THE SEBASTIAN BRUTSCHER FARM

By Kimberly Dunn

My great great grandfather, Sebastian Brutscher, originally came from Bavaria to the United States, where in 1849 he joined Col. W.W. Loring's US Army Rifle Regiment. This regiment came west that year after the Cayuse Indians, as part of the US response to the Whitman massacre. He was discharged in Oregon City, and soon after this came to the Chehalem Valley area, where he worked in the Rogers-Ramsey Mill. He bought squatter's rights to 640 acres for $1.00, and in 1850 married Mary Everest. In 1851, he filed a Donation Land Claim for the 640 acres. The farm at 4505 E. Portland Road remains in my hands as a descendent, and has been continually farmed since Sebastian Brutscher's time.

Sebastian Brutscher grew a variety of farm crops and animals. It is remembered that he had dairy cows, pigs, sheep, chickens and ducks. He also grew oats, wheat, hay, hops, and apples. One of his first acts on his land was to set up a sawmill; he used the lumber from trees on his land to build his house and barns. By 1880, it is recorded that he produced 2,000 bushels of apples from a 10 acre orchard.

In 1880, he gave 40 acres to each of five living daughters. Carolyn (Carrie) Brutscher Hutchens, my great grandmother, was given the farm on which I now live. Carolyn and her husband, Isaac Hamlin Hutchens, were the first couple to be married in a quaker ceremony in Oregon. "Carrie" and "Ham" carried on with the farming traditions set in place by Sebastian Brutscher. They grew wheat, oats, and hay, and had cattle, pigs, and chickens. They planted a cherry orchard and a walnut orchard, remnants of which are still visible. They may have also planted the French Petite plums we still have. My father remembers traveling to the coast from Portland in the 20's, and passing through the beautiful cherry and nut orchards on this farm.

My grandmother, Mary Eleanor (Ella) Hutchens Gubser, was the daughter of Carrie and Ham. When she and her husband Archie Louis Gubser farmed the land, they grew revolving crops of wheat, oats, and clover, and had beef calves for their own use. They also maintained a portion of the cherry orchard.

My mother, Doris Gubser Gish, was the daughter of Ella and Archie. She and her husband, my father, Forrest R. Gish, assumed the farming of the land in 1961. They increased the fenced area and raised beef calves and welch ponies. They also planted alfalfa, made alfalfa hay, and harvested a cherry crop.

Since I have been farming the land, we have added more fencing and are currently raising Nubian and Boer goats, St. Croix sheep, chickens, Muscovy ducks, and rabbits. We also have grass hay, apples, and French Petite plums, and sell grape and willow plant starts. We also have a hedge of rambling roses, which I was told were given to Carolyn Hutchens by her mother, who had brought them from England.

We appreciate the opportunity to recognize the long family tradition of farming this land, which was begun by the capable hands of Sebastian Brutscher.

years was ordained a Congregational minister in the old West Church at Andover, September 15, 1852.

He was married to Miss Charlotte Humphrey, a native of Victor, Ontario county, New York, and November 13, 1852, they sailed from New York city on the Trade Wind, bound for the Pacific coast; they landed at Portland, Oregon, March 4, 1853, and came to Salem, where Mr. Dickinson took charge of a little church, which had been organized the July previous, with a membership of four; his first sermon was delivered in the schoolhouse, and for fourteen years and one month he faithfully administered to this band of worshipers; when his services as pastor ceased, the membership had increased to ninety-six; the present church edifice was erected and dedicated without debt, August 28, 1863.

This work completed, Mr. Dickinson purchased twenty-one acres of choice land, one and a quarter miles from Salem, and gave his attention to the cultivation of garden seeds; later establishing a large store in Salem, whence he shipped seeds to all parts of the United States. In the press of commercial life he never relinquished his work as a minister of the gospel, and in 1876 he united with the Seventh Day Adventists, after which he was pastor of that society, which numbered thirty-six souls.

Mr. and Mrs. Dickinson had four children, three of whom died in childhood: Cora Lamira, is the wife of A. N. Moores, and resides in Salem.

Mr. Dickinson had adhered to the principles of the Republican party since its organization. He was always a staunch supporter of law and order, and arrayed himself on the side of right, regardless of results, and thus won the highest esteem of all good citizens. He died November 27, 1892, after a few hours' illness, leaving a devoted family and many friends to mourn his loss.

SEBASTIAN BRUTSCHER, another one of the honored pioneers of Oregon, a prominent farmer and citizen of Yam Hill county, was born in Bavaria, Germany, November 27, 1826, the son of German parents.

Young Brutscher spent two years in one of the universities of his native country, and then came to the United States, landing in New York in August, 1847. He went to Indiana, and from there, in 1849, crossed the plains to Oregon. He came to this State with a company of Government Mounted Riflemen, he having a position in the Commissary Department. The object of the expedition was to chastise the Cayuse Indians, and was conducted by Colonel Loring. They crossed the Cascades and arrived safe in Oregon City, where Mr. Brutscher was discharged. He soon found employment here at $5 per day, working on a sawmill for James Moore. After this he came to the Chehalem valley in Yam Hill county and worked in a sawmill all winter, receiving the same wages.

In 1850 Mr. Brutscher took a donation claim, the one on which he now resides, and about that time was married to Miss Mary Everest, a native of Kent, England. Her father, Richard Everest, also a native of England, came to Oregon in 1847. In the spring of 1851 Mr. Brutscher went to Yreka, California, where he engaged in mining and had fair success. Returning to his claim, he and his wife went to housekeeping in a little log cabin, 8 x 10 feet, with puncheon floors and a bedstead made of fir poles, fastened in the side of the house. Their cooking utensils consisted of a skillet, frying-pan, two iron pots and a teakettle, and cost $18. He worked hard to clear his land, and as the years rolled by prosperity attended his efforts. In 1857 he built a sawmill, which he operated thirteen years, at the same time conducting his farming operations. He paid for his mill, built a large residence, and continued to develop his farm, and by his intelligent industry was early recognized as one of the most substantial men of the vicinity. He passed safely through the panic and dull times of 1856 to '58. During the war he was elected and served four years as County Commissioner, and his efficient services helped to pilot Yam Hill county through those troublous days. In 1884 he was again elected County Commissioner, and was re-elected three times, thus having served ten years in that capacity. For twenty years he served as Clerk of the School Board in his district.

Mr. and Mrs. Brutscher have had eleven children, nine daughters and two sons, of whom two died in infancy. Those living are as follows: Jane, Carrie, wife of Hamilton Hutchings; Emma, wife of John Kramien; Ida, wife of F. E. Hadley; Bertie, wife of Henry H.

Hagey; Laura, George A., who is married and resides in Umatilla county; and Sebastian Abraham.

Mr. Brutscher has been a Republican since the organization of the party, and under Grant's administration he was the first Postmaster of Newberg.

WILLIAM M. RALSTON, a resident of Albany and an Oregon pioneer of 1847, was born in Rockville, Parke county, Indiana, in March, 1824.

Jeremiah Ralston, his father, was born and reared in Ohio. He went to Indiana when a young man, and in 1822 was married in Washington county, to Miss Margaret McKnight. After their marriage they settled in Rockville. He engaged in farming and also in trading, running flat-boats on the Wabash and Mississippi rivers down to New Orleans, where he sold both the cargoes of produce and the boats. In 1837 they removed to Burlington, Iowa, where Mr. Ralston conducted a village store and carried on farming until the spring of 1847. At that time he sold out and prepared to seek a home in the far West. He bought three wagons, with prairie outfit, and fifteen yoke of cattle, and with his wife and six children started on their overland journey to Oregon. They left Burlington on the 1st of March and crossed the Missouri river at St. Joseph, Missouri, on the 1st of April. A train was then organized, consisting of about forty-five wagons and 150 people, Albert Davidson, who had crossed the plains in 1845, being elected captain. Arriving at the Dalles, they were detained one week because of Indian troubles; crossed the Cascade mountains by the Barlow route; and entered Oregon City, September 10, 1847. Mr. Ralston settled on 640 acres in Linn county, the present site of Lebanon. In 1852 he laid out and founded the town of Lebanon, and established the first store in that place. He there followed farming and mercantile life until August 12, 1877, when he died, aged seventy-four years.

William M. received his education in Indiana and Iowa, and in 1847 crossed the plains to Oregon with his parents, driving an ox team the entire distance. The next year he crossed the Siskiyou mountains and at intervals passed two years in the mining districts of California, each trip being very successful. He was married in Lebanon, in 1853, to Miss Laura A. Denny, daughter of Christian Denny, a pioneer of 1852. After their marriage they settled on the donation claim, adjoining his father, he having taken this claim on first coming to the Territory. He was also engaged with his father in merchandising in Lebanon until about 1860. In 1890 he platted an addition to Lebanon and sold a number of town lots. In 1874 he rented his farm, built a comfortable home in Albany, and has since lived here, retired from active life. He still owns two hundred acres of his original claim and has 120 acres two miles from Albany, both properties being rented. Mr. Ralston is a public-spirited man and is actively interested in various enterprises. He assisted in organizing and pushed to completion the Willamette Valley & Cascade Mountain Military wagon road, was a stockholder in the Albany & Santiam Canal, and is also a stockholder of the Lebanon & Santiam Canal. He has served two terms in the Columbia Council of Albany. He is one of the conservative and highly esteemed citizens of the town, being widely known and much respected. He is a Knight Templar.

Mr. and Mrs. Ralston have two children: Louner Owen, engaged in the stock business in eastern Oregon; and Joseph, who is now attending the Albany Collegiate Institute. They lost three in early childhood.

JUDGE ALSTON C. ARCHBOLD, a prominent citizen and business man of Hillsboro, and ex-Judge of the county of Washington, Oregon, was born in Virginia, August 23, 1835. His father, Edward Archbold, was born in Clarksburg, Vermont, in 1812. They were of Irish ancestry and early settlers of Vermont. Edward Archbold married Rachel Nichland of Maryland and the daughter of Dr. John Nichland, a native of Maryland and of Scottish ancestry. There were born to them seven children, of whom three are living. Mr. Archbold, the subject of this sketch, was the third child. He was raised in the town of Woodsfield, Ohio, and received a common school education. He studied law with his father and Colonel Richardson, and was admitted to the bar in 1860 and commenced his practice then, and continued it until 1861 when the civil war burst with all its fury upon the country,

PO 100 Years Old

FIRST POSTMASTER of Newberg was Sebastian Brutscher, above, one of Yamhill County's first residents and man who named the then small farming settlement "Newberg" after his hometown of Newburgh in Bavaria. He was commissioned postmaster on Nov. 5, 1869.

NEWBERG (UPI) — This city will celebrate the 100th anniversary Wednesday of a major event in its history — the founding of its first post office.

Newberg citizens will mark the centennial with speeches, an historical pageant, and a special dispatch of mail by horseback from Portland to Newberg.

The modern day pony express ride will start at 8:30 a.m. with Larry Jones, president of the Chehalem Mountain Trail Riders, carrying the mail.

George Fox College President David Le Shana will give the main anniversary address during ceremonies near the present day post office.
