affairs. Among the many features already planned are vaudeville acts, mass singing of song favorites, yells, the campus quartet and first-run feature pictures. There will be a master of ceremonies whose chief duty will be to see that things are happening every minute.

"There will not be a dull moment in either theater," said Chrisman. "Tell the alumni that they are going to be entertained in "big time" style and that nothing but the best of talent will be engaged for the evening. We expect packed houses at both theaters and are going to see that every person gets more than his money's worth."

The Homecoming banquet following the game Saturday will in itself be worth the trip. Chuck Stidd has carried his plans a long way toward completion. Information on this event is given elsewhere in this issue. Suffice it to say that the banquet will be more than a meal and a speech. It will be a three ring circus, with side-show thrown in, all for the price of the main attraction.

The campus will begin to take on its holiday atmosphere Thursday evening, November 13, when fraternities, sororities and halls will hold a number of dances and collegiate "heaps" will begin meeting all trains to unload the first contingent of old-timers. Registration of alumni will begin in the alumni office at the Memorial Union building Friday morning.

Friday evening will see the beginning of activities on a grand scale, to slacken only after the wax is gone from the ball room floor Saturday night. With the coming of darkness house signs will be illuminated, flashing forth greetings to alumni, and making grotesque predictions of the impending battle.

Next will follow the noise parade with the social groups vying for the distinction of producing the most deafening sounds on implements and devices of their own design. Then will follow the rally and Rook bonfire, a meeting of the newly organized Orange council at which Bob Chrisman will preside, and the midnight matinees. It might be said that this year's class of Rooks appear to have the stuff and the bonfire captain has sworn to break all previous records for speed and proportions.

Alumni registration will continue Saturday morning and a varied program of men's and women's athletic events will round out the morning, with the Rook-Soph Olympics as the main attraction.

Before the game members of the Varsity "O" will march around the field and assemble on the specially prepared section. Shortly thereafter the doors of the gymnasium will fly open and on the field will swarm two mighty armies, the whistle will blow, and history will be in the making. Oregon and Oregon State will once again face each other on the field of battle.

History's Pages ARE TURNED BACK

THE pages of history were turned back 50 years to a scene in Philomath College chapel when, on the evening of September 5, Dr. and Mrs. J. B. Horner replighted their troth in the presence of an assemblage of 900 friends gathered from all sections of the Pacific Northwest to witness the ceremony.

The Main Lounge room of the beautiful Memorial Union building served as the setting for the wedding. The tall Gothic windows framed by heavily hung drapes formed the background for the scene. Guests were seated around the lounge facing the altar and aisle in the center of the room, and the balconies were also filled to overflowing.

The aisle, which led from the main concourse of the building directly to the raised altar, was bordered by low palm shrubs placed alternately with candelabras of wrought iron and increasing in height and size as they neared the altar. The pathway for the procession was beautifully carpeted with Oriental rugs.

At either side of the altar steps were tall candelabras, each bearing seven flickering ivory tapers. Further to the side on high standards were French bouquets with shades of red gladiolus predominating and contrasted by Michaelmas daisies and delphiniums. The entire altar was banked with palm shrubs graduated to a noticeable height in the center back.

Gold tapers on a high standard lighted the altar and the background, which was set off with richly carved and handsomely mounted wrought iron grills. The whole expressed a sentiment of simplicity and dignity with color found only in the two large floral arrangements and the tapers. The beauty of the Memorial Union lounge needed little to supplement it.

The confirmation ceremony began with an ode sung by Mrs. J. Lee Paget, accompanied by Miss Alicia McElroy. The "bride and groom" then marched up the aisle to the altar to the strains of Lohengrins Wedding March played by Byron Arnold of the music department. Beside Dr. Horner, as best man, stood Dr. Carl Doney, president of Willamette university. The bride was given in re-marriage by Hon. Judge J. K. Weatherford. Dr. D. V. Poling performed the ceremony assisted by Reverend Burnes.

Maids of honor were Miss Gertrude Nolan, Miss Eva Corrie, Miss Ada Foster and Miss Gertrude Strickland. Matrons of honor were Mrs. Ruth Tartar, Mrs. Jack Porter, Mrs. Earl Lee and Mrs. E. C. Allworth. The little Misses Catherine Fisher, Jane Woodcock and Jane Keeney acted as flower girls and Tommy Nelson was ring bearer. Ribbon bearers were Frances Jensen, Lettie Warrington, Leona Hansen and Lucille Maris. The ring used in the ceremony was the wedding ring of Mrs. Horner's mother, made from gold mined in California in 1853 by her father.

Dr. Horner, son of the late Rev. E. R. Horner, pioneer circuit rider, came from his native state, Texas, through Nevada, California and eastern Oregon by pack train before the trail was open for wagons, arriving in Walla Walla, Wash., in May, 1862. He is one of the two oldest living graduates of Whitman college, the other being William S. Clark of Walla Walla who attended the golden jubilee ceremony.

Mrs. Horner, a daughter of pioneers, received her education in Philomath college and Willamette university. She taught school with Dr. Horner for several years and later became matron of Waldo, Alpha and Cauthorn halls at Oregon State college.

Dr. Horner is entering on his fortieth year of association with the college in the capacity of head of the history department and curator of the museum, over which he has been the guiding factor and which has brought great credit upon the college and himself. He is considered the outstanding authority in the state on Oregon history and prehistoric research and is the author of several books dealing with the history, literature and lore of the state.

In his own inimitable way, following the ceremony, Dr. Horner took occasion to address the group, moralizing on evils of companionate marriage and praising the old fashioned wedlock system of "our ancestors." Parts of his message are repeated here:

"This event recalls that on account of my youth a fine Scotch-Irish gentleman once opposed my election as teacher in his community. I obtained the school, however, and later punished him by marrying his daughter. . . . Upon meeting Rev. I. D. Driver, a well known Methodist minister, who had been married five times, I asked him on what principle he usually selected his wives. He said he always married a school ma'am in order that his children might be in school 24 hours every day in the year.

"The idea appealed to me, so I struck out for the Skipton farm, two miles south of Philomath, for a wife. . . . Her father apparently did not want to commit himself but after some hesitation he cleared his throat and said, 'Well, I always thought that if a girl wasn't doing too bad the parents ought not to interfere.'

"When our ship came into port on the occasion of our Silver Jubilee, friends gathered at Alpha hall on the campus to celebrate the event with us. After another 25 years some of the same group with other friends have come to felicitate with us in the classic halls of Memorial Union building, upon the safe arrival of our ship in port at our Golden Jubilee.

"These things give me an opportunity to observe that, after 50 years of married life, I heartily endorse the system approved by our ancestors who looked upon marriage as a life contract—a sacrament enjoined under a holy ordinance and who would have frowned upon a trivial martial alliance or companionate marriage as exceedingly dangerous to good society.

"There is something sacred and beautiful in accepting for life the hand and heart of a noble woman who trusts all to one who she believes has a strong arm and a great heart; and there is something chivalrous, something sublime, in proving worthy of this constant faith and confiding love unto the end.

"With full faith, therefore, in the wisdom of our fathers, with grateful appreciation of our friends and with the hope of a prosperous, happy voyage, our bark sets sail this day for the next port—our Diamond Jubilee."

Following the ceremony all guests were served with dainty refreshments consisting of small golden cakes and ice cream specially prepared for the occasion. Mrs. W. A. Jensen was in charge of refreshments, assisted by Mrs. W. J. Gilmore, Mrs. J. Leo Fairbanks, Mrs. Lorna C. Jessup, Mrs. W. L. Kadderly, Mrs. E. V. Vaughn, Mrs. Jessamine Williams, Mrs. Captain M. E. Scott. Maids and matrons of honor, assisted by a number of high school girls served.

Ices were cut by the following: Mrs. W. J. Kerr, Mrs. J. K. Weatherford, Mrs. U. G. Dubach, Mrs. H. S. Roberts, Mrs. C. H. Lee, Mrs. C. T. McDevitt, Mrs. Paul V. Maris, Mrs. Genevieve Baum Gaskins, Mrs. D. V. Poling, Mrs. Monroe G. Everett, Mrs. J. H. Hance, Dean Kate W. Jameson, Mrs. J. F. Brumbaugh, Mrs. E. C. Gilbert, Mrs. G. W. Peavy, Mrs. B. W. Johnson, Mrs. G. A. Covell, and Mrs. E. H. Taylor.

Numbered among the hundreds of guests who paid tribute to Dr. and Mrs. Horner were many personages of state-wide prominence, many of whom attended the Silver Jubilee in Corvallis in 1905 and a few who were present 50 years ago when the first ceremony was per-

A HIGH SPOT IN HOMECOMING

Food, Fun and Foolishness Fill Banquet Program

THE high spot of Homecoming this year will be the banquet in the ball room of the Memorial Union building following the Oregon-Oregon State game if Chairman Chuck Stidd, '17, and his state-wide committee of co-workers succeed in carrying out their many carefully laid plans.

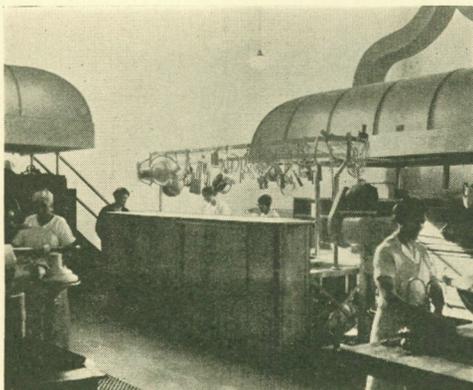

Chuck has appealed for and received assurance from Ed Allworth that the Union structure will stand the strain and that the committee will not be held responsible if the walls collapse or the roof flies skyward. One member of the banquet committee has been delegated to the arduous task of securing the biggest coffee urn on the coast to insure every one a big cup of hot Java, and the only instructions to the food committee are "fill them up."

The "Coffee Dan" idea will be carried out in the entertainment features, with a piano player, song pluggers, entertainers and special stunts making up the program. Everyone will be provided with a wooden hammer to be used for beating time, registering disapproval or applauding. There will be no formal speech making but any one present will be subject to the "spotlight" at the will of the master of ceremonies. Adequate means will be provided for ejecting any person who shows the slightest trace of seriousness.

As to the entertainment features—one guess is as good as another, but every guess will be correct if it predicts a rousing, hilarious evening, the like of which has never before been staged on the campus. The tables will be arranged to allow for a dance floor in the center of the room and everyone will be privileged to indulge in the light fantastic whenever the spirit moves. Following the dinner and its immediate program the floor will be cleared for dancing.

Reservations for the banquet should be made at an early date in the opinion of the committee for the "full-car" sign is expected to go up long before Homecoming week-end arrives. Presidents of Oregon State clubs in every city where clubs are organized will be in charge of reservations in their cities. Should any alum be so unfortunate as not to be near a club, tickets may be obtained or reservations made by writing to A. L. McMillan, chairman of reservations, Memorial Union building, Corvallis, and remitting $1.50 for each place.

Ten committees have been announced by Chairman Stidd and the various members have been assigned their duties. With committees functioning earlier than

Some Names To Remember

TO the class of 1934 the Oregon State Monthly extends greetings. You have just passed through one of the most important weeks in your lives, a week of orientation in the habits and ways of the college of your choice. You have met and shaken hands with hundreds of new friends and are no doubt mightily confused in your effort to remember all the new faces and names.

The Monthly hopes to be of assistance to you in your effort to become acquainted, and is here presenting the names and some of the faces of students you will want to know—leaders in campus activities and holders of prominent elective and appointive positions.

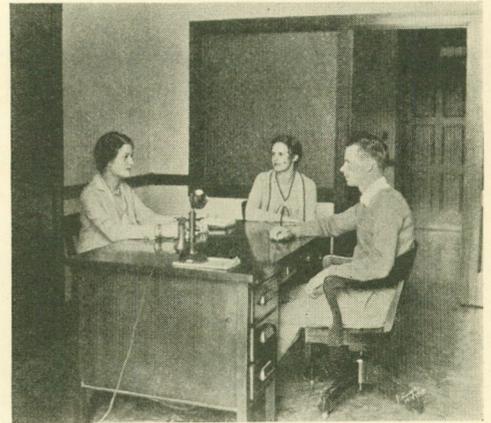

George Knutsen, pictured in the frontispiece of this issue, is president of the student body, an elective position filled each year by a senior. Knutsen gained prominence on the campus in forensics and is a member of several honor societies.

The highest student body office for women was won by Hester Davis, senior in home economics, who is secretary of the student body. Three vice-presidents are selected each year in the student elections. These offices are held by Ernest Woods, junior in mechanical engineering, first vice-president; and Margaret Metcalf, junior in vocational education, and Mark Briggs, sophomore in commerce, second and third vice-presidents.

Larry Warren, senior in commerce, is editor of the Barometer, the first to be named under the new plan of appointment by a board of selection instead of by student body election. Elected to the position of editor of the Beaver, college annual, is Charles Mack, senior in commerce. Walter Mackey, senior in commerce, is manager of the book, an appointive position. Porter Loomis is manager of the student directory, also an appointive office.

Other students who have climbed to positions of prominence include Betty Robley, senior in home economics, president of Associated Women Students; Billy Cupper, junior in home economics, vice-president; and Elizabeth Fletcher, sophomore in home economics, secretary.

Presidents of the three upper classes, elected last spring for the coming year, are Sinclair Hammond, senior class; Bert Taylor, junior class; and George Hanselman, sophomore class. Walter Stokesbary, senior in engineering, is chairman of the honor council, and Bob Christiansen, senior in civil engineering, is yell leader.

Twenty-six Complete Degree Work This Summer

DIPLOMAS were awarded to 26 students at the close of the 1930 Summer Session, bringing the total of graduates for the year to 512, and the grand total of those who have received degrees to 7255. Eight schools were represented in the list of graduates, who hail from cities in Oregon, California, Washington, and Idaho.

Those who completed their courses at the close of the summer session, listed by schools, were as follows: Agriculture—Chester E. Corry, Portland. Commerce—Thomas Francis Adams, Portland; Vesta Bernice Beckley, Roseburg; Donald Adair Heinz, Multnomah; Millard Small Koogle, Corvallis; John Paul McDowell, Philomath; Delbert Shelby Scott, Ontario.

Electrical Engineering—Frederick Leon Ackerman, Portland; Edgar Bader, Portland. Mechanical Engineering—Edgar Allen Wolfe, Antelope. Technical Forestry—James C. Iler, Toledo. Home Economics—Beatrice Helen Angus, Hood River; Janis Anne Belknap, Ontario; Lillian Isabel Goodwin, Boise, Idaho; Margaret Millicent Jenkinson, Hanford, California; Francisca Dorothea Luck, Salinas, California; Rebecca Marie Olson, Turlock, California.

Mining Engineering—Earl E. Barnwell, LaGrande; Alton Edward Klitz, Boardman. Vocational Education—Harold Wilson Bump, Airlie; Leland Brantley Cameron, Corvallis; Dorothy Laura Hall, Portland; Esther Anne Moser, Sherwood, Washington; William Odell Showalter, McMinnville; Lalla Prudence Sonner, Payette, Idaho; Carlton Eugene Wood, Madera, California.

STATE BOARD NAMES DR. LINDSAY SECRETARY

APPPOINTMENT of Dr. E. E. Lindsay, formerly of Pittsburgh, Pa., to the important position of executive secretary of the newly formed Oregon State board of higher education was announced this summer by the board. Following long and careful consideration of the peculiar nature of the work, Dr. Lindsay was chosen as the man most admirably qualified for the task of guiding the destinies of the board in its important function of fostering the growth of the institutions of the state.

Dr. Lindsay comes to Oregon already highly familiar with the educational problems of the state. He has been engaged as the technical advisor for the commission headed by Dr. Arthur Jay Klein, which has been making a most extensive study of higher education in the state. He also served as a member of the summer school faculty at the University of Oregon.

In collaboration with President Holland of Washington State college. Dr. Lindsay is author of the book, "College and University Administration." His research and study at the Washington institution which enabled him to prepare the book was carried on during his six years as statistician and assistant to the president of the college. His contacts during that time acquainted him thoroughly with the problems peculiar to the land grant college.

Dr. Lindsay received his bachelor's degree from Coe college and his master's and doctor's degrees from the University of Iowa. At the University of Pittsburgh, from which place he came to his present office, he was head of the department of educational administration.

With a background of experience covering research in both colleges and universities, and with an intricate knowledge of the state of Oregon and its educational problems, Dr. Lindsay is considered unusually well qualified to serve as adviser to the board of higher education in its stupendous task of making the course of higher education flow smoothly.

Oregon Staters Prominent In Legion Affairs

PROMINENT among the officers selected by the American Legion of Oregon at its annual convention in Baker this summer were the names of several Oregon State alumni. One department vice-commander and two district commanders named at the convention were former O. S. C. students.

J. C. Moreland, '16 ME, was chosen department vice-commander, second highest Legion office in the state. In the election of district commanders, of which there are three in the state, two Oregon State men were victorious. Jack Eakin, '19 P, was named commander of district number one, and Hugh Brady, '09, received the same honor in district number two.

Distinction of a different sort was received by Chuck Whittemore, '25 A, who as major of the grand prize winning drum corps of Capital post, Salem, was awarded the drum major cup for his outstanding performance in directing his corps.

Not to be outdone by the men, Dorothy C. Eakin, formerly Dorothy Ellen Childs, '19 HE, carried home honors for herself by being named committeewoman of district number one of the American Legion Auxiliary. She was also selected as a delegate to attend the national convention in Boston in October.

MEET THE MONTHLY STAFF

ENTERING upon its tenth year as a monthly publication for the alumni of Oregon State, the Oregon State Monthly has come to be recognized as the most important connecting link between the college, the student and the alumni. Until April 1929 the publication was known as the O. A. C. Alumnus, but in accord with the state-wide acceptance of the name, Oregon State College, the monthly was re-christened.

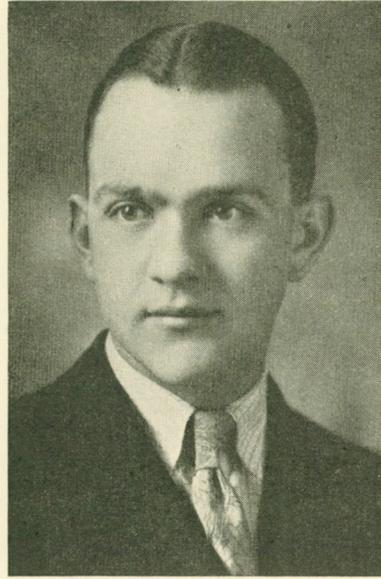

One year following the change of name, the monthly made another important change. A new cover design, thoroughly modern and illustrated with color prints of familiar campus scenes, made its appearance, and the entire interior was changed to conform to the newest ideas in typography.

The school year 1930-31 finds a new editor at the helm, Loring G. Hudson, former chief, having resigned to accept a teaching position in Honolulu. A. L. McMillan, '27 C, has been appointed to the position of editor, and began his new duties September 1. McMillan was active in journalistic affairs while on the campus, serving as editor of the Barometer in his senior year. He is a member of Phi Kappa Phi, all school honorary; Sigma Delta Chi, international professional journalistic fraternity, and Alpha Kappa Psi, national professional commerce fraternity.

No radical changes will be effected by the new editor, his efforts to be expended toward a constant improvement and enlargement of the usefulness and scope of the publication. Readers who have had interesting experiences or who know of former students whose fortunes have changed can help to improve the magazine by writing to the editor. Success of the magazine depends in a large measure on the extent of such cooperation.

Last year there was organized an Oregon State Monthly campus staff, with men's and women's journalistic fraternities taking a leading part in the work. This staff of students assist the editor in preparing material from the many schools and departments on the campus and many of the individual writers contribute special articles. School departments are edited by Sigma Delta Chi, men's international professional journalistic fraternity, the women's section by Theta Sigma Phi, national professional journalistic fraternity for women.

Alpha Delta Sigma, national professional advertising fraternity for men, and the Oregon State College Ad club have assumed responsibility for campus circulation and an active effort is being made to interest every student in the publication. A campus circulation campaign will be undertaken soon after the opening of school with Barney Carlson, president of the ad club, acting as chairman of the drive committee. Members of his organization and of Alpha Delta Sigma will assist him in soliciting every student to become a subscriber for the Monthly.

Ed Coman, president of Sigma Delta Chi, has been appointed associate editor for the coming year. Edith Bennett is women's editor with Carol Phillips, Wilma Wells and Mildred Kramer as assistants. Patsy Moe serves as campus news editor with Lois Southam and Clara Noble as assistants.

Following the merger of the Oregon Countryman with the alumni magazine an Oregon Countryman editor has been a prominent member of the staff. For the coming year Clarence Ferdun will serve in this capacity. His assistants have not yet been named.

Assistants on the staff include E. Morrison, Al Petellin, Marion Chandler, Gerald P. Dudley, Philip Morris, Dale Sturmer, John Tosteven, Robert Wrenn, Rowland Hagar, Don Ketcham, Muriel Wiley, Amy Aldrich and Catherine Downing.

★ ★ The College Goes Visiting ★ ★

REALIZING that commonly practiced methods of business are unscientific and that the only certain means of reaching Oregon merchants with the results of scientific research and study made at the college is by taking the college to the merchants, a program of extension service has been inaugurated and pioneered by the School of Commerce. Taking the form of Business Institutes, held in cities and towns of the state during the spring and summer, the service was started in 1928 and has developed to a point where this year a total of 26 institutes were held in as many cities with a total attendance of 3214 persons.

"Through the Business Institute we are attempting to serve merchants in much the same way the college is serving the farmer. Merchants by nature, are a more or less non-cooperative group, reluctant to give each other facts pertaining to business which can be used for the common good," declared Professor H. T. Vance, head of the advertising and selling department, who has taken a leading part in the project, together with E. E. Bosworth, professor of accounting. O. F. Tate, secretary of the Oregon Retail Merchants association which is actively supporting the plan, has cooperated in the programs.

"We hope to establish confidence in the college as a clearing house for this type of information and in turn the college will make analytical studies and present the facts to the merchants through the institutes which we hope to continue each year," continued Professor Vance.

The press of the state has backed the institutes whole-heartedly, a total of 2010 column inches or 106 newspaper columns of space having been devoted to their discussion. News items have appeared in 59 newspapers in 40 Oregon towns and cities. Letters of endorsement have been received by President Kerr from a large number of merchants, chamber of commerce officials and others who have attended the meetings, in each case urging continuance of the plans and a return to the respective cities next year.

Excerpts from some of them follow:

"The merchants of Arlington are as a unit in expressing the hope that this city will be included in the itinerary of next year. . . ."

The practical value of the institutes is evidenced by the letter from E. U. Broderick of the Bend Chamber of Commerce. It said in part:

"I wish to express the appreciation of my organization and of myself for the benefits derived from the Business Institute just held in Bend."

From Lester Ireland of the Hillsboro Chamber of Commerce:

" . . . We appreciate these meetings, as they enable us to keep up on the latest methods of merchandising, and give us an insight on what is going on in the world outside of our own. . . ."

George C. Baer, executive secretary of the Pendleton Chamber of Commerce, expresses the reaction of the Round-up city to the institutes.

" . . . Our business leaders are convinced that these institutes offer a medium through which the retail merchants of the community can receive material benefit in dealing with the present day merchandising problems. . . . The institute has a real opportunity to perform a genuine service in this regard."

Meetings were held in the following cities, the first beginning on June 30 and the final closing September 5: Albany, Cottage Grove, Roseburg, Grants Pass, Medford, Klamath Falls, Lakeview, Burns, Ontario, Baker, La Grande, Enterprise, Pendleton, Heppner, Arlington, The Dalles, Redmond, Bend, Toledo, Tillamook, McMinnville, Hillsboro, Vancouver, Wash., Salem, Hood River and Corvallis. Attendance varied from 51 to 303 persons and averaged 124 for the 26 meetings.

Trio of O.S.C. Brothers Making Success in Life

THREE brothers who have made names for themselves since being graduated from Oregon State are Dr. Howard C. Stearns, '24 in agriculture, Dr. Horace A. Stearns, '26 in chemical engineering, and Dave W. Stearns, '25 in chemical engineering.

Howard received his degree of Doctor of Medicine in June, 1929, and served as interne at Multnomah hospital in Portland. He now fills the position of resident obstetrician for that hospital and the U. of O. medical school. He is married and has a boy 14 months old. Dave is doing engineering work for Coos county, is married and has two small daughters.

The third member of the trio to complete his work at O. S. C., Horace, received his Ph.D. at the University of Illinois last January. He had a teaching fellowship there. He is now chemist for a large commercial firm at Midland, Michigan, and is making rapid progress in the work.

I'll MEET YOU IN CHICAGO

AN intersectional game with significance as great if not greater than any ever undertaken by Oregon State—second not even to the historic clash with the New York Violets in 1928—will be the Thanksgiving day battle between West Virginia and Oregon State on Soldiers' Field, Chicago. This is the picture painted by none other than Coach P. J. Schissler of the impending final number on the Beaver gridiron program.

That this game will hold the nation's spotlight on Turkey day goes without saying. The performances of the Beavers in repeated instances of the past has elevated them to an enviable position as an east-west drawing card.

Realizing that there will be hundreds of alumni and friends who would give their eye teeth to see the team perform west of the Rockies, Coach Schissler has enlisted the support of railroad officials, a Chicago hostelry and other agencies to help make it entirely within reason for those same hundreds to "knock-off" work for a few days and become a part of the throng which will assemble on Soldiers' Field November 27.

A special Union Pacific train will leave Portland Saturday morning, November 22, and will join the team and band at Green River, Wyoming, where the complete special will be made up. The group will arrive in Chicago Tuesday morning and will start the return trip following the Notre Dame-Army game Saturday afternoon.

The U. P. has promised to place the latest equipment, from engine to club car at the disposal of the Oregon State party. Coaches, diners and club cars will be borrowed from the equipment of the new train "Portland Rose" just put into service by the rail company. Special rates will also prevail on all transcontinental lines, action of the Transcontinental commission has assured.

On the eastward journey the special will pause at Hastings, Nebraska, home town of the coach, where an elaborate celebration is being prepared to honor Schissler and his team. The Shriners will be hosts at a banquet to be served in the Shrine temple and at which 1200 persons are expected. Every member of the excursion party is included in the invitation of the Shriners.

The Shrine band and other entertainment features will be combined with the O. S. C. band to provide a program for the gathering. Automobiles, driven by citizens of Hastings will meet the train and escort players and visitors about the city, to the Hastings college stadium where the team will hold its only work-out enroute, and finally to the Shrine temple for the banquet.

Schissler has reserved a section of 200 seats for the Notre Dame—Army game Saturday, November 29. These tickets will be handled by the coach, who has asked that all who desire reservations for that day notify him before October 20.

As an appetizer for the Thanksgiving game between Beavers and Virginians will be a battle between the Northwestern university and Notre Dame "B" teams if tentative plans are carried out. With such a preliminary and SUCH a main attraction the most ravenous football appetite should be satisfied.

While in Chicago the team will be headquartered at Hotels Windemere, a short distance from Stag field,

IN THE HEART OF CHINA

By Mrs. Florence King Van Etten

(Editor's Note: Mrs. A. H. Van Etten, formerly Florence Kathleen King, '23 HE, has returned to the United States for a year's leave of absence after five years of service in a Presbyterian mission in Linchow, 300 miles inland from Canton. Mr. Van Etten was director of the station and Mrs. Van Etten served as a teacher and nurse. Her account of experiences in China is both interesting and instructive.)

To attempt to write anything about China at the present time is to risk one's reputation for veracity. I suppose this has always been true but it is especially so now. Before going out five years ago I was puzzled by contradictory statements: "In China the people are, do, seem, and behave thus and thus." I do not know if the things I have noticed are true in any part of China except a small district in the backwoods of Kwangtung province, and if anyone were to deny that they were true in that particular place I should at least be reasonable. In China one may see very little and can understand very little of what he sees.

We arrived in China in 1925. This was the year when anti-foreign feeling was hottest. Chinese workers in the British colony of Hongkong were striking in sympathy and so the first service we received after leaving the boat was at the hands of the lordly Brittain, and the only less lordly American. After waiting in Hongkong fourteen days we proceeded with other members of the Presbyterian Mission to Canton.

After nine months of this more or less restricted liberty, during which we studied the language, we went up the river to our station some 300 miles inland from Canton as the crow flies. The journey up the river is a real experience. With family, furniture, and the major supplies for 10 months we loaded ourselves on the baggage car and journed north for half a day, then were unloaded by a noisy bunch of coolies and stowed away on our boat.

It was on this boat that I first learned truly to sympathize with the three little bugs in the basket which had only room for two. Civilization is the only thing which kept us from resorting to the method the bugs used of relieving the situation.

The trip up is beautiful. The river is winding, and goes through some five or six picturesque passes before reaching Linchow, which is near the source. It normally takes six or seven days to make the trip, depending on various factors such as wind, water, warfare and the temper of the crews which pulls by ropes, or pushes with poles all the way up.

Linchow itself is a peaceful city in a peaceful countryside. The district is too poor and too isolated to even encourage the warring factions to march through. Besides this, the inhabitants are farmer folk and not much interested in who is President, or Emperor as the case may be.

The second year of our stay in China was also devoted almost entirely to language study. One cannot learn it over night. However, we were able to teach English in the schools, and attend to some of the non-lingual duties of the station.

The third year Mr. Van Etten took over the responsibilities of the station, and on account of a shortage of nurses I went into the hospital for a couple of hours each day. Since by this time I had acquired two offsprings of my own it seemed fitting that I should help Mother China care for her young, and so I bathed the little henna-colored hopefuls each day and told their mothers how to raise them.

The fourth and fifth years were more of the same thing only more so. Familiarity with the language and with the people gave us larger opportunities for service.

I have said Linchow is a place of villages. A Chinese village is an interesting unit of society. The houses are built face to face along a narrow street in the fashion of a lean-to, with nothing to lean on. Ordinarily the front section on the lower floor is open. The back is also open. There are no side windows since the middle wall does for two houses.

There is little if any attempt at sanitation. One wonders how the children ever do grow up, and the death rate is alarming. Chinese medicine especially as practiced in country places is drastic in its measures and not too successful in its result. Malaria is perhaps the greatest curse of the people, next to tuberculosis.

Just a word as to the nature of the people themselves. They possess a simple dignity which can embarrass the most self-satisfied "foreigner." Since this is a poor district life is simple, needs are few, and wants do not greatly exceed needs. There has been "Red" activity on three sides of us, but except for enticing some school boys away to be propagandists, there has been nothing of note in Linchow.

Three remarks one hears on every hand, freely translated, but still hardly able to express the meaning are: "Who knows," with a shrug of the shoulders; "There is no alternative," inferring that what is, must be; and "What can better the situation?" meaning that nothing can. These may be responsible for the lack of progress in our sense of the term.

Monthly Comment

FALL is in the air! From my window I see the unfailing signs. Leaves are taking on their variety of hues, and an occasional flock of geese flies over in V-formation as though to remind us that this is the time for such maneuvers.

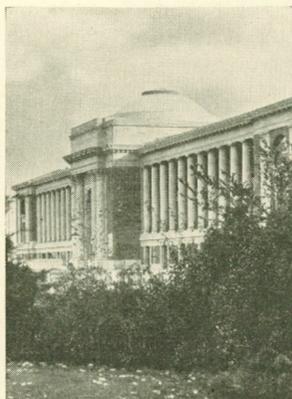

But with windows open here in the Memorial Union building such a reminder is not necessary. From the practice field back of the Men's gym comes the intermittent thud of leather on leather as Schissler puts the punters through their paces. Unfailing signs, these, that the season is at hand. The team is well under way in what bids fair to be a most successful season and before we realize it all roads will be leading to Corvallis for Homecoming.

And what a Homecoming! The traditional classic is with Oregon, who this year will be more intent than ever before under the guidance of their new mentor, Doc Spears. The Oregon team, like our own, is of unknown calibre, having a wealth of material in the rough and high hopes of having acquired sufficient polish before November 15 to successfully "polish" the home guard. As for the Beavers—Coach Schissler contributes his enlightening comment, "wait and see," and sports scribes say "worlds of material—somewhat inexperienced—but when they get started—" Who can doubt that it will be a classic battle?

Second only to the game itself will be two other new features of the Homecoming program. A midnight matinee Friday evening preceding the game with rallies, vaudeville and what-not, will start the weekend. And after the game the M. U. ball room will encompass a scene of activity that will live forever in the memories of participants, the Homecoming banquet. Formality and decorum will be parked at the entrance, the air of a "Coffee Dan" den replacing the usual affair. Leave that to Chuck Stidd and his committee, but don't fail to make reservations for yourself and the Missus. Yes, fall is in the air—and Homecoming is just around the corner.

READERS of the Oregon State Monthly were apprised last month of the resignation of Loring G. Hudson who served as editor during the past two years. Hudson is to be congratulated upon having secured his present position in the Kamehameha schools in Honolulu but, unfortunately, his departure must be regretted by the thousands of alumni who are readers of the Monthly.

Under the guidance of Mr. Hudson the magazine made rapid strides of development. It wrapped itself in a new cloak and made many other changes of attire which enabled it to take a position in the front ranks of college magazines. The retiring editor was untiring in his effort to improve the magazine and make it thoroughly representative of the institution and organization it served. Oregon Staters will regret his departure but all will wish him well in his new position.

THIS is perhaps the appropriate time for the new editor to step forth and make his figurative bow. After three years away from the campus as instructor in Journalism and Commercial subjects in a California high school, A. L. McMillan has been named to return to the campus to carry on where Hudson left off. It is with no misgivings as to the stupendousness of the task that the new editor undertakes to equal, and aspires to improve upon the work of his predecessor. Greetings, Oregon Staters! It's good to be back.

SECRETARIES of the 37 Oregon State clubs scattered here and there over the United States can do much toward making this magazine a success by submitting to the editor accounts of the meetings of the clubs and information regarding club members and other Oregon Staters with whom they come in contact.

As a suggestion to secretaries and other club members who sometimes find difficulty in stimulating attendance we proffer the idea of making the Oregon State football games the piece de resistance of a series of rousing meetings this fall. The alumni association has contributed to the plan by sponsoring the broadcasting of play-by-play reports of every home game on the schedule over KOAC. Out of town games will be telegraphed to the station except the W. S. C. game in Portland.

★ ★ OREGON STATERS WHO

ROBERT EARL RILEY (Forestry 1912)

Was chosen a member of the city council and Commissioner of Public Affairs to replace Commissioner Bigelow, resigned, at a recent meeting of the Portland council. Riley has for years been active in civic affairs in the Rose City.

Prior to his appointment as City Commissioner he was a member of the City Civil Service commission, which position he had held for two years. He was for two years a member of the Charter Revision committee and was this year general chairman of the municipal picnic for dependent and disabled children. He is at present a member of the Memorial Union board.

Riley is associated with the Edwards Tire shop, a well known Portland tire firm. Mrs. Riley was formerly Emma Fay Wade, '12 HE. Both are active members of the Portland Oregon State club. They have one daughter, Doris Lee; age 6.

Lynn F. Cronemiller.

LYNN F. CRONEMILLER (Forestry 1914)

Was appointed State Forester for Oregon by the State Board of Forestry in July, to succeed the late F. A. Elliott. Cronemiller was graduated from the Oregon State school of forestry in 1914 and shortly after entered the forest service as a ranger in Fremont National forest. He next served as managing editor of the Lakeview Examiner.

From that position he returned to timber work, this time as log scaler for the Payette Lumber company in Idaho. In 1917 he became head scaler for the George Palmer Lumber company of LaGrande. In 1921 he went with the East Oregon company at Enterprise and soon became logging superintendent for this company. He remained in this position until 1924 when he was appointed Deputy State Forester, which office he has held until his recent promotion.

Cronemiller was married in 1915 to Christine Orford '14, and has a family of three children, Lynn F. Jr., 15; Shirley, 12; and Donald O., 10.

Fenton J. Glennon.

FENTON J. GLENNON (Commerce 1921)

Now occupies the position of vice-president and general sales manager of Aluminum Industries, Inc., at Cincinnati, Ohio, said to be the largest organization in the world devoted to the manufacture of aluminum alloy pistons. He joined the company after leaving Oregon State, just when it was being organized and has advanced with it, his personal characteristics and ability having been given no small share of the credit for the rapid growth of the company.

From a force of 20 employees when Glennon took charge of the sales department 10 years ago, the company now has more than 500 on the payroll of the parent plant, with approximately 500 more employed at the Diamond Motor Parts company, St. Cloud, Minn., which was purchased last year and which is operated as a division of the company. Glennon has full authority over sales and distribution policies, with a group of district managers and field representatives throughout America and many foreign countries working directly under him.

ARE DOING THINGS

EDWIN BURTON ALDRICH (Agriculture 1900)

Added to his extensive newspaper interests when the Astoria Budget Publishing company, of which he is president, purchased the Morning Astorian and effected a consolidation of the two papers. Hereafter the consolidated paper will be published as an evening paper with several editions under the name of the Astorian-Budget.

Mr. Aldrich began his career in the journalistic field as a student, he having been editor of the Barometer when it was still a monthly publication. He has been associated with the East Oregonian at Pendleton since 1910, and has for several years been editor of the publication. He was a member of the board of regents of the college before creation of the new board of higher education, and served on the Memorial Union board of governors during the planning and construction of the building.

He is an "Oregon State parent," a daughter, Amy, being a sophomore in the school of commerce.

DR. CARL J. BARTLETT (Mechanical Engineering 1908)

Operates the Baker clinic and is chief surgeon for the Pondosa, Oregon, Lumber company and Stoddard lumber mills at Baker, and is a member of the board of directors of the Citizens National bank of that city.

Bartlett attended Oregon State three years. He later attended St. Louis university, receiving B.S. and M.D. degrees. He served two years with the medical corps during the World war, spending one and one-half years overseas. Since 1919 he has been engaged in medical practice in Baker, limiting his activities to general surgery.

In another line of activity, trap shooting, Bartlett is prominent throughout the northwest. His laurels include an Oregon amateur championship. He is considered one of Baker's most public spirited citizens, being a firm backer of all public enterprises.

Dr. C. J. Bartlett.

BLAIR L. STEWART (Commerce 1926)

Is announcer for radio station WJAY, Cleveland, Ohio, and is a featured tenor soloist over that station. Since being graduated from Oregon State Stewart has made a rapid rise in the musical world, having recently traveled on Lowe and Publix circuits and having played roles in Schubert plays.

Following his graduation from this college, Stewart attended Wisconsin university. He then studied three years in Chicago under Herbert Witherspoon, Florence Hinkle and Isaac Van Grove, former director of the Chicago Opera company. He is frequently heard in solos over the Columbia chain and is the featured tenor at a large theater in Cleveland. A change two years ago from baritone to tenor has greatly increased the range of Stewart's voice and has brought him an enviable reputation.

Mrs. Stewart will be remembered by her friends as Evelyn Genoe, '26 C.

Many Teachers Are Added To College Staff

OREGON Staters returning this fall have found 65 new faces among the faculty, including those of three new department heads, of which two are in the school of health and physical education and one in chemical engineering.

Miss Ruth Robinson, formerly head of physical education for women at Michigan State Normal, will be the new head of that department here, taking the place vacated by Miss Ruth B. Glassow, resigned. Dr. M. P. Isaminger, who has been assistant professor of hygiene and public health at the University of Michigan, will head a similar department here next fall. The other new department head is Dr. Charles S. Keevil, who comes from the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, and succeeds Dr. Floyd E. Rowland, '07, as chief in the chemical engineering department.

Several other changes and additions will be noted in the health service. Dr. Rachel Carleton Sparks from Kansas University will be the new women's physician, succeeding Dr. Edith P. Sappington, who has resigned, and Dr. Bernard Manace, formerly of the internal medicine department of the University of Michigan, will take Dr. F. B. Smith's place.

Miss Rena Heagen has been appointed assistant professor of hygiene, in charge of instruction of girls in this field. She comes here from a year of graduate study in health education at Massachusetts Institute of Technology.

Among the other appointments for the year are:

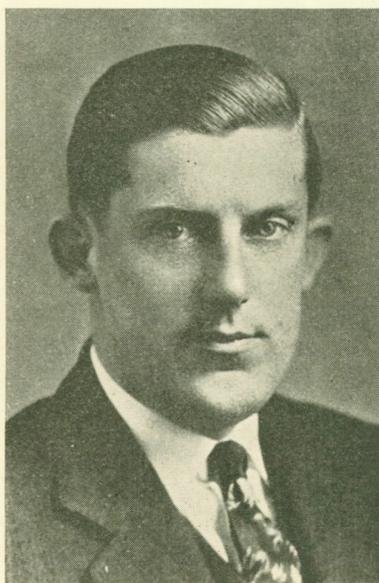

John H. Tull, extension specialist in marketing;

Sidney C. Jones, '26, assistant entomologist, experiment station; Thelma Gaylord, home demonstration agent; Guy S. Claire, assistant professor of political science; Dr. William E. Caldwell, assistant professor of chemistry; Walter R. Jones, assistant professor of aeronautical engineering; Fred B. Morgan, assistant professor of physics, (returning from three years leave of absence); Paul H. Giddens, assistant professor of history.

William Bert Owen, instructor in zoology; W. A. Kessi, '23, instructor in botany; William J. Baker, '27, assistant professor in forestry; Madge B. Coppock, '30, instructor in secretarial training; Phillip W. # FACULTY MEN FORM CLUB

AN outgrowth of a long felt need for an organization wherein members of the faculty could gather together informally, fraternize over a game of billiards, match wits in chess, or discuss common problems and policies, the Men's Faculty club of Oregon State college has come into existence and bids fair to become one of the most active and useful organizations on the campus. Officers of the club are G. V. Copson, president; H. T. Vance, secretary, and H. C. Seymour, treasurer.

Furnishings for the club room in the Memorial Union building have been installed and tentative plans laid for a number of activities early in the present year. The furniture was selected by the committee of eight members, that was elected at a general meeting last spring and includes the officers and the following: Charles D. Byrne, Carl W. Salser, J. E. Simmons, B. T. Simms and S. H. Graf.

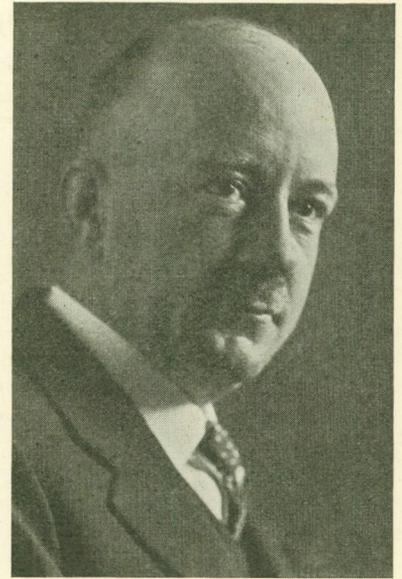

Carved, solid oak chairs and davenports with richly upholstered, individual leather cushions were selected by the committee. The equipment was purchased from The Edwards Furniture company of Portland of which Ade Sieberts, Class of 1917, is president. The design is the latest word in club room furnishings, the pieces selected being the first of this type to be installed in the northwest by the company.

The furnishings are of excellent quality and will blend perfectly with the architecture of the room and with the general decoration scheme of the building. The large fire place in the room was the central motif around which the furnishing was planned.

A games room will be equipped with a billiard table, card tables and other games including chess and checkers. A book and magazine cabinet has been installed in the main club room which also contains a beautiful cabinet radio and game tables. This room, it is expected, will soon become the social and recreational center of the men on the faculty.

"Heretofore, many members of the O. S. C. faculty have come and gone, sometimes remaining two or three years, without becoming acquainted with other than the members of their respective schools or departments," declared Mr. Copson. "We hope through the club to bring members of the different departments together to discuss their problems and difficulties and thrash out matters of policy, bringing them together to function as a unified faculty group.

"One of the principal purposes of the club will be to sponsor the appearance of speakers and other important visitors to the campus. With the club room facilities and an exclusive lunch room in the Memorial Union building, the faculty now has a place to entertain such guests. Members of the club for the first time now have a retreat where they may bring friends or come to enjoy a period of rest or recreation."

G. V. Copson, president of the newly formed Men's Faculty club.

The first occasion being planned by the new group will be a combination smoker and dinner for faculty members, to be followed later in the evening by "open house" to all visitors who care to see the new abode. This occasion will afford new faculty men an opportunity to become acquainted with each other and with the older members of the staff. The club will later sponsor an all-faculty dance, and has tentative plans for other functions designed to bring the members into a closer bond of fellowship and understanding.

The need for an organization for faculty men has long been realized on the campus and when the Memorial Union building was constructed provision was made for quarters for such a body. However, no definite moves were made toward formation until last spring, when several faculty members, realizing its necessity, undertook to sponsor the organization of a club. A leader in the movement was G. V. Copson, bacteriologist for the experiment station staff, who is now president of the club. Articles of incorporation have been filed under the name, "The Men's Faculty club."

Response to the plan has been whole hearted, many faculty men having already become members. Almost 100 percent assent to membership was obtained by the committee among those solicited before the close of school this summer, and cooperation this fall indicates the possibility of complete membership.

Similar organizations on other campuses are considered essential factors in the institution and it is believed that the Men's Faculty club will find a similar field of helpful and useful service with unlimited possibilities for future development.

Guarding Health At O.S.C.

By Patsy Moe, '32

THE school of health and physical education, under the directorship of Dr. Clair Langton, has been divided into five departments of hygiene, health service, physical education for women, physical education for men, and intramural sports. This school is an administrative unit concerned in developing and maintaining strong, healthy bodies and in teaching sound health principles and practices. It is responsible for campus health and sanitation and courses offered are service courses for students majoring in some other department or school, as no degree in physical education or hygiene is given.

Hygiene and public health have gradually assumed a large place in the lives of people today. And this change has led to new methods of meeting these problems. Formerly public health activities were concerned almost entirely with the control of communicable disease and most of their energies were expended toward the control of environment in its relation to the spread of organisms pathogenic to man.

The modern trend in addition to disease prevention has added health promotion or physical efficiency. It is concerned with the harmonious development and maintenance of positive health, such that the individual may lead an active and vigorous life. To arouse in the students an appreciation of personal efficiency and to educate him in the fundamentals of right living is the aim of the hygiene department.

Because of this growing demand for health education a course in general hygiene is required of all freshmen. Lectures, recitations, and demonstrations concerning the phases of health which should be understood by all college students are offered and credit is given. It is estimated that 1200 young people of the institution will be enrolled in this course in hygiene during the college year.

The department of sanitary engineering when organized requested that two courses be offered in hygiene, the school of vocational education made request for two courses and the school of agriculture petitioned for a course adapted to that school. These five courses are now offered by the hygiene department in conjunction with the other schools.

Dr. M. P. Isaminger of the University of Michigan will be head of the hygiene department. Dr. Isaminger did extension work at Michigan university in addition to his instruction there, and also research work in the university laboratories. Miss Rena Heagen, graduate of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, is also a new member of the college faculty who will be on the hygiene staff. Miss Heagen did advanced work at Columbia university.

*Miss Rena Heagen,

Another division of the school of Health and Physical Education that has undergone much recent change is the Health Service. This service had 18,802 dispensary calls during the past college year, making an average of 98 calls daily. In addition 382 students were cared for at the college hospital.

The purpose of the Health Service is to preserve health, to prevent disease, and to provide medical attention for ill students. The accomplishment of this purpose is sought through health education, detection of insipient disease, detection of remedial defects through the medium of complete medical examinations and by appropriate medical attention for acute disease conditions.

The staff of the Health Service is comprised of three men physicians, a woman physician, six graduate nurses, a laboratory technician, and a file clerk. Dr. Daniel Clyde Reynolds, professor of hygiene, is director of the College Health Service. Dr. Burton Smith and Dr. Bernard Manace, new this year from the University of Kansas, are the other assisting men physicians. Dr. Rachael C. Sparks, of the University of Michigan Health Service has replaced Dr. Edith P. Sappington who was on the staff the last college year. Miss Nellie Gunn of Corvallis has been selected as the X-ray technician for the ensuing year, and Miss Florence Vogel of the University of Michigan Health Service as an additional nurse.

The college hospital has been completely remodeled during the summer. Two rooms holding three beds each and four bathrooms have been added. Two utility rooms with a diet kitchen and a service room will supplement former accommodations. New light and call systems were installed, two fire escapes added and considerable new hospital and medical equipment has been purchased. The building has been reroofed, and has been painted both inside and out. The Health Service of Oregon State aims to keep step with the college enrollment that it may always be prepared to give immediate and efficient service.

NEW R.O.T.C. CHIEF NAMED

THE military department of the college will begin the year under the command of a new head, Colonel William H. Patterson having been appointed to succeed Colonel H. R. Richmond who has been named chief of staff of the 87th division of the organized reserves at New Orleans. Colonel Patterson comes to O. S. C. as commandant of the R. O. T. C. after a service of 38 years in Uncle Sam's military command.

Colonel Patterson entered the regular army in 1892, has been stationed at various times in every section of the United States and has three times been stationed in the Philippines. He spent more than a year with the advanced detachment of the A. E. F. in France during the World war. Part of his service in the war was as a lieutenant colonel of the 39th Infantry and later as colonel of the 53rd Infantry when he commanded the division trains of the sixth division and was animal inspector of the same division.

A graduate of the command and general staff school of the regular army, Colonel Patterson has served as executive officer of the summer R. O. T. C. camps at Fort McPherson, Atlanta, Ga., for several years. While there he was also director of the West Point preparatory school for the fourth corps area. He was assistant chief of staff of the 84th division organized reserves at Indianapolis, Indiana, before coming to Corvallis.

Two additional changes in the military staff have been made during the summer, Captain Forrest E. Ambrose replacing Captain H. L. Barrett in the Infantry unit, and First Lieutenant George A. A. Jones, replacing Lieutenant M. W. Daniel in the Field Artillery unit.

Captain Ambrose comes to Corvallis from Fort Benning, Georgia, where he has served for several years with the infantry school. Lieutenant Jones has been stationed at Fort Hoyle, Maryland. Both Captain Barrett and Lieutenant Daniels will pursue advance studies this year, the former at the general staff school at Fort Leavenworth, and the latter at Purdue university.

formed in Philomath. Among the out-of-town guests were President Carl Doney, Colonel and Mrs. Carle Abrams, Mr. and Mrs. Mark D. McCallister, Mrs. Minnie Kay, Mr. and Mrs. R. J. Hendricks, Judge Coshow, Professor Mathews, Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Sprague, Mr. and Mrs. David Wright and Mrs. Lenore Roberts, all of Salem.

Guests from Albany included Hon. and Mrs. J. K. Weatherford, Mr. and Mrs. Mark Weatherford, Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Barrett, Mr. and Mrs. Rocky Mason, Mr. and Mrs. W. T. Jackson, Mr. and Mrs. Ed Wiles, Mr. and Mrs. E. M. French, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Fortmiller, Professor and Mrs. W. H. Lee, Judge and Mrs. Percy Kelly, Dr. and Mrs. A. C. Schmitt, Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Cronise.

Among those from Portland who attended were Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Bilyeu, Mr. and Mrs. M. J. Brown-son, Mr. and Mrs. J. Purvine, Mr. and Mrs. B. L. Paget, Colonel and Mrs. Percy Willis, Mrs. Ella Williams, and Miss Alicia McElroy.

Mr. and Mrs. William Clark, Walla Walla, Wash.; Mr. and Mrs. Karl Steiwer, Jefferson; Mrs. G. A. Covell, New York City; Mr. and Mrs. Robert Gellatly; Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Henkle, Philomath; Mr. and Mrs. George Briedwell and Mr. and Mrs. John Briedwell, Amity; Glenn Briedwell and Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Briedwell, McMinnville; Mrs. H. W. Morris, Waldport; Mr. W. T. Grider, LaGrande; Mr. and Mrs. George Coshow, Brownsville; Miss Katherine Piggett; Camp Sherman, were other guests from afar.

A cafeteria breakfast was served at the Horner home on the morning following the ceremony, out-of-town visitors being the special guests. Celebration of the occasion was continued throughout the day, a buffet luncheon being served at noon with Miss Vera Horner and Miss Alicia Pearl Horner, the two daughters, in charge.

TROPHY WINNING R. O. T. C. HOBBY

IN competitive firing with the service rifle at R. O. T. C. camps during the past summer, members of the O. S. C. infantry unit attending the Vancouver Barracks camp defeated all competitors to win the coveted "Hotchkiss Trophy" and the "Doughboy of the West" trophy. The unit also won second place in competition for the trophy, "Warrior of the Pacific." Scores of every member of the various units in the camp were averaged in determining the winners of the three trophies.

The "Hotchkiss Trophy" which is presented annually to the university or college represented at the Vancouver Barracks camp making the highest average score in rifle marksmanship was won by the Oregon State team in competition with the University of Oregon and the University of Washington. The trophy is permanent, a new one being awarded each year. It is in the form of a silver plaque and is donated by Lieutenant-Colonel Clarence R. Hotchkiss, infantry reserve, U. S. A., who resides in Portland.

Colonel Hotchkiss, a marksman of distinction and who has been a member of two national rifle teams, has always taken a great interest in infantry weapons and has devoted considerable time to the scientific study of them. The trophy was won in 1928 and 1929 by the University of Oregon.

"Doughboy of the West" competition is open to all of the eleven infantry senior division R. O. T. C. units in the Ninth Corps area. This beautiful bronze trophy representing a victorious infantry soldier was designed by the sculptor, Avard Fairbanks, brother of Professor J. Leo Fairbanks. It is competed for annually, and since first being offered in 1925 has been won four times by the Oregon State college infantry unit.

One of the "spoils of war" won by the infantry unit at R.O.T.C. camps—The Hotchkiss-Trophy.

The "Warrior of the Pacific" is a bronze trophy offered by the University of Hawaii. It is competed for annually by R. O. T. C. units throughout the country. In winning second place the O. S. C. Doughboys outshot all competitors in the United States proper, placing second to the Hawaiians who retained their trophy.

ever before and with high interest apparent on every hand the success of the 1930 Homecoming banquet seems assured. The committees follow:

Entertainment—Bob Chrisman, chairman, Douglas McKay, Erma Sieberts, Mrs. Bob Robinson, Mrs. Nell Pearmine, Mrs. Mark McCallister, Mrs. Ed Allworth, Charles Reynolds and Romney Pearce.

Foods—Jeannette Cramer, chairman, Marian Conklin, Mrs. Chuck Stidd, Ade Sieberts, Chuck Webber, and Katherine Plympton.

Publicity—Katherine Jones, Chairman, Tommy Shea, Ward Irvine, Mrs. Florence Gradon Ragen, Larry Warren and Bob Robinson.

Finance—Ed Allworth, chairman, Don Holgate, Sinclair Wilson, Earl Riley and Carl Lodell.

Reservations—A. L. McMillan, chairman, Arnold Kuhnhausen, Portland chairman, with Vernon Jenkins, Alvin Finley and Thomas Bilyeu; Edward F. Underwood, Salem chairman, with Gardner Knapp and Katherine Marshall Jelderks; presidents of each Oregon State club throughout the country serving as sub-committeemen under the general chairman. (The complete list may be found in the Beaver Tales section.)

Honor Guests—Hon. B. F. Irvine, chairman, Mark D. McCallister and Lynn Cronemiller.

Faculty Participation—Sam Dolan, chairman, Joe Chamberlin, P. J. Schissler and Dean Cordley.

Parents Club Participation—Mrs. E. D. Seering and Mrs. Thomas Bilyeu, joint chairmen, Harry Holgate, Ed Aldrich, ex-Governor Walter M. Pierce and Walter Goss.

Home Town Participation—Paul Walters, chairman, Ed Siebert, Cecil Fuller, Bill North, Dr. J. A. Harper, Mrs. J. A. Harper, Arthur Berman and C. H. Woodcock.

Senior Participation—Sid Hammond, chairman, George Knutsen, Ronald Johnson, Martin Redding, Katherine Davis and Betty Robley.

Lack of Funds Fails To Thwart Students

NINE-TENTHS of all the 2553 men students registered at Oregon State college during the three regular terms last year made either all or part of their college expenses, according to a recent compilation of figures made by Registrar E. B. Lemon.

Taking the student body as a whole nearly three-fourths of the 3778 students were either totally or partially self supporting, according to Mr. Lemon. Only 26 per cent were shown to be entirely dependent.

Forty-two per cent, or 1072 men students were entirely self supporting, 29 percent, 741 men, made one half or more of their expenses and 18 per cent, or 460 men, were partly but less than one half self supporting. Altogether 2273 men students made part or all of their way, while only 11 per cent or 281 were dependent on relatives.

Nearly a half of the co-eds made some or all of their expenses, the figures reveal. Fourteen per cent were entirely self supporting, 16 per cent made more than one half and less than all their expenses, and 14 per cent paid part but less than half of their way. Fifty-six per cent or 686 of the 1225 girls registered were dependent.

Types of work done by students varied greatly with undertaking, barbering, cooking, repairing from watches to automobiles, sign writing, bell hopping, clerking, private tutoring, preaching, ventriloquism, tending babies, playing in orchestras and entertaining being among some of the pursuits followed by men students in off hours. Many boys are called on for housework, some housewives preferring them to girls for this type of work.

Most of the co-eds found employment in homes or as stenographers and clerks, although some of them have retaliated at the boys tending babies by donning overalls and joining the janitorial force of the college washing windows.

Wide Recognition Gained by Tractor Feat

NATIONAL recognition continues to come to the college as a result of the world's record tractor run made on the campus this spring. The latest evidence of the extent to which the fete is being chronicled is to be found in the August 23 issue of the Saturday Evening Post which contains a full page advertisement by the Caterpillar Tractor company, in conjunction with whom the test was made.

A full page picture layout showing refueling and actual operation forms the background for the advertisement. Diagonally across the page the record run is described in detail. Millions of readers have had their attention called to the fact that Oregon State college is a place where theory and practice have joined hands to provide education in its most practical phase.

An impressive ceremony marked the completion of the record when, on May 2, in the presence of a huge throng of spectators, batteries of movie cameras and many prominent men and women of the state, Governor Norblad turned the switch which quieted the motor which had been in constant operation day and night for exactly 481 hours, 5 minutes, and which had shattered every previous record for continuous operation of a farm power unit under actual farming conditions. The tractor was operated by two students in agriculture and the entire test was officially checked and accurately recorded.

The Chicago Game

where by special permission from Coach Alonzo Stagg, work-outs will be held Tuesday and Wednesday preceding the game. Headquarters for the band and other members of the party will be Hotel Sherman, where special rates of $2.50 for single and $4 for double rooms with bath have been promised.

"Most of the alums will be interested in the cost of the trip," said Coach Schissler. "With the excursion rates and other special concessions being made, a fair estimate of the entire cost including railroad fair, Pullman, diner, hotel, meals, sight-seeing, the West Virginia-O. S. C. game and the Notre Dame-Army game would be $250. The trip could easily be made at considerably less expense."

While the Chicago game will be uppermost in many minds, the players themselves will have no opportunity to "point" themselves toward it until the final game of the tough pre-conference and conference schedule has been played and the train boarded at Los Angeles. Anent this point Schissler has to say, "Every member of the team has been instructed and is continually being instructed to forget the east until the season here at home is over. I am trying to impress on them the fact that regardless of the outcome the intersectional game is a success only after a successful season in coast play."

MONTHLY DIGEST

News Service Wins High Honor

The agricultural news service supplied to Oregon newspapers and other publications by Oregon State college was judged second best in the United States in competition with that from 47 other land grant institutions at the recent meeting of the American Association of Agricultural College Editors at Washington, D. C.

Additional honors came to Oregon State college with the selection of Corvallis as next year's meeting place for the association and the election of Prof. Charles D. Byrne, head of the department of industrial journalism, as secretary of the national organization.

Surpassed only by Cornell university, the display of the news service work, taken back to Washington by Professor Byrne captured several firsts, second and third places in the different classes. Oregon State's exhibit in the various news classes outranked that of any other institution, although the college here placed second in the syndicated press service class which includes news to weekly and daily papers in the state.

The college news service won a coveted first place for the best exhibit of public information material on a single project or activity. The project used was the educational campaign sent out from here to aid the Oregon dairy industry.

First place also was won in the class for the best newspaper story in news style dealing with agricultural activities. It was written by John C. Burtner, agricultural press editor. Another story by Burtner placed third in the nation in the feature story class.

In the weekly service of short paragraphs written by Miss Ella Day, assistant in industrial journalism, a third place was won. Another third place was taken by the poster display. Other classes entered in the contest included those covering popular bulletins, technical bulletins, a college house organ, county agent's department in a newspaper, circular letters and radio material.

Commenting on the news service classes entered by O. S. C., Byron Price, chief of the Washington bureau of the Associated Press and the judge of these classes, told the members of the association that Oregon was "a step ahead of all the rest of you."

College Named Fire School Home

Oregon State College was chosen as the permanent home for the Oregon Firemen's school, which was held on the campus August 18-22. Nearly 200 Oregon fire chiefs and representatives of the state's industries and public utilities attended the school which is the first of its kind ever held in Oregon. It is sponsored jointly by the state fire marshal's department and the school of engineering at O. S. C.

One of the features of the school was daily instruction in public speaking by W. A. Dahlberg, instructor in public speaking. Among other members of the college staff who were on the program were Dr. C. S. Keevil, new head of the department of chemical engineering; Dean H. S. Rogers of the school of engineering; Prof. J. R. Griffith, Prof. G. W. Gleeson, Prof. F. O. McMillan, Prof. C. A. Mockmore, and Prof. M. L. Granning, all of the school of engineering.

Visiting fire chiefs were high in their praise of the value of this scientific instruction. Plans were made to ask the legislature for an appropriation to help finance the school.

Vocational Guidance Pamphlet Issued

Probably the most complete information published at Oregon State in the field of vocational guidance is the booklet, Occupations for Agriculturally Trained, compiled by the college editor, Edwin T. Reed. This booklet is written to give a clear and comprehensive understanding of the actual fields of employment of graduates in the school of agriculture, in Oregon State as well as similar schools of agriculture throughout the country. The various occupations in agriculture are stressed as well as the advantages for women in the field. The cover design and sketches were drawn by Frederick A. Cuthbert, instructor in landscape architecture.

Staff Specialists Speak at Meetings

A number of the extension service staff attended the Western States Regional Extension Conference at the Montana State college, Bozeman, in August.

Paul V. Maris, director of extension service, presided at two of the sessions. Miss Maud Wilson, home economist spoke on Studies of Rural Homemaker's Time; Leroy Breithaupt, extension economist spoke on Effective Methods of Disseminating Outlook Information; Miss Claribel Nye, state leader of extension home economics, spoke on Home Management Relation to Child Development and Parent Education. Miss Nye's talk was based on studies made before coming to Oregon. Other instructors in attendance from Oregon State were Frank L. Ballard, state county agent leader, and Mrs. Zelta Feike Rodenwold, home management specialist.

The Oregon State college campus was chosen for the fifth consecutive time as the meeting place for the annual summer training conference of the United Presbyterian church synod of the Columbia. More than 200 pastors and laymen attended the 8-day sessions here the middle of July.

Recent county agent changes include the appointment of Phillip T. Fortner who has been county agent of Lake county for five years as county agent for Baker county. He will succeed Roger W. Morse who has been on the county agent staff for seven years, and recently was appointed extension specialist in dairying to fill a vacancy caused by the death of N. C. Jamison.

Victor W. Johnson, formerly assistant county agent in Klamath county, has been promoted to county agent of Lake county. R. C. Kuehner, who has been on the 4-H club staff for four years, will become assistant county agent in Klamath county to succeed Johnson.

L. J. "Doc" Allen has returned from a year's leave of absence and resumed his work as assistant state leader for boys and girls clubs. Miss Audrey Wiencken is serving as assistant state club leader in the absence of Miss Helen Cowgill who is on a year's leave.

Other recent changes include the appointment of Mrs. Zelta Rodenwold as state home demonstration agent and also head of home economics radio work; Miss Frances Clinton, home demonstration agent at large, with headquarters at Corvallis, and Mrs. Sarah Case home demonstration agent for Columbia county, succeeding Miss Katherine Didtel.

Oregon poultrymen have decided to tell the world in general instead of Oregon in particular about their rapidly growing industry—following a somewhat similar advertising program as brought good results to Oregon dairymen. This course was decided upon at a meeting of the Oregon Poultrymen's association on the campus late in July.

A committee was formed to work with Prof. Charles D. Bryne, head of the department of industrial journalism, to outline an educational and advertising campaign. In addition to the educational campaign a committee was instructed to confer with President W. J. Kerr and Paul V. Maris, director of the extension service, on the possibility of conducting a poultry demonstration train next year similar to the dairy demonstration train which was so popular last June.

An advisory committee was approved to work with the experiment station in deciding upon a poultry research program and the restoration by the legislature of the entire $15,000 appropriation for poultry disease control work by the experiment station. The last session favored a 5% cut in the fund.

Because of the additional space required to carry on expanded cooperative work with the United States department of agriculture, a new head house in the campus greenhouse ranges is being constructed for the agricultural experiment station.

The contract for the new unit, costing $14,800, has been awarded to the Thompson Horticultural Works of Portland by the state board of higher education. It will be 180 x 33 feet and will correspond to the modern ranges built here several years ago by the same company.

Investigational experiments with nuts, bulbs, ornamentals, and the root rot disease of wheat will be continued immediately after the building is completed. Research work into problems of truck and small fruit growers and the new study of the hop mildew in western Oregon will also be continued in the new unit.

Oregon 4-H club boys and girls will broadcast a 30 minute radio program over a national hook up Saturday, Nov. 8, according to H. C. Seymour, state club leader. Seymour has received word from Dr. C. W. Warburton, director of the extension service at Washington, D. C., asking for the young Oregonians to participate in the November achievement day program. The program will go on the air from station KGW, Portland.

Advancement of the cooperative marketing movement will be one of the major projects emphasized during 1931 by the Oregon state grange in cooperation with the extension service of Oregon State college, it was recently decided in a joint conference with prominent grangers and members of the extension service.

Plans for carrying on the marketing project provide for meetings of each subordinate grange agricultural committee for surveying local conditions of marketing and for forming definite recommendations as to what shall be attempted and approved as local marketing machinery. Following these, county and district conferences will be held, the latter in order to get the program on a statewide basis.

Director Maris will appoint a committee in cooperation with the grange to make a marketing survey.

Dr. G. Wilster, professor of dairy manufacturing, has been named manager of the 15th annual dairy products show which is held in connection with the Pacific international livestock exposition.

Prof. G. R. Hyslop, head of the farm crops department, returned early in August from Washington, D. C., where he has spent a year heading a federal committee appointed to investigate grain grades and standards throughout the United States and the administration of the grain division of the bureau of agricultural economics. Professor Hyslop is one of the most widely known specialists among the farmers of Oregon.

Roger W. Morse, for the last three years county agent of Baker county, took over his new duties here as extension specialist in dairying Sept. 1. He succeeds the late N. C. Jamison. Morse is a graduate of Washington State college, where he specialized in both animal and dairy husbandry. He has operated cow testing associations in the Puget Sound region and is familiar with dairying conditions both east and west of the mountains. He has been highly successful with herd improvement associations and bovine tuberculosis and contagious abortion control in Baker county, according to Prof. P. M. Brandt.

A pamphlet on Cost and Efficiency in Pear Production in the Rogue River valley has been completed by Ralph S. Besse, associate professor in farm management, Walter S. Brown, horticulturist, and Lyle P. Wilcox, county agent, Jackson county, and is now ready for circulation.

Two instructors in the department of veterinary medicine, James N. Shaw, associate professor, and Bennett T. Simms, professor, have prepared a pamphlet for circulation on Studies in Fascioliasis in Oregon Sheep and Goats.

Washington State College Cougars under the coaching of Babe Hollingberry will be the opponent in the big game in Portland November 1 which will be played for the benefit of the Shriner hospital for crippled children.

The Cougars who upset the Orangemen last year in Portland by the score of 9 to 0 in a great battle which was filled with thrills from start to finish have practically the same team back this year. The greatest losses to the Cougar team are Archie Buckley, quarterback; Bud Hansen and Clarence Docka, guards. On the other hand Washington State has 20 lettermen including eight starters of last year's team on its squad this season. The Cougars have also several likely looking men from their strong 1929 freshman team who are sure to break into the varsity lineup this season. Washington State is considered as having one of the strongest teams in the northwest this year.

After the Washington State game the Orangemen will have two weeks in which to prepare for the traditional homecoming battle with University of Oregon at Corvallis November 15. Oregon had a very strong team last year and have been fortunate enough not to lose any of their outstanding stars with the result they should be that much stronger this season. Many of the football critics in the northwest are predicting Oregon to go through the season undefeated. With the coming of Dr. C. W. Spears from Minnesota to Oregon as successor to Captain John McEwan, University of Oregon stock is expected to be boosted that much more.

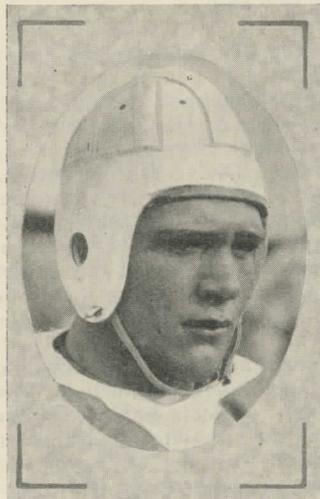

The final conference game of the season will be played with U. C. L. A. in Los Angeles November 21. This will be the only night conference game the Orangemen will play. U. C. L. A., an up and coming team under the tutelage of Bill Spalding is expected to have a much stronger team this season. The baby member of the conference is getting stronger every year and without a doubt will give some of the big members some tough going before many seasons.

Oregon State winds up the 1930 season with an intersectional game with West Virginia university on Soldiers field at Chicago November 27. Reports from West Virginia campus state that the Mountaineers are going to have the strongest team in years. Coach Ira Rodgers of West Virginia will be out to take the intersectional honors from Oregon State.

A few of the problems which will confront Coach Schissler in conference competition this year will revolve around some of last year's outstanding freshmen and members of the varsity reserves. Coach Schissler will not have a letterman available for either the fullback or center positions.

The outstanding men for fullback are Frank Little who played in this position on the rook team last year and George Peterson, a transfer from Ellensburg Normal. Both these boys while showing up very well in spring practice will have their first varsity conference experience when they meet Southern California October 4. So a definite lineup on these men cannot be had until they receive their baptism at the hands of the Trojans.

Cecil Sherwood, veteran half.

Other games away from campus—apply to football ticket office of host institution.

Application blanks for the games with Oregon and W. S. C. will be mailed to all alumni. All applications will be filed in the order received.)

Buck Hammer, although a letterman, is playing his first year as center. Buck made his letter last year at guard. He played fullback for the freshmen. Hammer has had plenty of conference competition at the guard position but is also to get his first conference competition at center against the Trojans. John Bethel from last year's varsity reserves, James Newgard, Lester Lopez and John King, all from the freshman squad, are the other varsity centers.

Another problem which is confronting Coach Schissler is getting relief men for Jack Cox, Chief Thompson and Ed Englestad at guard. There are no other lettermen available. Gilbert Bergerson who was a tackle on the varsity reserves last year and who was switched to guard in spring practice and Barney Carlson, another member of last year's varsity reserves, are the outstanding prospects.

The problem of getting a good interference runner and blocker at the right halfback position to alternate with Henry Hughes may be solved by the introduction of Hal Moe from last year's freshman squad. Moe made a great name for himself while playing with the rooks and showed exceptional talent in spring practice. He should solve, in part, some of Coach Schissler's problems.

THE HOMECOMING GAME

To the Graduate Manager's Office Memorial Union, Corvallis, Ore.

Howard Kerr, Cecil Sherwood and Tommy Drynan are the lettermen halfbacks who are booked to do a lot of ball carrying. Bill Head from last year's varsity reserves should also crash into conference competition this season. He has plenty of speed and is a hard hitter. Pierre Bowman, a Hawaiian, who played some good ball last year, furnishes plenty of competition for the other halfbacks. He is a good ball carrier and a real hard tackler.

Red McDonald and Keith Davis, from the freshman squad, and Reg Rust, a transfer from Eastern Oregon Normal, are the untried ends who are being depended on a great deal to help out the experienced lettermen ends—Snowy Gustafson, Sandy McGilvray, Bill McKalip and Floyd Root.

Wayne Harn and Curly Miller, both from last year's freshman squad, show promise of giving plenty of competition to the lettermen tackles, Pete Miller, Bill Byington, Harry Kent, Fred Schell and Sayles Young.

Art Ramponi and Tommy Ward, last year rooks, are the boys who are expected to alternate with Ralph Buerke at quarterback. Buerke with two years of varsity experience, should be at his best this year.

There is a little talk that Bryce Nosler, letterman alternate for Ralph Buerke last year, may finish this season in the halfback position. Nosler's speed and ball carrying ability cannot be overlooked.

Interest in football this year seems to be greater than ever and some record crowds are expected. Inquiries have been coming into the office of Carl Lodell, graduate manager, since early in the summer regarding tickets.

The Washington State game in Portland which is being backed by the Shriners should without a doubt be a sellout. Shriner officials have already mailed out more than 30,000 exchange tickets to Shrine members in the northwest. Ticket applications have been mailed to more than 9,000 Oregon State alumni. These applications should be in the stadium ticket office in Portland not later than October 11.

The University of Oregon game here should, as was the case two years ago, be a sellout. Carl Lodell advises that these applications be in his office in Corvallis not later than October 25.

Oregon State has always been a great drawing card at Los Angeles and big crowds are expected to both the Southern California and U. C. L. A. games. The U. C. L. A. battle will be the homecoming engagement for the Bruins.

Tickets for the West Virginia game have been in demand all summer. Information from Will H. Wade, chairman of the Shrine committee, states that he is assured of a complete sellout of 112,000 seats.

Here is a tip from Carl Lodell—send in your ticket applications as soon as possible to insure getting good seats. The demand for the precious ducats is heavier than ever.

More Sports

The outlook in major sports at O. S. C. at the opening of the college year appears to be unusually bright with a good percentage of lettermen slated to return in each sport. Few lettermen were lost by graduation, and reserves of last year together with graduates from the freshman ranks of last year give each of the coaches ample material from which to mould winning teams. The class of '33 has contributed a greater supply of athletic material than for several years past and, all in all, an optimistic picture presents itself.

Basketball

Basketball practice will begin November 1. Coach Gill will begin work with the following lettermen: Ballard, Grayson, Fagans, Drager, Lyman, Duffey and Merrill. Graduation took only three letter winners from the squad, namely Whitlock, Torson and Callahan. Among the reserves of last year who are expected to crowd the regulars for places are Jerry Thomas, a transfer from the middle-west who will be eligible this year, Joe Mack, John Janzek, Jim Hartwell and Al Parsons. Close of the football season will release Rust, Davis and McDonald, all capable basketball men as well as football toters.

From last year's Rook squad will come a number of hoop men eager to crowd the old-timers off the maple. Among the most promising are Ed Lewis, 6 feet 4 inches tall and one of the brightest center prospects Coach Gill has had the pleasure of welcoming, Rod Mason, Lowe and Shepard.

A training trip into California is scheduled for the Christmas holidays, the itinerary is expected to carry the team as far south as San Francisco.

Baseball

Coach Coleman is looking forward to another big year on the diamond with all but four of his 12 lettermen available for duty this year. The past season was highly successful, the team finishing second only to the University of Washington, after taking two of the three games lost by the Huskies. Lost by graduation are Captain Torson, Boultinghouse, and Wood, three-year lettermen and Heinie Wagner, one-year letterman.

Returning for duty will be the following eight lettermen and outstanding reserves: Brown and Nightingale, pitchers; Captain Grayson, first base; Joe Mack, catcher; McKennon, infield; Pennel, infield; Ballard, outfield; and Henzel, outfield—all lettermen. Reserves include Snyder, catcher; Cronin, first base; Wilson, infield; Taylor, infield, Ashbey, infield, and Thompson, outfield. A number of promising men from last year's freshman squad will also answer Coleman's call.

FRESHMAN FOOTBALL

SCHEDULE 1930

October 3—Chemawa at Corvallis.

October 11—Open.

October 17—Ashland Normal at Corvallis.

October 24—Oregon frosh at Corvallis.

October 31—St. Martins at Corvallis.

November 14—Oregon frosh at Eugene.

(Every game on the freshman schedule will be played at night.)

Track

Oregon State track suffered a severe blow with the graduation of several outstanding sprint and field winners. However, 15 lettermen will be available to Coach Richard Newman, and prospects are for a good year in the cinder sport. Several outstanding performers will come up from freshman ranks to bolster the varsity chances in this department.

Returning lettermen include Elle, Petterson, Kirk, Johnson, Mullen, Cantine, Chapson, Martin, Dufrane, Prentiss, Lyman, Kretzmeir, Rodman, McKalip and Bergerson. Among the sophomores whose performances this spring label them as outstanding material are Rust, Good, Dunkin and Davis.

Intramural

Six sports are included on the fall term program of intramural activities scheduled by Ralph O. Coleman, '18, director of intramural sports. A heavy program of competition for fraternity and club men will get under way October 6 when first cross-country heats will begin.

Dates for the opening of other competition are speed ball, October 13; Sigma Delta Psi competition, October 16; basketball, October 20, fall tennis singles, October 21; and turkey cross-country run, November 8.

The most complete record of competition in intramural activities ever undertaken at O. S. C. was incorporated last year by Coach Coleman. By means of the permanent record cards kept it is possible to accurately determine the total participation and number of sports participated in by every organization and individual.

Results for the past year show that the percentage of participation in intramural sports by fraternity men was 82.45 and that of independent men, 70.71, with an all-college average of 78.89. The average number of sports entered per man in the college was 2.45 and the total number of men playing in all sports was 4889. The total number of different men entered in some sport was 1570.

Ranking highest among organizations in the matter of intramural participation was Sigma Pi with a record of 97.14 percent. With a membership of 35 men, 34 were entered in some form of athletic competition.

Over the World With Oregon Staters

Around the World

It can truthfully be said that Oregon State is represented in the four corners of the globe. Those whose positions or travels take them to other lands where customs and habits are so different to those with which we are familiar have many interesting stories to tell. The Oregon State Monthly is always ready to publish news of alumni who are in foreign countries or who have returned from sojourns abroad. Readers in other lands can help to make this department more representative by sending news of their activities and experiences.—The Editor.

Argentina

From Maurice F. "Tom" Sawyer, '24 A, comes an interesting letter post-marked Cipolletti, Argentina. He is manager of a large pear ranch there, having assumed his duties early in July after nearly six months spent in Buenos Aires studying Spanish at the expense of his employer, Mr. Ugarte.

His letter, in part, follows:

"Well, I am at work at last. Left Buenos Aires July 4 and arrived here July 5 at 10 p.m. Mr. Ugarte and his friend Dr. Peras Varas met me at the train. He has a very fine place but it has been badly taken care of and there are many things to do. All the pruning is yet to be done and we have five men working on that job. We have a nursery with some 24,000 trees in it and there will be a lot of grafting to do in the spring. The orchard contains about 20,000 trees.

"The house we live in contains seven rooms, is of brick construction and has all the modern conveniences, lovely furniture, desks and a fireplace. A man and his wife do the cooking and the meals are excellent. We have a Ford truck, tractor and a new Ford touring car. I have an Englishman, Mr. Mason, who helps me and takes care of the books. He is good company."

Some difficulty is being experienced with the new names of employees who include Italian, Russian and Polish immigrants. It is necessary, he states, to show the Peons how to do their tasks but they learn easily and are good workers.

"I gave them a big shock when I was there to see them get started on time and at the right jobs, but the second day they didn't lose any time getting started. I get along fine with them, don't hurry them but try to show them how they can do their work easier and quicker."

Back in the United States after a lecture tour of three years, Alfred Reimann, '27 A, was a visitor on the campus recently. His travels have taken him to every corner of the globe and he will soon have lecture material assembled for a second tour.

Reimann will be remembered by students as winner of the Pacific Coast Extempore Speaking contest and as an active student in other campus affairs. Arriving in the United States from Denmark unable to speak English, he mastered the language as a student at Oregon State and finally won highest oratorical honors.

Lecturing on three subjects, "Industries of the Northwest," "The Scenic Wonders of the Northwest," and "American Colleges and Universities," Reimann visited in more than 30 different countries. Starting at Copenhagen he proceeded to Leningrad where he experienced some difficulty in obtaining audiences due to the Soviet Police system. His travels then carried him to Stockholm then to England where he spent considerable time, then through the Mediterranean to Italy, Sicily and other southern European countries.

His next step took him to Bombay and other Mediterranean cities, thence to Australia, New Zealand and up to the north coast of China and Japan. From the Orient the itinerary carried him to the western coast of South America. He returned to the United States through the Panama canal, docking at New York.

The lectures given were illustrated by lantern slides and movie films, many of which were furnished by the college. His talks were well received in every country, several of his audiences reaching the total of 6000 and many totalling 2000 or more.

Peru

First hand information on the revolutionary activities in Peru may be obtained from Ernest V. Abbott, '22 A, who arrived in the United States from that country July 11, and who is now located at Houma, Louisiana, at the U. S. sugar plant field station as associate pathologist. He writes:

"Unfortunately I did not have time for a visit to Oregon and the college since I had to report in Washington on the fifteenth, and at the station here a few days later. I am associate pathologist in charge of the pathology work at the station here. Our work is entirely with sugar cane. The experiment station is situated on one of the largest sugar cane plantations in the state, and is about twelve miles north of the Gulf of Mexico. We are on the Old Spanish Trail 55 miles west of New Orleans.

"I resigned my position as plant pathologist of the experiment station in Lima in June to accept this position, and left the country shortly after the revolutionary activities, which have just recently caused the overthrow of the government, were taking form. Several unsuccessful attempts were made to assassinate President Leguia, two of which I witnessed. The director of our experiment station was in prison at the time I left Peru for his alleged connection with the revolutionary plots. Needless to say I am glad to be back where life is a little more secure."

Hawaii

Loring G. Hudson, '27 VE, sailed in August for Honolulu where he has accepted a position of instructor in journalism and director of publications in the Kamehameha schools. Loring resigned from his position of editor of the Oregon State Monthly to accept his present position. He is enthusiastic about the Islands and especially the hospitality of the people there.

"Nowhere else in the world could one find as hospitable a welcome as on arrival in Honolulu. Our ship, the Maui, docked around 8 o'clock—early for Corvallis but late for Honolulu where breakfast is around 6 a.m. and the day's work well under way by 8.

"A large group of the Kamehameha school faculty members met us and showered us with fragrant leis. Among the welcomers were Mr. and Mrs. Bill Caldwell, Miss Louise Struve, President Midkiff and others. Everyone continues to vie with everyone else to help us get organized pleasantly.

"The Island is full of interesting things, places and people. Ever so often the liquid sunshine has fallen. One can scarcely call it rain as it is but a whif of refreshing mist.

"The streets of Honolulu are rather narrow and more or less crooked. On the busy corners traffic cops—mostly Hawaiians—are stationed in little huts in the center of the intersection. The huts consist of boxed seats covered with large sun umbrellas."

About the Campus

Grade Averages

Mid-night oil failed to gleam sufficiently in 14 fraternities, three sororities, one men's club and two women's clubs, grade averages for the spring term would indicate. However, under a new ruling now in effect, those organizations making their first consecutive offense will not be penalized for the scholastic shortcoming, the "probation" being in the form of a warning.

Should an organization fail to make the required average during the probation period, the term following the warning probation, the penalty becomes more severe than heretofore, the organization losing the right to social functions and the right to initiate pledges who have made less than an average 1.60 for one term or 1.35 for two consecutive terms. If in the third consecutive period the organization fails to meet the requirements, a further penalty will be prescribed by executive authorities.

Beginning with the spring term last year a slightly different basis for determining probation was placed in effect. Hereafter the scholarship average of fraternities and men's clubs must be kept equal to or above the all men's average for the term, and sororities and women's clubs must be up to the all women's average. The third term grades show the average for men to have been 1.35 and that of women, 1.43.

Organizations and their grades follow:

A new Boeing pursuit plane has been received here by the school of engineering from the Naval Air Station at San Diego, Cal. The ship will be set up in the engineering laboratory and used for instruction in construction details, airplane design and other aeronautical problems.

Pharmacy

Dean A. Zieffe, has been appointed chairman of the committee on publicity of the Oregon State Pharmaceutical association and together with the other members of the committee will put on an advertising campaign in newspapers in the interest of the profession of pharmacy in Oregon. Already plans have been formulated to stress National Pharmacy week, that will be held October 12 to 18.

At the July, 1930, convention of the O. S. P. A., $200 was subscribed to the O. S. P. A. educational fund. Of this amount $100 was paid in cash by the Traveling Men's Auxiliary. These funds together with payment on subscriptions during the month of September should insure ample funds to take care of the needs of worthy students during the ensuing school year.

At the recent convention of the Oregon State Pharmaceutical association held at Seaside, Ore., in addition to providing more furniture for the women's room in the pharmacy building, the women's auxiliary voted an award of $25 to the woman student registered in pharmacy who has made the best record scholastically, in outside activities and in qualities of leadership.

Miss Myrtle Burnap, secretary to the school of pharmacy, underwent a major operation at the Corvallis General hospital. Miss Burnap is recuperating rapidly and Mrs. C. R. Fuller is relieving her in the office.

J. H. Batcheller, professor of mining engineering, is making a tour of the United States on a three months leave of absence. During his 9000 mile auto trip, which will take him to nearly every section of the United States and southern Canada, he will study new efficient and modern mining methods, new processes of excavation and surface operations of the continent's leading mining districts. He expects to return to Corvallis early in November.

Library

The library department under the directorship of Lucy M. Lewis, head librarian, has started to reclassify the books under the Library of Congress system. This system is more up-to-date and better adapted to scientific and technical books. As only a small amount is afforded for the reclassification, the task will not be completed for several years.

Miss Josephine Halverson of the University of California, will devote her time to this particular work. Miss Halverson has had a great deal of experience in this type of work at the University of California library. In addition to the election of Miss Halverson several additional changes have been made in the personnel of the staff.

Miss Vesta Beckley, who completed her college work this summer, has replaced Mrs. Yonker. Betty MacMillan, circulation assistant, has resigned to accept a teaching position in the deaf school at Salem. She will be succeeded by Miss Lenna Guthrie, a graduate of Washington State and of the University of Illinois Library school. Miss Louise Wheeler of the reference staff resigned to accept a position as head of the cataloging department at the California State Agricultural college at Davis. She will be replaced by Miss Ada Blekkink, graduate of the University of Washington Library school.

Mrs. Evangeline Thurber, reference assistant, has been granted a year's leave of absence and will accompany her husband, who is on Sabbatical leave at Washington, D. C. Miss Harriet Warner will fill this vacancy. Miss Warner is a graduate of the University of California and of the University of California Library school. A new assistant in the office, Miss Helen Dreesen, '30 in commerce, has been granted to the library staff.

Economics

Dr. E. H. Moore, professor of economics and sociology, has returned from Idaho where he has been working on the Hoover Commission of Social Change. The commission selected 160 towns that the Religious Commission of Research had surveyed ten years previous and noted changes made in that time. Dr. Moore checked the localities of Parma and Emmett.

Dr. W. H. Dreesen, professor of economics and sociology, attended the International Conference of Agricultural Economists at Cornell university, August 18-29. Leading economists from all over the world were in attendance as well as representatives from the bureau of agricultural economics and the federal farm board. Dr. Dreesen appeared on the conference program in an address on "Proposed Improvements in Taxation of Farm Real Estate."

Education

Leston L. Love, assistant professor of education, has returned from the Ohio State university at Columbus where he continued his graduate studies. Mr. Love during the month of September, held individual counsel with high school seniors throughout the state, particularly with the view to vocational guidance.

Carl W. Salser, professor of education, and head of the personnel and placement service, conducted a course in "Counseling with Individuals" at the annual Northwest summer session conference at Seabeck, for Y. M. C. A. secretaries. Mr. Salser says that the Y. M. C. A. is becoming very active in connection with vocational guidance problems and methods of advisory work, especially for high school and employed boys.

Miss Florence Blazier, professor of home economics education, took advanced work at the Ohio State university during the summer and will continue her graduate studies this fall at the University of Minnesota.

Merrit M. Chambers, assistant professor of political science, has been granted a leave of absence, at Ohio State university where he will complete his graduate work. Dr. Guy S. Claire will replace him on the teaching staff. Dr. Claire is prepared by training and experience to conduct work in law and government. He secured a bachelor's degree at the University of California, and a law degree at the University of Pennsylvania. During his residence work at Pennsylvania, he did part time instruction work in commerce and finance. Dr. Claire completed his Ph.D. degree at Stanford university during the summer. While at Stanford he taught part time at the Law school at San Francisco.

A number of faculty of the English department have spent the summer vacation in various parts of the world. Frederick Berchtold, professor of English language and literature, traveled in the northwest and inter-mountain states, making use of the libraries of Bellingham, Wash., Moscow (University of Idaho), Pocatello (University of Idaho—Eastern branch) and Salt Lake City (University of Utah).

Mrs. Gertrude E. McElfresh, assistant professor, has returned from a year's leave of absence, having traveled in the South and in Central America. Ralph Colby, assistant professor, traveled in the East, with headquarters at Minneapolis.

L. B. Baldwin, instructor in English, attended summer school at Berkeley, Cal. Herbert B. Nelson, instructor, attended summer school at Stanford. J. C. Major, instructor, is away on leave.

Ralph O. Coleman, assistant professor of physical education and director of intramural sports, has compiled a booklet, "Intramural Sports," which will be ready for circulation at the beginning of the college year. This booklet is designed to provide student organizations with a handbook listing the various types of intramural sports. It is fostered by the department to encourage all men students to participate in these sports and thus to broadcast the benefits of physical training. The circulation will be chiefly among the students on the campus.

Dickson Edwards, '33 general, has been granted a scholarship at Columbia university, New York. Mr. Edwards was selected by the alumni of the Portland schools as the most brilliant scholar in the 1929 graduating class in the Portland high schools. He will study international law while attending Columbia university. Mr. Edwards made a 94 yearly grade average while attending Oregon State the past year. He is affiliated with Tau Kappa Epsilon fraternity.

Women's Section

Mrs. Lorna C. Jessup, assistant to the dean of women, traveled from Vancouver, B. C., to Eagle Rock, Cal., this summer, and was her own chauffeur during the entire trip. She visited her mother, one of the two gold star mothers who went from Corvallis to France. Mrs. Jessup returned to the campus September 15.

Mrs. Rachel Carleton Sparks, college physician, and her two children spent six weeks on their trip to Oregon.

"The vacation was centered on the children," said Mrs. Sparks. "They enjoyed the bears in Yellowstone National park. We went out as far as the coast, stopping at Newport.

"We like it here very much. We feel that we left Kansas at the opportune time as everything is dried up there. People are expecting hard times."

Mrs. Sparks was graduated from the University of Minnesota and spent two years in the health service at Kansas university.

Miss Elizabeth Robinson, director of physical education for women, will follow the same policies of Miss Ruth Glassow, former director of the department. She does not expect to make any radical changes.

"I anticipate with joy and pleasure working with Dr. Langton and the staff members," said Miss Robinson. "The people here are cordial, and I feel quite at home already.

"I am impressed with Oregon and the lovely buildings here on the campus. I have not seen any more beautiful or better equipped."

Miss Robinson drove out through Illinois, Iowa, South Dakota and Wyoming, stopping at the Yellowstone National park. She was not held up by the rain and mud as many others were.

Miss Robinson is a graduate of Michigan State Normal college, one of the first 10 normal schools founded.

Mrs. Zelta Feike Rodenwold, '19 HE, has prepared a pamphlet for circulation on the field of instruction offered in home economics and the advantages and future of each field. This booklet stresses buying and selling stating that 81% of all groceries are purchased by women, 99% of household equipment and even 65% of the men's socks. Another new field open to women is the fashion advisory work, the pamphlet giving the qualifications necessary for such training. The advisor may be helpful in planning a young woman's trousseau or in aiding a society woman concerning the clothing needed on a European tour.

The pamphlet contains numerous quotations from successful business people in various lines of work and also from Oregon State graduates who have made a name for themselves in the field of home economics work. The pamphlet is generously supplied with full page illustrations drawn by Miss Clara Dodson, instructor in art. The demand for women in business is ever-increasing. In the 1920 census 687 possible occupations were listed and of these all but 33 were invaded by women. Mrs. Rodenwold cites that college training is simply an index to one's capabilities, merely an intellectual pedigree.

The cabin retreat, constructed through the sponsorship of Cap and Gown, senior women's honor society, has been completed and turned over to the Associated Women Students to be used as a retreat and rest resort for all women students of the college. The cabin is located on Mary's river only a mile from the road and about nine miles from Corvallis. It is surrounded by tall trees and is in a spot where the river, birds and wild life afford an atmosphere of restfulness.

"The purpose of the retreat is to bring the women students together in a manner never before possible," said Dr. Kate W. Jameson, dean of women. "The girls have done exceptionally well to carry out the building project which has been under the direction of Mrs. Lorna C. Jessup, assistant dean of women. Furnishings for the cabin it is hoped will be contributed by friends of the girls and the college. Cots, mattresses, dishes, a cookstove, tables and chairs are needed.

The site for the retreat first came to the attention of Miss Ruth Glassow, former director of physical education. With the location in view, she drew up plans for the retreat. The grounds include five acres and have been leased for a period of ten years from Mrs. Mabel J. Rickard of Philomath. Final plans and details were carried out by Mrs. Jessup and G. W. Allen, contractor who constructed the building.

Second place in the national scholarship contest conducted among the 54 chapters of the Delta Zeta sorority, was won by the Oregon State chapter at the national convention at Madison, Wis. Mary Bennett of Albany represented the local chapter at the conclave.

Miss Helen Lee Davis, 54, vice-dean of the school of home economics until her resignation three months ago and for 10 years head of the department of clothing and textiles, died August 19 at her home in Moultonboro, N. H. Miss Davis had been in ill health for several years, taking a leave of absence three years ago. She submitted her resignation last May to rest at her New Hampshire home. She was acting dean of the school of home economics during a two year absence of Dean Milam in China. Alma Catherine Fritchhoff will become head of the clothing and textiles department.

BELL "LAB" HAS TEN STATERS

By Dorothy Steimle, '29 C

The "Bell Lab" gang of Oregon Staters is increasing considerably this year with the addition of nine new recruits from the class of 1930. A total of 250 men are chosen annually from the 4000 graduates all over the United States and are placed in the various departments of the Bell Telephone laboratories in New York City.

The work of the 3000 technical men of the laboratories is to develop all kinds of electrical communication systems and incidentally to explore other possibilities which indicate other phases of service to the public. For instance the development of telephone repeaters paved the way for the development of amplifiers which lead to the heart of the sound picture work. The studies of human speech and hearing have resulted in the development of a number of aids for the deaf.

Of the ten Oregon Staters who have been here over a year there are eight electrical engineers, one mechanical engineer and one representative of the school of commerce. Two have received master's degrees in physics at Columbia University since coming to the East and the majority of the others have taken advantage of the Laboratories' out-of-hour courses.

Each year brings a larger delegation from Oregon State to work in the Bell Telephone Laboratories. The class of '24 is represented by T. A. Jones, who is in the systems development department working on new carrier telegraph systems. He received his M.A. in physics from Columbia in 1928 and is very pleased with his opportunities in the East.

W. R. Bennett, '25 graduate in electrical engineering, is the only one here from his class. Mr. Bennett is interested in the design of transatlantic telephone cable through the transmission systems research department. He is also working for his Ph.D. in physics at Columbia.

Since there are no '26ers here, Orville L. Walter, '27 graduate in mechanical engineering, comes next. His work is on special products in the apparatus development department.

Vene Rinehart, '27 graduate in electrical engineering, was also with the Bell Telephone Laboratories until he transferred to the Western Electric Company where he is working in the sales inspection division on telephone apparatus in the New York office.

The electrical engineering class of 1928 is represented by Frank Blount, W. E. Burke and A. A. Lundstrom.

Blount is in the central office development group working on special central office circuits and ringing studies. He is also lined up to teach a communication course given by the laboratories this fall. Burke is in the toll equipment development organization, where the principal purpose is the development of new equipment for use in long distance toll circuits which involves manufacturing planning, economics, development and transmission studies. His work is quite varied and interesting. Lundstrom has been working in the transmission research department since August of this year.

From the class of '29 there are six who are widely separated in the laboratories. T. A. Crump and Steven C. Bates are assistant field engineers sent out from the inspection engineering department to investigate any system or apparatus that affects the plants of the various associated companies. Bates is now stationed in Chicago, while Crump is doing similar work in Philadelphia.

Fred M. Burelbach is in the toll systems development department working on toll switchboards and test board circuit design. Mr. and Mrs. Burelbach arrived in New York in February of this year.

Delbert Shirley is working on sound picture recording in the acoustical development department.

S. O. Rice has come to the laboratories within the last month. He has been studying on a fellowship at the California Institute of Technology since his graduation from Oregon State college. Mr. Rice will be located in the special research department here.

The inspection engineering department is harboring another Oregon Stater, also—Dorothy Steimle, whose work in this department includes preparation of surveys on special products and telephone equipment as well as quarterly reports on quality of goods inspected regularly.

G. W. Barnes, B. G. Griffith, J. P. Howell, A. K. Bohren, L. Hollingsworth, W. E. Simmonds, C. S. Tilton and W. A. Sisson, all of the class of 1930, are the new members of the technical staff of the laboratories. Barnes will be with the telephone apparatus development organization, Griffith with the radio transmitter development group in research, Howell in the inspection engineering department, Bohren in equipment development and Tilton in the personnel department. Hollingsworth and Simmonds will be placed soon as will D. M.

Chapin, who received his M.S. from Oregon State this June and is coming into the laboratories with this group of 1930 graduates.

The Oregon Staters employed in the Bell Telephone laboratories meet often socially at the laboratories' dances and parties as well as at the regular Oregon State College Alumni club meetings. There are approximately 50 other members who attend these alumni meetings where choice bits of Oregon news are exchanged and recent issues of the Oregon State Monthly displayed.

RECENT BOOKS

THE LAST FULL MEASURE

By Honore W. Morrow.

Readers who know her enchanted canyon, We must march, On to Oregon, With malice toward none, and the Splendor of God will be interested in this book.

The Last Full Measure, a historical novel, deals with the last year of Lincoln's life. The opening chapter, September 1864, introduces John Wilkes Booth and his accomplices and their plans to kidnap the president.

For readers who are interested in the great American president, this novel will furnish a dramatic and absorbing story.

A partial list of the books which were read by the author, as well as her description of her method of writing the book is included in the work. The author states that, "except for conversations and thought processes I tried not to step outside of fact."—G.M.S.

PAUL ROBESON, NEGRO

By Eslande Goode Robeson.

This story of Paul Robeson's life which is written in popular fashion by his admiring wife furnishes the unbiased reader with an interesting character study and knowledge of negro life from the negro viewpoint. In presenting her material she uses the opportunity to give a picture of the negro's religion and also college life from the angle of a brilliant and athletic negro. His accomplishment in drama and music furnish the interesting material for his later life.—G.M.S.

Beaver Tales

1888

Allen, Ira E., AB, is superintendent of the California Packing corporation at Vancouver, Wash. He lives at Route 1, Box 177, Vancouver.

1889

Weber, Emma, now Mrs. Perry H. Irish, was in Corvallis this summer visiting friends and relatives in Corvallis and Portland.

Mrs. Irish and her husband who formerly was head of the chemistry department at Oregon State, live at Mount Clemens, Michigan.

1893

Bronson, Harriet, DSA, now Mrs. Joseph E. Sibley, is still pursuing her household duties at Dallas, Oregon. She lives at 410 Hayter street.

1899

Scoggin, Hubert A., A, raises purebred dairy cattle on his farm near Bend (Motor Route B). Scoggin married a graduate of the University of Illinois and they have one child.

1901

Mrs. C. T. McDevitt (Carrie Danneman) class secretary, 421 South Fifth street, Corvallis, Oregon.

1902

Mrs. Edith Zurcher (Edith Howard), class secretary, Veterans Hospital, Livermore, Cal.

Ewing, Gertrude, DSA, now Mrs. McElfresh, who has been on leave from the college for a year, has returned to her duties as associate professor of English at Oregon State. Mrs. McElfresh spent part of her time at Houston, Texas.

Thrasher, Frank, ME, a Corvallis insurance salesman, lives at 543 South Sixth street. He has two sons, Vance, 13, and Mack, 10.

Billings, Ralph, A, dairyman at Route 1, Ashland, Ore., signed the alumni register at headquarters while in Corvallis in August. Billings' wife will be remembered as Myrtle Herbert, '02, DSA.

1903

Mrs. C. W. Laughlin (Sybil Cummings), class secretary, 298 Fourth street, Astoria, Oregon.

Millhollen, Lloyd, P, sold his Corvallis drug store in August to Lawrence Dickson, '29 PhC. His plans for the future have not yet been announced. The Millhollens live at 204 South Ninth street.

1904

Mrs. J. R. Howard (Etta Fuller), class secretary, 3261 Jackson street, Corvallis, Oregon.

1905

Karl Steiwer, class president, Jefferson, Oregon.

1906

A. G. B. Bouquet, class secretary, 118 North 21st street, Corvallis, Oregon.

He has just returned from a year's leave of absence spent at Cornell university, Ithaca, New York.

Hawley, Earl, EE, is still teaching in the high school and junior college at Modesto, Cal. His address is 315 Alturas avenue.

Ewing, Anne, DSA, now Mrs. N. E. Wayson, and Dr. Wayson and son, were in Corvallis recently. Dr. Wayson has again been assigned to a three-year period at the Leprosy Investigation station at Honolulu of which he is head.

1907

Mark V. Weatherford, class president, 122 West First street, Albany, Oregon.

Burnap, Myrtle, C, recovered nicely from a major operation this summer and is again back on her job as secretary to Dean Ziefle of the school of pharmacy.

1908

L. Pearl Leonard, class secretary, 349 Morrison street, Portland, Oregon.

Cherry, Philip J., ME, was a recent campus visitor. P. J. will be remembered as the very active ton of baled hay "Norcky" parked in the center of his famous Green Bunch that said: "You shall not pass." Cherry went away and played with Washington State for a year or two, but somehow his heart is back there in that battle in the mud with the Green Bunch. At any rate he vowed a vow to be back at the homecoming this fall to help put the old fight in the Orange and Black defenders. Cherry lives in Astoria.

E. C. Callaway, class president, 604 South 16th street, Corvallis, Oregon.

Elmer Williamson, class secretary-treasurer, Albany State Bank, Albany, Oregon.

Rodgers, Robert, ME—"Dear old Bob," the ablest man in our class, he whom we delighted to honor, was suddenly called home July 28 at Wauwatosa, Wis. Heart disease cut our classmate down in the midst of his career. We all remember "Bob" as business manager of our year book, Colonel of the Cadet Regiment and President of our Senior Class. Shortly after graduation "Bob" married Roxana Cate and taught vocational training at the college. He went to Columbia University for graduate work, and then took up his work of Vocational Education in the schools of New York. In 1914 he went to Stout Institute, Menomonie, Wis., as head of the Department of Industrial Education. He was called back to New York in 1919 as Assistant Director of the State Department of Education. He was fast becoming a recognized authority in Vocational Education in the whole United States. In 1923 he was called to take charge of teacher training and research in the Milwaukee Vocational school. Robert L. Cooley, director of this school said of Rodgers:

"He was one of the finest men I know, as well as one of the ablest. Of his type the world has only too few."

The Milwaukee paper reporting his death mentioned the fact that Rodgers was a national authority in teacher training, and the results of his research was being used all over the country. There is no doubt that "Bob" founded a great work in his field. He built wonderfully and well in the lives of teachers who will teach other teachers. The work our classmate has done will roll on and on till the sands grow cold. Calm, kindly, keen, decisive, constructive, was our friend; one of the world's builders. It is our joy to have known him and to have owned his friendship.

"Bob" and Roxana had two girls: Jean, who is attending Beloit College and Emily who was ill in the hospital when her father died. "Bob's" sister, Emily Rodgers died in a Chicago hospital just two weeks after her brother. Roxana is an instructor on the faculty of the Milwaukee institute and will remain in Wisconsin. Her mother and father are now living in Corvallis at 202 N. 10th St.

Twenty years ago we all started out to make our mark on the world. Well, "Bob" did! He made good! (E.C.C.)

Lane, William G., C, lives on his stock ranch at Silver Lake, Oregon. He is a busy man with a lot of interests to look after yet he usually finds time to drive over the McKenzie pass to the homecomings and class reunions.

Williams, Pearl, P, now Mrs. W. H. Davolt still lives at Kelso, Washington. She was back to the reunion this year and received a prize of a mirror that would reflect how little she had changed. Believe it or not, Pearl has not lost any of her pep and has a beautiful daughter, Virginia, larger than she is. She would be glad to see any of the classmates who pass through Kelso.

Smith, Neil, EE, came to Corvallis in August for the fire chief's school given under the direction of Dean Rogers of the school of engineering. Smith is from Burns, Oregon. Besides running a sheet metal and general "fix-it" shop, Smith is chairman of the high school board at Burns as well as fire chief.

Smith has a son now a sophomore in high school who intends to enter Oregon State in about three years.

1910

Bertha Herse, class secretary, Library, O. S. C., Corvallis, Oregon.

O'Connor, Howard, CE, now lives at 611 East 20th street, Oakland, Cal.

Cox, Captain Malcolm R., ME, is stationed at Fort Sill, Okla.

Lines, John D., ME, and wife and sons recently visited his sister, Mary June Lines, '17 HE, now Mrs. Peffer, of Corvallis. Lines is a hydraulic engineer living at 2245 North 21st street, Phoenix, Arizona.

Thayer, Ruth, DSA, is again a member of the faculty at Oregon State. She is instructing physical education classes.

1911

Harper, George L., CE, has moved to 1342 Cory Drive, Dayton, Ohio.

Burdick, Bert, P, for several years manager of the Skidmore Drug company at Portland, has made good recovery from a long illness and will begin work in the new Skidmore Drug store that has recently been opened.

Jeffreys, Blanche, Music, now Mrs. Carl P. Roberts, and her husband and family visited in Corvallis for a short time this summer. The Roberts live at Simms, Montana.

Royal B. Thompson, class secretary, 215 Monroe street, Stillwater, Oklahoma.

Read, Lance, EE, is an engineer with the Pacific Power and Light company. He has been stationed at Kennewick, Washington, for several years.

Wallace, Grace, C, and Virginia Mescher, C, now Mrs. C. E. Ross, were Corvallis visitors early in September. Miss Wallace was visiting Mrs. Ross at Silverton, Ore., expecting to remain in Oregon a month before returning to her home at Rockville Center, New York.

Allen, Leonard J. "Doc," A, is back on the campus following a year spent in study at Ohio State university. Doc is assistant state club leader. Mrs. Allen, formerly Lottie Mentzer, DSA, and children accompanied him to the East.

Foster, Harold, A, of Sumner, Washington, was one of six rural leaders in the state of Washington who were honored at the thirty-fourth annual commencement at Washington State college last June, when Certificates of Merit were awarded them in recognition of their leadership, industry, initiative and intelligent handling of farm and home problems in their communities.

Here is the excerpt from The Alumnus of Washington State: "A graduate of Oregon State college in 1914, Mr. Foster through frugality and thrift, was able to save enough money to begin farming in 1915, and since then has developed and owns one of the best balanced, income-producing farms in Washington. He is an outstanding leader in his community, and is especially active in farmers' co-operative marketing associations."

Mrs. Foster will be remembered as Grace Cole, '15 HE.

Peery, Wilson, A, has moved to Washougal,

Washington, to be district manager of the Northwestern Electric company.

Irving, Benjamin, CE, and Helen Corl Irving, '16 HE, and their three children live at Wilbur, Ore. Irving does general engineering work.

Padgham, Henry L., A, viewed campus improvements while here recently from Los Angeles. Though having visited here within the past few years he finds many commendable changes. Padgham is a teacher in the Los Angeles schools and lives at 306 Edinburgh avenue.

Thayer, Gilbert, ME, signed the Alumni register in August while on the campus. He notes that he is manager of the Engineering Development company, 1070 Union Trust building, Cleveland, Ohio, though his residence address is 366 Kane Place, Milwaukee, Wisconsin.

1915

Burns, Amelia, HE, who resigned from her position as instructor in foods at Oregon State, may now be reached at her home in Spokane, Washington—1427 West Seventh street.

1916

Wallace Kadderly, class secretary, 147 North 31st street, Corvallis, Oregon.

Schreiber, Martin, A, and Helen Horning Schreiber, HE, and family now live at Route 10, Box 178, Fresno, Cal. Martin teaches in Fresno.

Goble, Ray, A, is now farm advisor at Concorn, Cal.

Chuck Stidd, class manager.
Phil Parrish, class secretary-treasurer, Shattuck Road, Portland, Oregon.

1918

Verne Firestone, class president.
Bertha Whillock Stutz, class secretary-treasurer, 216 Commerce Hall, Corvallis, Oregon.

Redmond, Agnes, HE, has her residence now at 156 Graton street, San Francisco.

Brooke, Major John R., M, who has been an instructor in the Infantry school of the U. S. Army at Fort Benning, Ga., is now stationed at Fort Sam Houston, Texas.

Curry, Fred, P, proprietor of the Curry Drug store located at 39th and Hawthorne Streets, Portland, together with his wife and children visited the campus enroute to Newport for an outing.

1919

Mrs. E. C. Allworth, (Peggy Walker), class secretary, 45 Park Terrace, Corvallis, Oregon.

1920

Mrs. J. C. Westcott (Hazel Kelsey), class secretary, 1654 Van Buren St., Corvallis, Oregon.

1921

Mrs. O. K. Burrell (Leta Agee), class secretary, 948 East 21st street, Eugene, Oregon.

Rogers, Lucy, HE, is teaching home economics at the Girls' Polytechnic school, Portland, this year.

Hesseltine, Earl, A, and Mabel Specht Hesseltine, HE, and two children are now living at 1222 East 23rd Street North, Portland.

Luebke, William, C, holds the position of assistant cashier in the Security State bank at Chehalis, Wash. Luebke married Edith Alexander, '24, C, and they have one child.

Whitaker, William C., A, is continuing his work at Oregon State for a master's degree in plant pathology and works as an assistant in that department. He and Mrs. Whitaker, nee Lois Payne, '18 HE, and children live at 720 North 11th street.

1922

F. Earl Price, class secretary, 2725 Jackson street, Corvallis, Oregon.

Langston, Maurice C., P, representative of Eli Lilly and Company in Mexico City, was in Oregon visiting his parents this summer.

Preparation

This is the time when all O.S.C. students will be making their preparations for the coming school year. The time when studies will be decided upon; when social connections will be completed, friendships formed and everything settled for active work.

This is also the time when every student should carefully prepare for future expenditures by starting a savings account in this bank and adding to it regularly, so that sufficient funds will always be ready to meet every need.

No one can predict the future, but everyone can prepare for it.

Savings depositors in this bank are given the assurance that their funds are fully protected by every means known to conservative banking and by the rigid statutes of the Oregon State Banking Code.

Saving is the best preparation for the future.

Men who do their best work after 50 are those who have learned to REST . . .

ARTHUR BRISBANE, famous journalist, says, "The greatest loss to the world, and especially to America, is that caused by the death of men that die too soon. A man's best work should be done between fifty and seventy. And if he knows how to live wisely, his best thirty years may be found between fifty and eighty."

Tired nerves and bodies need rest, particularly during the Winter season, when sickness is most prevalent. A Winter cruise via Red Star or White Star Lines provides the kind of rest that keeps men fit. Medical authorities declare that nothing tones up the system so thoroughly—and delightfully—as a sea voyage. Let us tell you about the splendid winter cruises listed below:

World Cruise of the Red Star liner Belgenland, most famous globe-circling ship. From New York, Dec. 15. 133 days. From San Diego, Dec. 31, Los Angeles, Jan. 2, San Francisco, Jan. 4. $1750 (up)—including complete shore program.

Mediterranean—Four 46-day cruises by White Star liners Britannic (new) and Adriatic. Jan. 8 and 17, Feb. 26, Mar. 7. Covering principal points of tourist interest. $695-$750 (up), First Class—$420 Tourist Third Cabin, both including shore program.

Giants out of the earth

An Advertisement of the American Telephone and Telegraph Company

NO AGE but ours has seen so swift and complete an application of natural forces to the doing of daily tasks. Man's leaping knowledge . . . embodied in industrial plants and laboratories, airplanes and electric locomotives . . . has won new power and freedom. Machines are the symbols of a new relationship with nature. They are the servants of this civilization . . . helping men to extend the limits of their opportunities, to change the character of their life.

Americans have been pre-eminent in this change, for in whatever they do they seek to utilize nature to the utmost. They have taken the power out of the earth and from the running streams. They have made it turn the wheels of their industry and move their products by rail and road. They have made color and variety out of chemistry. They have spun metal in slim wires to carry their voices anywhere with the speed of light . . . and make neighbors of the scattered millions of America.

Joining homes and work places, towns and distant cities, the Bell Telephone System has furnished a new communication for this new age. Forwarding the growth of the nation, giving better and more complete service in advance of the demand, its function has become the indispensable one of furnishing the means of social and business contacts in crowded cities and scattered villages over the length and breadth of a continent.

The Bell System is constantly improving the scope, speed and accuracy of its service.

Its work of contributing to the welfare and prosperity of American life goes on with increasing purpose and pace.
