Dean Arthur McKay Century Farm – 150 years October 25, 2007

The McKay family settled in the St. Paul region of the Willamette Valley with many other European –Americans in the early to mid 1800's. The region originally brought settlers to the area because of the Northwest Fur Company which had a trading post in St. Paul. In 1829 a French –Canadian trapper named Etienne Lucier settled his family in the area of Champoeg State Park to become one of Oregon's earliest farms.

James McKay was born in Ireland; when he was one year old his family moved to Glasgow, Scotland where he grew up. In 1840 James McKay married and shortly thereafter became interested in pioneering in the Middle West. They moved to Joliet, Illinois where he found employment on a canal being built. It was in 1847 James McKay traveled by wagon train from Illinois to settle in the Oregon territory with his family. They stopped in The Dalles and then built a raft and floated to Portland. They eventually found their way down to settle in St. Paul. James McKay purchased the 160 acres which we call the homeplace where we live today. Five generations later I, Dean McKay, and my brother Mark took over the family farm from our father Arthur. We saw the need to grow the business that our ancestors started. The acreage of the farm has grown to more than 4,000 acres and we have introduced many new crops. Today the farm produces garlic seed, broccoli, bush beans, sweet corn, hazelnuts, hops and grass seed. Ten years ago my wife, Ann, and I added to our diversified operation and formed another corporation named Advanced Ornamentals, Inc. that is a wholesale nursery growing 500 acres of plants. Today our children also take an active part in the operations of our farm entities.
